CONFLICTING OPINIONS.

Mr. G. M. Macdonnell wants the licensing business handed over to the County Judge, the Police Magistrate and the Mayor.

Mr. Metcalfe just now is favourable to anything that will ensure him a vote. He prefers to remain non-committal, however.

The whole party is at sixes and sevens and don't know what they believe and what they want.

Mr. Lander, a shining light of the Opposition, advocates the relegation of the question to the County Judges, Sheriffs and Treasurers.

In 1877 Mr. Meredith disbelieved in any one having anything to do with the issue of licenses who had to try infractions of the law; now he thinks the Councils should have the appointing of the Commissioners.

Judge Hughes, St. Thomas, whom the Tories admire so much, thinks the Crooks Act is not perfect, but that it would never do to again hand the liquor trade over to the management of the municipalities.

TORY INDIGNATION.

The Ottawa Citizen says the boundary question should be considered on its merits; it should not be used for the purpose of setting Province against Province and race against race, as the Ontario factionists are now doing. "Our French Canadian fellow-countrymen," continues the Government organ at the Capital, "have no desire to rob Ontario of a single right; they are not conspirators against Ontario in any sense; and therefore the mischievous efforts of the Mowat party in sowing the seeds of discord should be trampled down by every man in this Province who is interested in the general welfare and the consolidation of the Dominion." Very pretty, but decidedly misleading. Who first inspired a conflict of race and set Province against Province? Does our contemporary forget the utterances of Mr. Mousseau at Jacques Cartier on the 22nd August last? Is it possible that the people of the Capital have never read the following statement, which cannot be explained away:

"You have heard of the great question of the Ontario Boundary. It will not be necessary for me to go into all the details of this question. The Government of Mr. Mackenzie had submitted this question to an arbitration, and in 1878 the arbitrators decided that Ontario should have an additional extent of boundary of 62,000,000 acres. When we, the Conservatives, arrived in power, we refused to accept the decision and offered to refer the case to the Privy Council. When at St. Jerome, in 1878, with the Hon. Mr. Masson, I laid down the condition on which we would hold our position as members of the Federal Cabinet. I said: If the Province of Ontario is to acquire an additional 62,000,000 acres more than she was given under the British North America Act the Province of Quebec would have the right to demand an equivalent. It would be impossible for the Province of Quebec to remain in this position if Ontario gained her case, because any improvement in her position must be followed by an equal one in ours. Otherwise the Federal equilibrium would be broken."

And yet the Citizen and papers of the same political cast have the cheek to say that Mr. Mowat is putting race against race and Province against Province. The Attorney General of Ontario is fighting for Provincial rights, for the carrying out of an award which is justly and fairly founded, and we hope the electors in this city will send to the next House a representative who will strengthen his hands. Vote for C. F. Gildersleeve, the people's candidate, and good government.

PUBLIC OR PRIVATE RIGHTS.

"Mr. Metcalfe denies the right of a Government to rob an opponent of his property and give it to a supporter."—Tory Paper.

Mr. J. H. Metcalfe voted against the Streams Bill, a measure which does not interfere with private rights. It was not designed to injure Mr. McLaren, but to destroy a monopoly which he has already enjoyed too long. Under the Act Mr. McLaren can retain possession of his improvements, but he is not allowed to prevent others getting their timber to market; on the contrary he is obliged to let them use his slides and dams and collect therefor a toll to be fixed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council. There are three points to be borne in mind in connection with this case:

1. That the trouble arises from Mr. McLaren claiming as his own what belongs to the public;

2. That the men who want to use the stream can do without Mr. McLaren's improvements, and would rather they were removed;

3. That other streams are similarly situated, and that if Mr. McLaren's contention is sustained the same trouble will be cropping up all over the Province—unless other lumbermen are actuated by a rule that Mr. McLaren appears to have forgotten, of doing to others as he would wish others to do to him.

Mr. McLaren is a supporter of the Dominion Government and has done his party signal service. He must not on any account be offended. From a Tory standpoint it is of more importance to serve him than to advance the public interests. In voting against the Streams Bill Mr. Metcalfe declares himself in favor of an iniquitous and ruinous monopoly—iniquitous because no honest man will say that he acts rightly in owning works on the river which cannot be passed, and refusing the lumberman a privilege for which they are willing to pay reasonable compensation; ruinous because, if the Act be again disallowed, many must suffer great loss. There is no telling to what excesses the monopolists will run. The question cannot virtually affect the city election, but it is a gratification to know that if Mr. Gildersleeve be chosen the people's representative he will assist in the passage of what does the greatest good to the greatest number.

MR. WILMOT'S NOMINATION.

Two weeks ago an attempt was made to weaken Mr. Fair's candidature by representing that his nomination gave dissatisfaction. We pointed out that the men who were talked of as discontents had, at the convention, stated that they were in perfect accord with the party, and since then we have had evidence of their earnestness in the service they have performed. We had an idea that are long our Tory friends would have all they could do to smother their own troubles. These came thick and fast on Saturday in connection with the nomination of Mr. Henry Wilmot. No one who knows anything about the proceedings of the Tory gathering will say that they were harmonious, and that their outcome has inspired enthusiasm.

Prior to the opening of the Convention a caucus was held, and Mr. Murray, who had half the county canvassed, was given to understand that he would be the choice, otherwise he would have kept from the meeting of delegates and continued in the field as an Independent. His friends intimate that he has been sold, that he was made hopeful and committed to abide by the result whatever it might be, that he found fewer baskers than he expected and so suffered a political slaughter. Mr. H. A. Calvin would not consent to be a wire-puller, a manipulator, and so lost the nomination. He would have taken it had it been tendered to him unanimously; and certainly he would have been a stronger man than Mr. Wilmot, who owes his selection, not to his merit and prominence and power, but to the conflict of factions, which prevented a vote favourable to Walker, Darragh, or any other acceptable man.

Mr. Wilmot has undertaken a campaign of whose difficulties he little dreams. He sets out with a feeling that his party is not united. They say the nomination was unanimous, but dozens of sore heads left the meeting. Mr. Wilmot, too, fights against public opinion, which is greatly in favour of the Mowat Government. Farmers and farmers' sons realize that the Administration has done its utmost to promote their interests. The young men know who gave them votes; they will remember that the Farmers' Sons Franchise Act has been pronounced by the Tories an unconstitutional and dishonest measure; they will then understand what they may expect by a change of Governors; and they should bear in mind that Mr. Fair represents a progressive liberal policy and do what they can to elect him by a large majority.

GRAINS OF GOLD.

"When an honest man falls into an error, he has the candor and manliness to own up his mistake; when your rogue is discovered in a lie, he sneaks off covering amid the jeers of honest men."

Our local contemporary may be judged by the following extracts:

Assertion—"During the Mayoralty contest between Messrs. McIntyre and Gildersleeve he (A. Livingston) called upon Mr. Thomas Dunn, saloon-keeper, and informed him that unless he voted for the Grit candidate he might expect to lose his license."—News, Jan. 24.

Proof—Not a title.

Assertion—"During the campaign of 1878 he (Livingston) again saw Mr. Dunn and gave him to understand that he would have difficulty in obtaining his license if he did not change his politics."—News, Jan. 24.

Contradiction—"I did not canvass his vote. I did not say to Dunn he would not get his license on account of his action in politics."—Mr. Livingston's sworn statement in News, Jan. 26.

Assertion—"But Mr. Dunn voted and worked for the Conservatives both at the general election and in the contest in June, 1879. Within a few weeks of the latter his name was struck off the list of those having been left at the Federal Bank."—News, Jan. 24.

Contradiction—"The elections took place on the 6th of June; Dunn's license was cancelled by Commissioner Livingston on the 6th of June."—News, Feb. 3.

VERY DOUBTFUL FUN.

A prominent resident of Portsmouth has called to ask us, in justice to the people there, to explain that correspondence coming from that village to our local contemporary, while well understood there as a doubtful piece of fun, has led to mistaken outside, very annoying to the persons written about. Respectable men are recorded as leaving home on hunting and other expeditions, as if they were wanting their employers' time, though called away on urgent business. The casual absence of other persons have been sensingularly reported that the inference of outsiders was that they had left under a cloud. Our informant merely asks that such statements be taken with a grain of allowance. Other jokes in the same letter are comparatively harmless.

MARINE NEWS.

The latest marine reports come from St. Catharines. They are: Captain Burroughs, who formerly sailed the Prescotts, has purchased an interest in the propeller St. Magnus.

Captain Kish is to sail the Celtic next season in place of Captain George McIntosh.

Captain Archie McKaugh is to remain ashore until season to look after Mr. Noxon's new composite ship now building by the Shickluns.

The propellers Cuba, Armenia and Caledonia are expected to form a line next season, to run between Montreal and Dulath.

Rev. Mr. Mitchell, of Boston, will probably be extended a call to St. Andrew's Church, Ottawa.

CONSERVATIVE CONVENTION

Difficulty in Selecting a Candidate—Several Persons Fooled—H. Wilmot's Acceptance.

Saturday was marked by great activity on the part of our Conservative friends. Shortly after 3 o'clock many of them dodged into the American Hotel, Brock Street, where it was understood the wire pullers were to congregate and fix up the nomination. The "party of jobs" would not allow the delegates to follow their inclinations; had they done so the result would probably have been other than it is. As soon as the programme was "severely scrunged," as one gentleman remarked, there was an adjournment to the Court House. There were about 75 persons present. They arranged themselves on the tiers of seats in the Division Court Room—a fitly chosen place, for there was much division amongst them. Mr. D. J. Waggoner, the oft defeated of Frontenac, took the chair. We were in error on Saturday in saying that Mr. Kirkpatrick held that position. He was present, however, to lick things into shape. Chairman Waggoner made a fervid speech. He showed the aim of the party when he said this Province should be placed under the autocratic thumb of Sir John Macdonald. He groaned over what he termed the recklessness of the Ontario Government in manipulating the funds of the different municipalities, a statement about as truthful as those generally used by Conservatives in election times. A study of the record of the past ten years will show the economy of this county to what extent the municipalities have been assisted by the Government. The meeting became somewhat tired of the Chairman's vaporing. Mr. Waggoner perceiving this wound up by

CALLING FOR NOMINATIONS.

Then the real fun began. The first name submitted was that of Hiram A. Calvin, of Garden Island. This gentleman would have carried the convention, we are informed, but he declined the honor for reasons which he did not state. William Murray, who was in the field as an Independent Conservative, and who declared that he would stand until the last vote was polled, was induced to step into line. He felt satisfied that he would get the nomination. Dr. Darragh, also in the field as an Independent, declared that if a city man or Garden Islander entered the contest he would not withdraw. The action of the Convention, it appears, suited his views and he stepped down and out—his labor and toil of many weeks having gone for naught. The other candidates were D. J. Walker, A. P. Vanluven, J. B. Walkem, John McIntyre, R. Spooner, Dr McCammon, E. Joyner and H. Wilmot.

The delegates, feeling that a unanimous verdict could not otherwise be arrived at, decided to ballot, and their work proceeded tediously. The statement made by Dr. Darragh killed the hope of the city nominee. They retired with a sigh. Dr. Darragh and A. P. Vanluven, too, went by the boards. Then came the tug of war. Mr. Walker was anxious, Mr. Murray was confident, while Mr. Wilmot looked calm and serene. He thought he was the "solid Mul boon."

From an authoritative source we learn that the third ballot stood: Murray, 29; Walker, 25; Wilmot, 28. "As one as he was defeated," said a candidate "Walker threw his forces against Murray." Wilmot, who up to this time had been the dark horse, suddenly came to the front and took a majority of the votes. The ballot resulted in his favour. He was, therefore, declared the candidate and accepted the position. He would carry the flag of distress to the end.

OFF KILTER FOR DIFFERENT REASONS.

"The meeting," said a delegate to a Whig reporter, "was very enthusiastic and we go into the fight a solid band." The speaker sardonically smiled, and the reporter concluded that he was being given "a stall off." The various factions went home very much displeased at the way the wires had been pulled. A prominent member of the party was asked, "Has Mr. Wilmot's name been before the public for any length of time?"

"No; I only heard of it to-day," was the reply. "He was itching, however, for the honor I could see. I hope we can elect him, but the back men don't want him."

The time is short, but we hope that every Liberal in Frontenac will work to return a man who is not desirous of kicking the Mowat Government out of office and allowing the Ottawa authorities to manage our Provincial affairs. We hope the franchise that the Mowat Government bestowed on the farmers' sons will be exercised with discretion, that the men who gave them a voice in the affairs of the country will receive their support.

BLESSING OF THE CANDLES.

Sunday was Candlemas day, the feast of the Roman Catholic Church, in honor of the purification of the Virgin Mary, so-called for the great number of lights used on the occasion. The feast is supposed to have originated in the declaration of Simeon, that our Saviour was "to be a light to enlighten the Gentiles." The Roman Catholics usually consecrate all the candles and tapers which are to be used in their churches during the whole year. In Rome the Pope performs the ceremony himself, and distributes wax candles to cardinals and others who carry them in the Pope's palace. In Kingston the ceremony occurred yesterday. Father Kelly preached, the Bishop blessed the candles, and afterwards the usual procession with lighted tapers occurred.

UNIVERSITY BANQUET.

At its regular meeting on Saturday evening the Alma Mater Society decided to co-operate with the University Council in tendering a grand banquet to Chancellor Fleming at the close of the present session. As the Chancellor has announced his intention of giving a conversazione in addition the Convocation proceedings this year will probably be of even greater interest than usual.

FLOOD OF FIRE.

Sixty-five Thousand Barrels of Petroleum in Flames—Blazing Oil Down a Stream.

Cleveland, Feb. 3.—Rain has been falling continuously for 24 hours. The Cuyahoga River overflowed its banks. Houses, barns and factories are inundated. No loss of life has yet been reported.

Early this morning the waters of the Kingsbury rose and spread over the a hundred acres of lowland, surrounding a leaky petroleum still of the Standard oil works. The escaping oil refuse was swept down the stream and under the boilers of the Great Western oil works, which were nearly submerged.

The oil ignited and floated to a tank containing 30,000 barrels of crude petroleum, which were fired and exploded, spreading the blazing oil in all directions. Some was carried to Merall & Morgan's paraffine works, which were also fired. The flaming flood next attacked the Standard Oil Company's works in the valley, one after another of which took fire, until five 12,000 barrel tanks, two 3,000 barrel tanks, four stills, an agitator, engine house, 500 feet of railway trestle, and various works are destroyed. Not less than fifty barrels of oil are consumed. The machinery in the still was worth $250,000. Fire engines have been working all day, and a large force will be required all night.

Later—The eighth large storage tank of the Standard oil works has exploded. The loss of oil thus far is 65,000 barrels, worth $100,000.

James Johnson, or "Red River Jim" admitted that he had liquor in him. He went to the headquarters of the Salvation Army, thought it a good scheme to get converted. He became obstreperous and was led to the police cells. He was assessed to the tune of $10. He will live in a retired way for the next quarter.

John Ahern said that the liquor he drank had made him crazy and he knew nothing. Police Officer Small met him, found him abusive, and arrested him. He was very disorderly, and kicked the policeman in the shins. The officer in return struck Ahern on the arms and legs. Fined $4 and costs or 20 days imprisonment in the gaol.

RECOVERY OF STOLEN GOODS.

Sometime during Saturday night the peddling waggon of Samuel J. Dempsey was broken into and a large quantity of goods stolen from it. The waggon was in a shed in rear of the tenement houses on Princess Street, opposite Parkhill's. Detective Sullivan was informed of the affair and yesterday worked up the case, with the assistance of several of the police officers. Three search warrants were issued and this morning about 7:30 o'clock a hand sleigh and a posse of police proceeded to the head of Division street. The house of Samuel David, Upper Bagot, was surrounded and searched. A large amount of the plunder was obtained, some in the water closet and a huge roll of tweed, valued at $68, in the barn under the flooring. The whole family were placed under arrest, seven of them. A visit was next made to the house of James Fair, Colborne street, where more of the stolen property was recovered, including a roll of red flannel and a satchel full of articles. Fair (who is a County Constable) and wife were arrested, and all driven to the Police Court. About o'clock the hall was crowded and the prisoners were squeezed into the dock. There were: Samuel David, aged 40; Catharine, his wife, aged 18; Christopher, aged 22; Wesley, aged 20; Mary, aged 17; Albert, aged 17, and Annie, aged 16, were first arraigned. All, with the exception of Albert David, asked the Magistrate to try them summarily. Albert asked for a jury trial. The Fair couple asked the Magistrate to try them also. The cases were adjourned until to-morrow. The plunder secured is worth $194. It consists of black cashmeres valued at $10; tweed, $68; linen spools, $15; silk lace, $15; guernsey shirts, $10, and an innumerable array of buttons, shirt studs, Irish trimmings, etc. The present wife of Samuel David is his third or fourth. She carried into Court a young child. Mrs. David seemed to be the most affected of the offenders. The girls still wore their Sunday bangs and neckerchiefs. The parties will remain in the police cells over night. They will have a fine pic-nic no doubt.

EXPLOSION OF A COAL STOVE.

On Saturday, about midnight, as George Begg was passing down Brock street he heard the report of an explosion. He thought a safe was being blown, and ran along King street and found a fire in Welch's meat shop. Mr. Begg alarmed the police. Officer J. Nesbitt soon reached the spot. He tried to burst open the door, but could not. With his baton the window was smashed and the officer crawled in. The shop was filled with smoke and the floor was ablaze in two places. He grabbed a basket, passed it out of the window, and it was returned by G. Begg filled with snow. The fire was soon extinguished. With a lamp it was found that the coal stove had exploded, the front and sides being blown out. The live coals were thrown in two heaps. The explosion was caused by gas collecting in the stove owing to the dampers and drafts being shut off.
