HAY BUYERS.—G. E. Sabre, the hay merchant, has just returned form a trip to the points on the American shore where a market is had for his exports. He reports that there is an oversupply of fodder, in consequence of the large shipments that have been made before the new tariff came into force. The glut may break the present prices. The shipments of the Sabres so far this season amount to 7,000 tons.

MARINE HYMENEAL.—T. H. McGuire is evidently making a sensation in Grand Forks, Dakota. He has connected himself with T. S. Mettrivery in the law business. Mr. McGuire has also been practising before the District Court, and in one case defended a man charged with carving up another with a chisel. The prisoner was acquitted and a Dakota paper says Mr. McGuire's address to the jury had the desired effect. In another criminal case an acquittal followed through Mr. McGuire's efforts.

DEATH FROM WHISKEY.

On Sunday morning about 10 o'clock two men were found lying beside the new railroad building at Arden. One of them, McGovern, from Montreal, was dead, the other in a stupor. A jug of whiskey by a few feet from the dead man. It appears that on Saturday night a whiskey peddler appeared at one of the boarding shanties and after the men had drunk considerable he and McGovern started out. They were afterwards discovered in the condition we have described. One's sole ambition was to make sufficient money to buy the beverage which ultimately caused his death.

BATTERY MARCH OUT.

"B" Battery, and the attached officers and men of the Royal School of Gunnery, marched out this morning. A novel feature of the parade was one of the 40 pr. siege guns lately sent out from England. It was hauled with eight horses, four abreast and formed part of the mounted division which was in charge of Major Tasherean. The Garrison division was, like the mounted division, diversified by the different uniforms of attached men, from all branches of the service, now going through courses at the school. There were to be seen cavalry in both red and blue, and the rifle green and red. The infantry had their soldier like looking representatives. Major Short, Commanding the Battery, and Lt.-Col. Montmorency, Commandant, were present. Some practical advanced guard drills were gone through on the upper road.

AN EXCELLENT SCHEME.

A scheme of considerable importance to the Presbyterians of Kingston has been mooted and meets with general approval. It is the disposal of the Chalmers' Church property, on Earl street, the raising of St. Andrews' Church, and the erection upon the St. Andrews Church grounds of a grand structure for the two congregations, to be amalgamated. There are good reasons why the scheme should commend itself to the congregations. They would be able then to choose from the best preachers and the Church's schemes could be more formidably sustained as expenses would be less than at present. Besides the united congregations would together constitute the most influential Protestant body at present holding property here. The Brock Street congregation might desire to purchase Chalmers' Church and the talked of building not be built. The Brock street congregation would hardly care to amalgamate with the other Presbyterian bodies owing to a difference in the form of worship.

ST. GEORGE'S DAY.

ENGLISHMEN DINE TOGETHER AT THE "BRITISH AMERICAN"—AND HAVE A JOLLY GOOD TIME.

Parliament, the Nationalities, Civic Government and the Free Masons Discussed—A Strong Plea for Water Works.

Last evening the anniversary dinner of St. George's Society occurred, according to time honored custom, at the Free Masons say, at the British American Hotel. The tables were filled, and the tempting spread was another evidence of the care with which the Englishman in the clear atmosphere of Canada, just as in his own, dear fogs at home, looks after his gastronomic pleasures. The bill of fare was excellent.

The President, E. H. Smythe, presided, flanked by the Mayor and President of St. Andrew's Society. The Vice Presidents, Samuel Thornton and Chas. Smith, acted as croupiers. Regrets were received from Dean Lyster, Revs. R. V. Rogers, F. Prime and C. E. Cartwright, Col. Kehr, Col. Tritchell, J. J. Mason President of N. A. St. George's Union, the President of St. George's Society, Ottawa, and others. These cordial messages were received.

"To your festive gathering Toronto brethren send hearty cheers for St. George and Merrie England."

"One hundred and twenty jolly Englishmen, having a good time, send greeting to you."

THE LOYAL TOASTS.

The Chairman, in toasting "The Queen and Royal Family" regretted to hear by the latest telegrams that Her Majesty's physicians entertained grave suspicions as to her state of health, and therefore, the toast would not be an empty formality, but be drunk with fervency, for nowhere in the empire were warmer wishes felt for the welfare of the best sovereign that ever swayed the sceptre. Three cheers and chorus, "God Save the Queen."

The Chairman—"The Governor General and Dominion Parliament." The affability and ability of Lord Lorne were lauded, but the sting of the toast was in its tail, for the Dominion Parliament had a powerful sway over the destinies of the country. Heartily drunk.

The Chairman—"The Lieutenant Governor and Local Legislature," coupled with the genial member for Kingston Mr. Metcalfe, in response, thanked the Chairman for the compliments he had laid on so thickly, and as his public appearances were becoming a matter of such general interest, especially to reporters, he desired them to take a note of the fact that he wore a big white rose, which after vain applications to a number of lady friends he obtained from the wife of a genial medical friend. This important intelligence being safely delivered to the world, the popular member lauded the Lieutenant Governor and the Legislature, whose duty was not light nor important.

First Vice President—"The army navy and volunteers," lauding the noble deeds of the two first and the vim and loyalty of the last. Major Taschereau sang "Le Marseillaise." Major Short responded in a very neat speech. He loved the army and the profession of a soldier. It was a solemn and a noble calling, for war was waged for the good and honor of a country. England owes her greatness as a power to the men who hoisted St. George's cross in every accessible quarter of the globe. Canadian regulars had the same discipline and perfection now that the British army boasted of. In conclusion he paid a tribute to the memory of his brave brother officer lying in a grave at the foot of the pyramids.

ST. GEORGE AND MERRIE ENGLAND.

Past President Pense in proposing, "The Day and all who Honor It," uttered a panygeric upon the saint so worthily honored; upon a country so rich in all the elements of greatness, as to become the centre of arts and science, of political power and commercial strength, a veritable linch-pin in the wheel of modern progress, and upon a people of sufficient moral and religious excellence and generous characteristics to win respect for their very name. Just as St. George of old went forth to carry the banner of religion and civilization into heathen lands the Englishman of to-day carries his red cross banner into every quarter—Afghanistan, Zululand, Egypt—not only conquering in the name of civilization and progress, but taking upon himself the burden of enlightened civil government for the future, so that in any of these lands a foreigner may thank England that he is as safe personally as in his own house.

Song—"The Englishman"—President Smythe.

RIGHT HAND OF FELLOWSHIP.

Vice President Smith, with neat compliment, proposed the health of sister societies, with whom they were bound in the bond of that most excellent gift of charity. He lauded the work of the North American St. George's Union, felt that those organizations did good outside of their benevolent purposes for he was none the less a good Canadian because he loved the dear old land—"Jolly good fellows."

The President of St. Andrew's Society, J. McMillan, acknowledged the courtesy and good feeling shown towards the local societies at all times, and bore tribute to the work of England and Englishmen, upon whose soil he had spent many happy days.

Messrs. Jeremiah Meagher and Wm. Power responded in the absence of the President of St. Patrick's Society. The former, as the son of an Irishman and British soldier, was proud to see that while Ireland and England had their family quarrels they were always united shoulder to shoulder in fighting the battles of the empire. (Applause.)

Major Tasherean responded for the societies of St. Jean Baptiste. The followers of the St. John and St. George had longed worked together, except on the Orange Bill at Ottawa the other day. (Laughter.) But as this was not a party gathering he would merely express the pride that followers of his patron Saint had done their duty well to this country.

Song—"Castles in the air"—R. M. Horsey.

THE CORPORATION AND WATER.

Treasurer Ross in toasting "The Mayor and Corporation," as a teetotaller called upon them to hurry up the new water works, and as St. George's Society helped the city in charitable cases he hoped for some help and encouragement from them. Song—"Jolly good fellows" and solo from Mr. John Dewar.

Mayor Livingston made a longsty and feeling reply, in which he said he did not expect to please all, but would state his opinions fearlessly, giving to citizens and aldermen alike the respect due to others. The Chairman of the Water Works Committee had not called the committee together as they were not ready for action yet, but would do so. The Council of this year would put forth a work hitherto unknown to Kingston—its consolidated by laws. He commended St. George's Society for its kindness to the poor. The brethren never sat down to their own Christmas or holiday cheer until they saw that that those not so well off were provided for.

Ald. Creegan, in responding also, presented the unusual sight of one tailor following another. He felt out of place in this toast, since he had dwelt in "the shades of Raglan and Wellington" and felt it a pride to speak for the army. The City Council was a leading institution in one sense, for people paying, at the Opera House regularly when a better show could be had for nothing at the civic midnight matinee. The corporation did the very best with the means at its disposal, which were curtailed by over careful Mayors. The streets were in a filthy state, and the aldermen get jilty well abused for it, though they grab all the money they can for their wards and don't get a cent for their time.

THE CRACKED PROFESSIONS.

Secretary LeRichout, in toasting the wine men, paid a tribute to the concentration of thought as leading the van in civilization. Its effects on science shown through Newton, Jenner and Blackstone, were visible in the labors and discoveries of thousands in this decade.

Rev. W. B. Carey was pleased again to meet at St. George's board and best tribute to the good it had accomplished England depends upon her learned professions more than upon anything else, and speaking from his experience of the two countries, though the heads of Canadian colleges were yet drawn from English universities, he knew this country to possess the more intelligent community, taking man for man.

Ald. Whiting, in response to the bar, spoke of its enlightened character and the chivalry with which it undertook the defence of the weak even at the point of danger. The cross of St. George might also be carried again and again to victory, but the lawyer had to bind and hold together the elements of their victory to make them effective.

Dr. Saunders, after acknowledging for the medicos, urged upon the corporation the necessity of the proposed extended water works. The expense should be a minor consideration. The poor are dependent on well water, which can never be pure in a crowded town, and until a good supply was secured sickness and misery would attend.

THOSE OTHER PROFESSIONS.

Vice-President Thornton, as an old railroader, toasted "Trade and Commerce," and T. F. Orout responded, speaking well as a new comer for the advanced state of the artisans and tradesmen of the city, and for the honor with which they came out of each commercial crisis.

Mr. R. M. Horsey also replied, and claimed the highest credit also for the mercantile marine and the workingmen. Kingston was holding a high head as a manufacturing centre and might her shadow in that respect grow larger year by year!

Past President Creegan toasted "The Ladies" and Capt. Short responded in a witty speech, concluding with the remark that if Mother Washington did raise a boy who would not tell a lie, she had never placed him under the temptation of running for Frontenac Ward!

Vice-President Smith, in honoring the press, had particular pleasure in doing so in view of the censure passed upon it. The local press had the confidence of the citizens. R. J. B. Pense acknowledged the warmth of the feeling expressed, and while admitting the impossibility of perfection in the press, claimed that it was the best advocate the city had, and the unremitting industry and the care bestowed upon it were not to be found in any other profession. It would be strange if in the million of types daily set up and the thousands of articles put weekly on paper some things were not picked out and condemned. But he trusted it would be condemned yet by all that its offences were overjudged and that local editors had the morality of the community as much at heart as that of their own families.

R. W. Shannon said that it was so evident that the papers were very wicked that they were resolved upon improvement and would at once cut down the reports of sermons.

A CONVICT ACQUITTED.

Howard's "Peaching" Does not Convict Montgomery of Burglary—Howard's True Name.

W. Montgomery, at present serving a sentence in the Penitentiary, was recently taken to London to answer a charge of having broken into the banking house of F. S. Clarke, and with the assistance of two other burglars. Allen who recently committed suicide here, and White, (in prison here) stolen $1,000. The burglary occurred on November 25th, 1888. Montgomery pleaded "not guilty" and the trial proceeded. James Howard, the witness who felt aggrieved at the way he was treated, turned Queen's evidence. He was standing his trial at St. Thomas, gave evidence to the effect that he became acquainted with Montgomery, in 1880, that in June, 1881, Montgomery told him that he (M.) and American accomplices had

ROBBED A BANK IN LONDON.

Montgomery said the two Americans went into the bank. The door was locked by him, that he strolled about the street till an agreed signal was hung out that the job was done. As they went down the street after with the spoils a dispute took place. Montgomery and one of the Americans were grasped by a policeman, and he attempted to draw a revolver, but failed to shoot, then escaped, losing his hat. Montgomery walked to St. Thomas and on the way secured a hat. In September, 1881, witness said he and Montgomery left Toronto, arrived in Woodstock September 13th, and went to St. Thomas via London. While coming to the latter place Montgomery said, "I must be careful, as the London policemen may get hold of me."

AN INTERESTING HISTORY.

Howard, on cross examination, told his history which is interesting. He said "I will be 30 years old next September, and was born in Ireland. Left there when I was seven years old and came to Toronto, where I was brought up and lived most of my life. I never had the name of a professional thief, although I have committed crime. I was all right until I met Montgomery. I was first convicted of burglary in 1876, and was sentenced to three years and nine months imprisonment. I got out in June, 1880, was again convicted in St. Thomas in 1881 on a charge of shooting at a constable, but I never shot at a man in my life nor never drew a revolver. I was sentenced to ten years imprisonment for the shooting that another man did. My parents live in Titusville, Pennsylvania. I have been in the States, but not as a crackman. I know no more about breaking open a safe than you do, addressing Mr. Meredith. I was never convicted in the States nor imprisoned there. I have been known as O'Neil, having taken that name from my uncle who raised me. I was convicted in St. Thomas under the name of Howard, and in Toronto as O'Donnell. My right name is Sullivan. I worked on the Toronto & Nipissing Railroad in 1880 and on Pennsylvania railroads also. I first met Montgomery in Toronto. I had a message for him from his brother-in-law, who was in the Penitentiary. I met him in 1881 on the street in Toronto with Parsons, who was arrested here some months ago for robbery."

STATEMENT NOT SUPPORTED.

The Crown attempted to corroborate Howard's statements, but did not succeed. The jury acquitted Montgomery. It was shown that Montgomery was in Toronto at the time the burglary occurred. The convict White, taken up to be a witness for the defence, became ill and could not be heard. People who saw White state that he is failing very rapidly.

RETURNED AGAIN.

William David has been away for a year to Syracuse, there keeping a saloon. He did not like the business, sold out and came back to Kingston, his old home. There is no place like home. He has leased the store and premises formerly occupied by Mr. Dunnison. Mr. Wm. David intends to open out a broker store on the first of May. The store is suitable for the business, there being lots of room in it. Many people will be glad of his return in business, for he is a good buyer and seller. We may expect some cheap watch crystals about that time, as he intends to have a cargo brought down from Toronto to start with.
