PROBS.—Fresh to strong southeasterly shifting to westerly winds, cloudy to fair weather, with local rains; not much change in temperature.

J. E. HUTCHESON will sell a lot of furniture, bagatelle board, balls, etc., at T. Makins', William Street, on Monday at 10:30 o'clock.

ENTERTAINMENT.—On Monday evening there will be a most attractive entertainment in St. Paul's School Room. Excellent programme.—Advt.

ANYONE buying a carpet without seeing Richmond & Boyden's immense stock will miss a grand opportunity to get a good choice at the lowest prices such goods have ever been offered at. See advt.

CHANCERY COURT.—The Court of Chancery opens here on 23rd inst., and there is a probability that the docket will be the largest for many years. Some of the cases will be extremely interesting. The Chancery Division is becoming very popular.

BURGLARY.—On Sunday night a burglar entered the room of F. C. Clarke of Lawrence, Kansas, brother of J. K. Clark, Kingston, and taking his garments from the bed post rifled the pockets taking a silver watch, gold chain and about $40 in money. F. C. is Secretary of the Hamilton, straw lumber Company.

A SAUCY TRAMP.—Yesterday a tramp entered a house at Cataraqui and asked for a meal. The lady kindly spread before him a collation of bread, milk, cold meat and butter. He looked at it and remarked, "That's a — fine meal to set a man down to." He took a drink of milk and left. Tramps will not be well received at this farm residence in future.

LAYING A CORNER STONE.—Mrs. Geo. E. Shields, of the Catholic Church, Brockville will assist in the musical services in connection with the laying of the corner stone of the Sarbot Lake Church. There have been over 600 tickets sold. The train leaves Kingston at 7:30 o'clock, going north, and on the return trip leaves Sharbot Lake at 4 o'clock. Great preparation are being made for the ceremonies.

RECRUITING MEN.—Sergeant Phillips of "A" Battery is in Montreal looking for recruits. The deficiency in the strength of the battery is due mainly to the leaving the corp. after their three years' service, of men enlisted in the west before the removal of the battery from Kingston and who, returning to the limestone city, enlist into "B" Battery. Nearly forty men have returned to Kingston in this way since the change took place.

CONFERENCE COMMITTEE.

The General Committee of the Primitive Methodist Church has been meeting in Toronto. Rev. H. Harris, of this city, was in attendance. Revs. J. Dennis and W. Hudgins asked to retire from the Ministry, and Rev. T. Bryant desired to return to England. Consent was given. It was decided to hold the Conference about the 20th of May, in the Carlton Street Church, Toronto. A scale of payment into the Superannuated Fund so as to level up with the ministers of the Methodist Church of Canada was submitted as agreed upon in the basis of union. It will be considered at the Conference. It was stated the Church would require about thirteen additional ministers if the union was not consummated.

It will occur on Thursday, May 17th, at the Cataraqui Driving Park. A deposit of $100 has been made. Boyd was seen last evening at the Burnett House. He is a lithe active fellow, standing 6 ft. 1 in., weighs 148 lbs. and has plenty of muscle. He will train in Toronto and probably at the time of the race he reduced in weight to about 140 lbs. He is an extremely good looking young man. He left for Napanee this morning.

The land on which the Salvation barracks will be built costs $1,600. The building will cost $3,000. It is hoped that the structure will be a decent looking one, not like that of the Army in Toronto.

A BATTLE WOUND.

RECALLING EVENTS OF THE PAST—GOSSIP TWITCHELL ON THE BATTLE OF THE WILDERNESS.

Of Several Comrades Wounded by Mr. McFarlane Survives—A Wound Which Nearly Cost Him His Life—A Pleasant Chat.

No man fighting in the city to-day has suffered more for his country than Col. M. H. Twitchell, the United States Consul at this port. He was most seriously wounded, as can be seen by any one who drops into his pleasant office on Clarence Street. Despite the fact that he has suffered much by troubles in Louisiana, while a legislator, he is jolly, kind and affable to all who meet him. Upon his left temple, and passing back on a level with his eye, is a deep ridge. We had been quite curious to know what was the cause of it but not being so inquisitive as to want to know what concerned a man's personal appearance the subject was not broached until Thursday when the history of the wound was told. The reporter during the morning sought the Consul's cosy office for a few moments rest and to escape a rain shower. As he stepped inside the Consul, in answer to the question "What's the news?" said "I have just read an article that is extremely interesting to me, though it may not be anyone else. The paper was picked up and the journalist was shown an article which a soldier had been writing from Fredericksburg, in which he described a in that vicinity. The writer said he entered the old Exchange Hotel at Fredericksburg and while eating his dinner thought of the days during the rebellion of 1863, when the old building was an hospital. The writer closed the repast and mused upon the mournful events of the past. In the hotel and mayhap in the very room, Twitchell, Amidon, Fillie, Fraser, Fairsworth and scores of others, groaned beneath the scalpel; there it was that Captain Lillie, who commanded the 4th Vermont Regiment, died while an operation was being performed upon him.

VISIT TO THE OLD BATTLEFIELDS

TELLING A STORY OF SUFFERING

When asked about some of the old scenes, the Consul sank and his eyes moistened as he spoke, that out of all the soldiers mentioned in the report he alone survived. They were his old comrades, and all of them were wounded in the same battle and within a space of half an hour. All were placed in the one hotel room. "Where was this?" "At the battle of the Wilderness. The battle was a fierce one. Lillie was in command of our Company and I was his Second Lieutenant. The First Lieutenant, Amidon, was in another part of the field. We were waiting for orders when the word was given "Advance" by the field officers. Lillie repeated it, and just as he did so he was shot in the breast. He was burned off the field, so I understand, and I was left in command, and taking up the word called on the Company to advance in order to cover the wounded who were being cut down by dozens. The Company had advanced some distance when I gave the order to lie down. I was sleeping when a ball struck me on the temple and made this great ridge. I was rendered insensible and so far as I can learn was carried off the field, though contrary to orders, and put in hospital. In thirty minutes two-thirds of the troops were killed, and every officer, commissioned and non commissioned, except a Sergeant and Corporal, cut off. Hoomer, the writer of the story I have just read, was Corporal. In the battle in close proximity to each other. There was not fifteen rods between the opposing forces. The battle occurred in a field where bush and shrubbery predominated. Its fierce pace lasted only half an hour, but it was not concluded for a day and a half. Who won? Well that is a disputed point. The army of the North claim to have secured the advantage, but a Southerner would call it a draw battle." Colonel Twitchell was off duty, owing to the wound, for exactly one hundred days. He returned to the service and was a participant in all the battles in the last campaign. He was at the final charge of the Appotomax. The regiment to which he was attached formed a portion of the column which was to have charged on General Lee's line had not the commander of the Southern Confederacy surrendered. In answer to the question, "What became of the comrades named in the article just read?" the Colonel said Amidon died from a second serious wound. Fairworth was afterwards killed while on the field of action; and Foster returned home after the war, and was made United States Marshall of Vermont. He was the man who captured the Fenian, General O'Neil, at the time of the Canadian invasion in 1866. He died some years ago.

THE FIGHTING WAS ALL DONE

RE-NUMBERING THE DEAD.

The 30th of this month in the States will be memorial day when flowers will be strewn over the graves of the dead soldiers in New York State.

NOT TO BE CLOSED YET.

The house of the British American Hotel has not closed the doors and will not until next week; then the premises will shut, the first time in many years. The British American Hotel is an old institution and has always been liberally patronized. It is one of Kingston's oldest buildings. Sheriff Rattan, over thirty years ago, stood in a citizen's house, and, looking out of the window, pointed to the hotel and said he had known the building to be then standing for over 50 years. It is this over 60 years old. It has had many proprietors. In 1842 it was the swell establishment and in it many great parliamentary schemes were hatched out. Jos. Daly, a right royal host, was in charge in those days and ran the hotel well. He gave the house the name it has since borne. The other proprietors were Messrs. Macdonald, James Patterson, Alexander Gilbert & N. Kent,—White, W.E. Swales and W. Davis. Mr. Davis has been in possession of the hotel for ten or twelve years. The new addition on Clarence Street was added some five or six years ago.

A FAREWELL EVENT.

The Saved Army Entertaining Mr. McFarlane Prior to His Departure from the City—A Happy Meeting.

A few days ago it was suggested that Mr. J. H. McFarlane, late Manager of the St. Lawrence & Chicago Forwarding Company, should be entertained prior to his removal to the west. The Saved Army, with which the gentleman has been prominently identified, at once adopted the idea, and in a couple of days completed arrangements for the event, which occurred last evening in the Orange Hall. The attendance was very large, and the proceedings of a most interesting character. The Captain of the Saved Army occupied the chair, and near to him were seated Mr. McFarlane, his family and intimate friends. A splendid tea was first served and an hour spent in the discussion of the viands and topics of the day. Then came the speeches of several gentlemen, all expressive of the regret which they felt in view of the early departure of Mr. McFarlane, and the sundering of ties strong and affectionate.

EXPRESSIONS OF FEELING.

Rev. Mr. Cartwright spoke of Mr. McFarlane as being one of the principal originators of the Saved Army—a worthy, upright man, one of generous style and always active and foremost in the performance of Christian work. His counsel and advice were good, and the speaker hoped he would do well wherever located and whatever his occupation.

Duet by the Misses Marks.

Rev. Dr. Jackson testified to the pleasure which he experienced on the occasion, and he said he nothing could be more convincing of the respect and esteem in which Mr. McFarlane was held than that meeting and the sentiments of those attending it. He alluded to Mr. McFarlane's connection with the religious movement in the village, and spoke of him as one of God's soldiers who would do his duty in any field of labour. Addressing the Saved Army he said that they would encounter many difficulties, but that they should endure many hardships for the Great Captain's sake. It was a matter for regret that one of the principals in the movement was going away, but they had the consciousness that he could do good elsewhere. The meeting was the best testimony to Mr. McFarlane's usefulness and worth.

Mr. J. R. Walkom sang "Jack O' Hazlestone." Loudly applauded.

EXPRESSIONS OF CHARACTER.

Mr. Rattray, of the Presbyterian Church, stated his mingled feelings in contemplating the departure of Mr. McFarlane, but he was sure to go in his good work until the Master said, "Well done good and faithful servant."

The soldiers sang, "Nothing but the blood of Jesus."

Rev. Mr. Buchanan, Methodist, had since he attended the meeting learned something, the value of a character, and that exhibited by Mr. McFarlane while in Portsmouth was worthy of emulation. There never was a time when he could be better spared, however, as the Saved Army would continue the service in which he had so actively engaged.

Song, Miss McFarlane, very sweetly rendered.

Rev. Mr. Brown, the senior Methodist minister on the Cataraqui circuit, dwelt upon the undenominational nature of the Saved Army's platform. It was, as it were, a bridge which spanned the gulf between the articles of the Anglican Church and the Presbyterian Confession of Faith.

VENERABLE CONVERTS SPEAK.

Mr. A. Cameron, one of the oldest soldiers, made a very feeling address. He deplored the departure of Mr. McFarlane, but hoped God would raise up one to take his place as an active leader in religious work.

Mr. J. Schroeder, another venerable Christian worker paid his tribute to Mr McFarlane.

Song by Miss Mooney, "Where is my boy to night?" a selection which has made converts of many in this city.

MR. MCFARLANE'S LAST WORDS.

Captain Wellis, of the Army, now introduced Mr. McFarlane, who spoke with difficulty and considerable emotion. He expressed his surprise at the size of the meeting and his gratification with the demonstration in his favour. His friends had left nothing undone in order to manifest their appreciation of his service and to show that he had their entire sympathy. He spoke of the evangelical nature of their meetings, of their independence of creeds, and above all of their courage as soldiers of the Lord Jesus Christ. The recent split in the Army he regretted, but after all it had done no harm, perhaps it was for the best. He counselled the Army to stand by their colours and to brave much for the cause they espoused. Many of them he might never see again on earth, but he hoped to meet them on the other shore.

Anthem by Miss Mooney, the Misses Marks and James Schroeder. Then Lieut. Atkins made a few remarks and the meeting closed.

The affair reflected a great deal of credit on the Committee of Management, because of the tasteful manner in which everything was arranged and the very superior quality of the viands. There were four tables, three of them lengthwise and one crosswise at the upper end of the hall where the guest and his lady, the rev. gentlemen and others sat. The crowd was so large that there was not room for all at one sitting.

ADMIRED IN NEW YORK.

The pair of black mares, known as the prize winners at the exhibition, sent to New York last Fall by Mr. H. J. Church, are attracting the admiration of the New Yorkers, and have been the subject of favorable comments in the papers. They have appeared on Broadway occasionally, in fine weather, driven by the veteran W. H. Vanosdt, late manager of Fleetwood Park, and are said to be the finest pair of mares in that city. They are known there as "Midnight" and "Darkness."

SORE THROAT.—The best cure we know of for sore throat is a gargle of Pain Killer and water—it acts like magic.

BE LIBERAL, BOYS.

The Salvation Army Barrack Scheme—The Newspapers Always First—Pleading for Aid.

The barracks of the Salvation Army were jammed last evening to the doors, demonstrating the great hold its methods have upon the people of Kingston. When the offering was being taken up the petite Captain arose and in a voice that has won the hearts of many announced the future operations. Sunday's services would be held in the City Hall, and they would continue to be held there, when the Hall was not otherwise engaged, until the barracks were built. The Army would have a hallelujah march out on Saturday night at 7 o'clock. "The gun is loaded and ready to be fired," she observed, a remark that caused a smile.

THE BARRACKS TO BE BUILT.

"The papers are ahead of us again," she said. "They always tell things before I can do it, but God bless them anyway. We are going to have a barracks on Queen Street, at the foot of Bagot Street. This situation I know will please everybody. When we thought of building on Wellington Street our friends up street did not like the idea. They said the location was too far down, and when we spoke of building on Princess Street, near Division, our friends down town said the place was too far up, but now that we are to have our barracks in the centre of the city no one can complain. It would be a credit to the city to have the old rickety buildings now on the site pulled down and the Salvation Army should be praised for undertaking the work. So send along your cheques and I'll get them cashed. The work of demolition, so far as the old structure is concerned will be at once begun and I am anxious to see the new work begun, for then I'll know we are accomplishing something. The bricks and mortar will soon be there. Don't be backward in asking for tickets on which to write the amounts of your subscriptions. Call on me and I'll give them to you, well correctly. I'll have to do considerable begging until our barracks are up so you can prepare yourself for it. I thank God that he has saved me so high that I am not afraid to ask for money. It used to be very embarrassing to me to beg, but I don't have that feeling now. Give liberal friends, and you'll save me the bother of begging it. Everybody think of what I have said and help us.

GIVING THEIR TESTIMONIES.

The testimonies followed. One convert intimated that salvation had given him a standing in society. He was respected and persons who called him "Jack" previously now called him "Mr."

Dr. Wilson didn't intend to speak, but he was a soldier always and had to obey orders. He made a short address. The testimonies of the converts, he declared, carried more weight and power with them than many sermons.

Captain Abbie then followed with a most earnest and effective address. She appealed to the audience to accept the offers of mercy. She said that if she thought she was there to amuse the people she would pack her trunk and leave the city at once.

The meeting was one of the best and most orderly yet held in the hall.
