Forward, soldiers of the Army!
Onward to the fight!
In the end we're sure to conquer
For our cause is right.

CHORUS.

Raise the "Blood-stained Banner" higher
Jesus leads on us,
Shout the watchword, "Blood and Fire"
Till the victory won!

Satan's legions are retreating
Vanquish them we will.
And in Christ we are defeating
And defeat we still!

Hell must shake to its foundation
Ere its overthrow,
And we'll fight till every nation
Shall our Saviour know.

Come ye sinners, mock no longer
To the Saviour kneel,
Dare Him not, for He is stronger.
Enlist and take the field.

ONTARIO'S IRON MINES.

Life in the Bush—The Wilbur Iron Mines—Deposits at Flower and Calabogie Lakes—Progress of the Railway.

(Special Correspondence.)

The middle pit at Wilbur is almost forty feet deep, perpendicular measurement, and shapes at an angle of 40 degrees from the horizontal. Two transverse caverns, the lower at the bottom of the mine, cross the shaft, exposing an almost uniform thickness of twenty feet of ore.

The Caldwell is not many yards beyond. The lowest part of the mine shows a common feature in iron mines, the protrusion of rock into the ore from the hanging wall above. This mine was worked last winter by the Bethlehem Company, which, however, discontinued operations on encountering a wall of rock that threatened a closure of the vein. At the lower side of this covern a wall of rock again presents itself, but the drill applied the day before my visit had pierced the obstruction in several places, and penetrated again into solid ore. The presence of rock walls such as this is a curious phenomenon in a mine in which the hanging and footwalls are generally so well defined. The neighborhood of the dome referred to suggests that in the disturbance which forced the molten ore up through this fissure some of the rocks above were broken off and sunk into the ore. Axis the big shaft of the Bethlehem mine the water drops freely from the roof, in one place pouring down in almost a continuous flow. The water trickling down the black floor runs into a covered sink, from which it is drawn up in an iron pipe and discharged in geyser-like jets in front of the opening above.

The vein or bed in which the pits are sunk appears to be an extensive one. A small opening was made in it by the Bethlehem Company in the bush, a third of a mile or more west of the big pit, and almost over the whole length of the ridge the needle dips perpendicularly. There is no way, however short, of actual development, that will show approximately the quantity of the deposit.

WIDTH OF CANADIAN ORE BEDS.

In width these mines and many other deposits in Lanark, Frontenac, Renfrew and North Hastings surpass the mines of the Alleganies. In Pennsylvania a vein twenty feet wide is unusual; some of the largest veins opened are not more than eight feet wide, and veins of two or three feet are considered worth opening. Here, on account of the distance from smelting works and the abundance of wide veins, veins less than ten feet wide are scarcely considered worth opening. The Wilbur deposit is 20 to 23 feet in width; the Robertsville mine, near the Mississippi, is quite as thick; the narrowest part of the great deposit at Cocbell, in Wollaston, is 65 feet, and a deposit a mile in length, with a depth of 60 to 140 feet, and is said to exist at Calabogie Lake, north of this township. It is yet too early to judge of the extent of the iron deposits of the Laurentians, though enough is known to justify very sanguine hopes. The quality of the ore, especially here, is high. As in North Hastings, much of it yields 60 to 75 per cent. of pure iron out of a possible 78. The average is probably little if any thing below 65 per cent. About fifteen thousand tons have been shipped from the Bethlehem mine, and a few thousand from the Caldwell. The quantity yet remaining even above the comparatively small depths to which the shafts yet extend, and within a few yards of the various shafts, is enormous.

FLOWER AND ITS NEIGHBORHOOD.

Wednesday morning a train came ponderously pulling through the deep snow from the Mississippi. It was two hours late, so difficult was the passage. Taking this train we reached Sand City, seven miles up the line, a collection of four or five log shanties, including a store, and so called because of the unusual feature of a great sand cutting existing here, from which sand and gravel are manufacturing over, we understand, are taken. About one hundred and fifty navvies are at work here, but the cutting is almost completed. He we took the gravel train for Flower, a settlement of three log houses, a new station house, and a log store, three miles further up, and on the borders of Renfrew County. Taking a lumberer's trail into the woods for three quarters of a mile we found a lumbering shanty and a few small mining buildings rising on the slope of a low ridge from the midst of a confusion of snow-covered logs, stumps, trees and rocks. The shanty, which is one of Caldwell's, was similar to those at Wilbur, but forks are provided here as well as knives. A young commercial traveller, who had strayed away from beaten paths into regions in which no knight of the road was seen before, was one of our party, and created much amusement by his earnest but exceedingly awkward attempts to keep his dishes from upsetting during his nervous attempts to get his victuals tilted to his mouth. Shanty fare though it was, better beef or better cooked vegetables could not be obtained in any hotel in Canada. Beef is also well kept, whatever it may be at present; pork takes its place towards the close of the winter. The cook, a young man, receives $35 per month; the shanty men generally from $14 to $18. The work being done here is a final clearing, which will occupy a few years.

THE NEW YEAR PARTIES.

The bed of magnetic ore at these mines is at least a quarter of a mile in length, and is nearly equally divided by the W. C. Caldwell and the Bethlehem mining companies. At the Caldwell mine a depth of 15 or 16 feet exists. Developments have not yet been carried sufficiently far to justify any decided opinion as to how the mine may turn out, but appearances are encouraging. Bethlehem pit is not so deep nor does so much ore appear. The dip is about 45 degrees. Both mines are worked by carbon and car, and employ about twenty men. There are other mines in the neighbourhood. The Kelly mine on the Levant road, 8 miles north west of Wilbur employs four or five men at a small opening, which is said to show good indications. The Hall & Wiley mine, not far away, occupies the brow of a low and narrow ridge. From another Caldwell mine, opened a year ago, three hundred tons of ore have been removed at Calabogie Lake, Township of Bagot, Lanark, ten miles north of Flower Station, and 18 miles in Renfrew village. It lies along a ridge close to the lake and the Madawaska River, and almost alongside of the Kingston & Pembroke RR. The length of the mine is said to be about a mile and the breadth of the vein over considerable lengths is 80 to 125 feet. Numerous other mines are scattered over the country, awaiting capital and railway communication for their opening. The Calabogie is the most extensive yet opened, and may prove to be one of the largest on the Continent.

PROGRESS OF RAILWAY CONSTRUCTION.

The opening of the Kingston & Pembroke RR. to Renfrew will prove a great stimulus to mining enterprise in this section. The road is being energetically pushed forward. Messrs. O'Brien, Macdonald and Osborne, who have the contract from Sand City to the Madawaska at Calabogie Lake, employ over 200 men and have the road opened to Flower, 51 miles from Kingston, and even beyond, and almost completely graded to the Madawaska, where a bridge about a thousand feet in length is being constructed by the Company. The 18 miles thence to Renfrew village, near the Ottawa, are under contract by Mr. W. Bergerman, of Renfrew, who employs between 200 and 300 men in carrying forward the work. It is said that by next spring the whole road from Kingston to the Ottawa will have been graded and railed, and only awaiting the completion of the Madawaska bridge for the running of through trains.

LIFE AT THE MINES.

How the Men Spend Their Evenings—Limited Amusements—A Happy Gathering.

Winter life in Wilbur has not yet at least the attractions associated with backwoods settlements in Canada. This is in large measure due to the character of the surrounding country and the isolation of the village. Too merry jingle of the sleigh bells is unheard; sleighing parties, with their fun and frolic, are unknown. The miners are too tired at night for that kind of enjoyment, and girls are scarcer than iron mines in the country round about. Even were this not the case, there are no horses to spare, there being only three in the settlement, and these are at work hauling wood. Moreover, were there horses, there are no objective points for a sleigh drive in this wilderness of bush and rock. Singing schools and all that the term implies are unknown. Even religious services are held but very rarely though they are well attended. There are no balls held here, or entertainments of any sort. A pair of snowshoes are in the settlement and are sometimes put to use for the snow lies deep in most winters as it does at present. Walking throughout the untracked paths with ordinary boots is no inviting method of locomotion, and is rarely undertaken. Books and newspapers are scarce, though no doubt they would be appreciated. A free public library, costing six dollars, would be a boon to the village. The winter evenings pass in chat and card playing, with a little singing now and then, and the miners make the best of it, although it must become monotonous. The boarding houses are lively and comfortable places. The Bethlehem Company's boarding house, which is not only a lodging house for about forty men, but also is a sort of inn for the occasional wayfarer, and where I took my meals, is a warm and substantial log building fifty feet long by thirty wide and two stories in height. The hostess, a kind, motherly woman, would make almost any house cheery; but apart from this the glowing fire, the unplastered beams, the whitewashed log walls, and the long tables loaded with eatables, form an ideal log boarding house for the backwoods. The breaking down of the train left me to spend an agreeable evening here. The miners on the day shift were all at home and after a number of tunes on the accordeon by two of the boys—one a slight polished Norwegian from Bergen, and the other a stalwart Italian, "Mike," from near Milan—the fun grew fast and furious, and the first dance of the season took place, the spectacle of a miner arrayed in girl clothing tripping over the floor overawing the shyness of the girls, who pitying the shifts the boys had to make for partners heartily joined in, and indeed only from motives tour ou to and to the evening festivities. Whether the monotony of life here has something to do with it or not, whiskey is a sore temptation to not a few miners; pay day is invariably followed by a spree at the nearest tavern, eight miles away, and on these occasions the amount of whiskey consumed is phenomenally large, a loss to the mine is the consequence, and the manager has frequently to discharge them, though only temporarily, as labor is scarce and irregular habits must be endured.

Time to Buy Bread.

Too much cannot be said of the unfaithful wife and mother, constantly watching and caring for her dear ones, never neglecting a single duty in their behalf. When they are unwell by disease, and the system should have a thorough cleansing, the stomach and bowels regulated, blood purified, malarial poison exterminated, she must know that Burdock Bitters are the only sure remedy. They are the best and surest medicine in the world, and only cost fifty cents. Sold by J. Geo. King.

RELIGIOUS CONTROVERSY

A Criticism of Late Writers—Giving Advice to Dr. E. Wilson's Critics—Alleged Inconsistencies.

To the Editor, British Whig.

SIR,—Since the Rev. Dr. Wilson took occasion to refer to an intermediate state we have been edified with several comments in your paper upon what he has said and in particular from the pastors of Chalmers and Queen Street Churches, one characterizing his remarks as old wives fables, and the other treating with sneers, and sarcasms his allusions to the doctrine as of the Catholic Dark, winding up with a broadside against the teachings of the Church of England in general. Now I have wondered if it has occurred to these learned masters in Theology that in their attacks upon Dr. Wilson they aimed a blow at the faith at christendom, which from the earliest times of the Church has been embodied in what is known as the Apostles Creed where, in contest terms, it says of Christ, that He descended into Hell and then ascended into Heaven. With all the deference due to the learning and research of those modern teachers of Christianity who differ with Dr. Wilson I would ask, can it be possible that the long line of ancient confessors and the millions of Christians who for ages have firmly adhered to this creed and died in the faith of Christ have been so ignorant of the truth and so utterly mistaken in their views that they need correction in this 19th century? On the other hand, is it possible we have given a wrong interpretation to its articles and that the words descended and ascended are synonymous and have no signification as to the difference of place, and that Heaven (of Heavens) and Hell (Hades) means one and the same above? I can scarcely think that notwithstanding we are living in a more advanced stage of civilization under the brilliant light of petroleum, gas and electricity, with advantages beyond those of the rush light of our forefathers, we are not altogether prepared to accept of this theory, but relegate it to its proper sphere on the crowntoches of new fangled doctrines and heresies of schism, where are to be found the self constituted interpreters of Holy Writ whose opinions, in the estimation of the ignorant, outweigh in the scale of importance all that may be gathered as the consent of the Catholic Church, against which the gates of hell might almost as easily prevail were it left alone to any defence of theirs. Not content with the weak effort to upset one doctrine we have also been treated to a fling at the doctrines of the Church of England generally, and the argument is, that there are such diversities of opinion among some of its members in regard to doctrines, it is difficult to know what they are. But the same difficulty will present itself as to the truths of the Bible itself which the Protestant world have not yet agreed upon, and which in a marked manner, is exemplified by the almost yearly splits which take place among them notwithstanding all the efforts of an Evangelical Alliance to bring about a spurious unity. I would recommend the pastor of Queen Street Methodist Church to persevere and try if he can not understand the contents of the Prayer Book. It might do him good, and should he fail he would not be in a worse position than he is now in regard to the Bible. One thing I might say, that the doctrines enunciated by Dr. Wilson can be more readily proved to be in accordance with those of the Church of England than those of his opponent are with those of John Wesley, which I suppose he assumes to follow. And I may say the name of the minister of Chalmers Church as to his inconsistency in regard to the Apostolic Creed which is embodied in his Confession of Faith.—Yours truly,

CREED.

A Cure For Headache.

What physician has ever discovered a cure for headache? Echo answers none. But Burdock Blood Bitters by their purifying, invigorating, nervine properties afford a cure in nearly every case. The health giving principles are unequalled by any similar preparation in the world.

Worse Than Wine.

The throat has destroyed more lives than the sword, by improprieties in eating and intemperance in drinking; but when the health becomes impaired the miserable dyspepsia may find prompt relief in Burdock Blood Bitters. It regulates the bowels, acts upon the liver and kidneys, purifies the blood, and stimulates the sensitive to a healthy action.

A General Complaint.

Never was such a rush made for any drug store as is now at J. Geo. King's for a trial bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds. All parties affected with coughs, bronchitis, incipient consumption, or any affection of the throat and lungs can get a trial bottle free of this great remedy free, by calling at above drug store.
