LICENSE DIFFICULTY.

Now that the Dominion Parliament has passed a License Act there seems to be a doubt as to what will be its fate. That it is illegal some do not hesitate to declare, and that Mr. Mowat will resist the attempt to legislate away the rights which the Province has enjoyed since Confederation we cannot for a moment doubt. The people, too, did not anticipate the difficulty in which they find themselves at present. They knew that the constitutionality of the measure would be tested—such was a circumstance to be expected in the natural order of events—but they did not give a thought until recently to the dilemma of obeying the new law before the old law was shown to be no longer in existence and effective. Mr. Hodge has been the leading agitator for the new measure; he did what he could to dictate its conditions and had some of the clauses so emasculated that the Act has been called by some people after him instead of after Sir John Macdonald. He was asked the other day what he was going to do under the circumstances, and he replied that next year he purposed making application under both laws for licenses; to await the action of the Government and a decision as to which should control the liquor business before asking for a refund of the duplicate fee. Others say they will do the same. But what of those who cannot place a large sum on deposit while the question of Provincial rights is being argued? They must find the situation embarrassing; some of them may be virtually legislated out of business. What Mr. Mowat is going to do we cannot conjecture, but we may be sure he will not abandon a position which he has held without question for sixteen years.

ORANGE BILL AGAIN

The Ottawa Citizen seems to suffer under the apprehension that the Grand Orange Lodge, which meets this week in St. Catharines, will be disposed to censure certain Orangemen for contributing to the defeat of the Incorporation Bill. If the brethren do as the Citizen has good reason to believe they will proper action will be taken. If the men who have been guilty of duplicity are brought to time, are dealt with as their conduct has richly merited, the position of the Order will be very much improved, and an effectual check will be placed upon double dealing. The Citizen wants the Liberals who did not vote for the measure censured. The Liberals were not pledged to support it. The Orangemen, in meeting assembled at Ottawa, declared that that they had gone pretty much the one way in the elections, that they had supported the candidates of a certain party (Conservative) with the understanding that Parliament would give them what they desired in the shape of special legislation. The Liberals were not expected to get the Tory leaders out of their dilemma; the Liberals were not responsible for the bolt of the French Canadians; the Liberals were not in any way involved when Sir John made anti-pronunciamentos which he found it impossible to fulfill; the Liberals did not induce Mr. Merrick (one of the Committee appointed by the Orangemen to assist Mr. John White in pushing the Bill through the House) to act contrary to his commission and seek to have the proceedings discontinued because they were injurious to a party name; the Liberals were not the parliamentarians whom Mr. White castigated, charging them with having done what they could to check his progress and frustrate his purpose. The Liberals have, therefore, a clear record, and do not view the meeting of the Grand Lodge with alarm. The Citizen cannot free its party of the blame which undoubtedly attaches to it for the defeat of the Orange Bill. The Orangemen have been deceived once too often, and if they will profit by past experience they will be, politically, more independent than they have been for some years.

ANOTHER NEAT SHUFFLE.

Even if we had advocated exemption for the M. T. Co., it is one thing to give aid to the needy and quite another to hand over money which you can't spare to those who are doing well. This by no means proves the right of the M. T. Co. to remission of their taxes, but it points out how much more indefensible was the demand of the Locomotive Works.—News.

[illegible] say, surely that the M. T. Co. needed exemption any more than the Locomotive Works? In a previous article it insinuated that the M. T. Co. had not paid a dividend for four years. Was that statement founded on facts? Has the M. T. Co. not paid dividends right along? The St. Lawrence & Chicago Company's affairs must not be confounded with those of the larger and more prosperous concern with which an amalgamation has recently taken place, and so in answering our question we want no equivocation. We do not understand that the city is asked to hand over any money to the Locomotive Works. That institution has been totally exempt from taxes. The Company to which the favour was granted became defunct and their successors prosperous by reason of good management, asked for a continuation of it. The Council did not grant total exemption, but agreed to let the petitioners off with an assessment of $10,000, equal to the value of the land. The City will, therefore, gain by a taxation which has not been made for some eight years. Of this fact the editor of the News seems to be wilfully blind or lamentably ignorant.

We have at length extorted from our contemporary the confession that its argument "by no means proves the right of the M. T. Co. to remission of their taxes," which, with the admission of a few days ago, that it did not so strenuously oppose the exemption to that Company as it might have done, constitute a curious commentary upon the vaunted wisdom of some great mind. In our opinion the News is becoming ridiculously absurd. But of course it says we have not the natural ability to understand its disinterested, unbiased, its refined and original thoughts; the Council has not had the opinions sent to it according to its instructions. It would be interesting to know who is the city can appreciate the "fantastic contradictions" of which the above are specimens.

PITHY PARAGRAPHS.

Volunteering in Great Britain.

The strength of the Volunteers of Great Britain appears to be gradually diminishing. The number of Yeomanry Cavalry inspected last year was 11,173, a smaller number than in any year for 12 years. The numbers wanted to complete the establishment of the Militia on January 1, 1883, were 25,638, a greater number than at any period since 1876.

Election in Laval.

In Laval County a meeting of electors has been held for the purpose of choosing a candidate. The choice apparently lies between Mr. L. O. David and Mr. Bastien. Should a suitable candidate be chosen there is reasonable expectation that the Mousseau candidate will be defeated, as assistance from the Mon. Mousseau, Bellerose and DeBoucherville is expected.

Across the Saskatchewan.

Trains are expected to cross the South Saskatchewan River, Canadian Pacific Railway, on June 5th. The river is one of the most magnificent streams on the continent. The country all the way to Calgary is very favorable for railway construction, and it is expected that the graders will reach that point by the 1st of August and the tracklayers fifteen days afterwards.

Again Newly Cornered.

We have again cornered the News. It said that "leading Reformers condemned the course of the Whigs upon the exemption question, and when asked for the names it says it "does not intend to commit a breach of confidence in order to justify our curiosity." Indeed! If our contemporary had said that it did not intend to give the names because it could not, and that it was better to be under the suspicion of being than to be found guilty thereof, it would have expressed the situation more precisely. We could say that the leading Tories of the city have frequently expressed their contempt for the organ which presumes to reflect their opinion, would such a declaration be acceptable to our contemporary? If so, it is welcome to the exchange of courtesies.

Progress of Canada.

George Hagen, of Montreal, gives some figures showing the unexampled progress of Canada since the introduction of railways. The paid up capital of the banks in June, 1858, was $17,388,000; in April, 1883, it had reached $54,000,000. The circulation in 1858 was only $7,900,000; in 1883 it had increased, including Dominion notes to $55,000,000. The deposits in June, 1858, were $9,100,000, and in 1883 they had increased to $153,000,000. The discounts in 1858 reached $30,000,000, and in 1883 they had risen to $160,000,000. The volume of trade in 1860 was $40,000,000; in 1883 it had increased to $130,000,000, and in 1882 to about $210,000,000. The trade of Canada in 1881 was larger in proportion to population than that of the United States, while our shipping, again in proportion to population, was more than four times as large.

A PLEASING RECOGNITION.

A pleasing evidence of the value of the pulpit services of the Rev. LeRoy Hooker, late pastor of the Dominion Methodist Church and likely to be appointed pastor of the Sydenham Street Church here, will be found in the following address, presented him by some twenty members of the Dominion Legislature who were attendants of his church:

"We, the undersigned members of the House of Commons, understanding that Rev. Mr. Hooker is about to leave the city to take the opportunity of expressing our appreciation of his services and of reciprocating his acceptance of the sum opposite our respective names."

The purse was well filled and the Citizen says Mr. Hooker is to be congratulated upon the testimony then borne to his great talents and high character as a preacher.

At the meeting of the Official Quarterly Board of the Dominion Church it was moved by Professor Kingston, seconded by Mr. A. P. Bradley: "That the members of the Quarterly Official Board desire to place upon record their high appreciation of the lovable character and sterling work of their pastor, Rev. LeRoy Hooker, their gratitude to God for the blessing received during his ministrations among them, and their earnest prayers that the Great Head of the Church will abundantly prosper him in his new home, and bless him with his dear family for time and eternity."

All those to whom the reverend gentleman is personally known will heartily endorse the sentiments expressed towards him.

VISITING FUNCTIONARIES.

On Saturday Mr. R. Matheson, Principal of the Deaf and Dumb Asylum, arrived here on a visit to Dr. Metcalfe, of Rockwood Asylum. He returns to Belleville to-morrow. This afternoon Dr. Burgess, Assistant Medical Superintendent of the London Lunatic Asylum, reached the city, also on a visit to Dr. Metcalfe. Drs. Metcalfe and Burgess and Mr. Matheson were connected with the one institution, and their meeting here has been exceedingly pleasant. Dr. Burgess has obtained a three months' leave of absence, and accompanies Prof. Macoun, of the Government Botanical Department, on an extensive exploring tour in the Eastern Provinces.

Teeth ache, do not despair. Dr. E. C. West's Nerve and Brain Treatment will cure Hysteria and all nervous troubles. Sold by W. J. Wilson.

IN THE CLOCK TOWER.

A Grand View of the City and Country—The Scribbling Propensity of The People.

The view of the city of Kingston, as it shows in the rippling shoals of Lake Ontario in the miles from the clock tower is magnificent, more especially in the spring time, when the sun shines brightly upon the green as they are putting on their dress of beautiful green. The location of Kingston is second to that of no other city in Canada. Will a friend a member of the Whig staff yesterday mounted the winding stairs that lead to the clock tower. Soon the door was reached, and pushing up one of the windows a grand view was obtained. But still higher they went and stood in the dark chamber adjacent to the dials of the clock. The ambition of youth was to mount to the highest point, and this was done by climbing a narrow ladder upon which time had left its impress. Pushing aside the covering the pure light of heaven struck their brows, and crawling through the opening they stood beside the bell that day by day announces the flight of time or changes forth wild alarms of fire. Looking at the small tower and bell from the pavement beneath one has little conception of the size of the place and of the ponderous copper sounder. The tower is large and commodious and stands ten or fifteen feet higher than the bell. Railings give a person security while he obtains of the surroundings. Looking over the water eastward one sees Barriefield standing out very prominently on one of Pittsburg's elevations, its church pretenting a pretty appearance. The winding gravel road up the hill is soon lost to view over its brow. Milton Island and the placed river lie as if at one's feet, while Cedar Island and the Fort seem close at hand. Garden Island, to the south east, surrounded on all sides by ships, looks like a mere speck alongside of Wolfe Island. Simcoe Island, with its mantle of trees, and Nine Mile Point with its lighthouse, appear to be near at hand, and the sound and the surge of the crested waters imply a scene not soon forgotten. The dim outline of Amherst Island is seen lying in the distance. But it was the city itself that held attention the most. Its handsome buildings, surmounted by spire or dome, its brick residences and newly painted houses, relieved by thousands of trees of emerald hue, combined to form a picture well worth a long contemplation. While in the bell tower, viewing the scene, the tinkle of the tambourine was heard and soon a small band of Salvationists marched upon the square and began their service. They looked like little children in size. Their singing, notwithstanding the strong breeze, was wafted to the lookers-on from the city beneath. The Cadets, in their scarlet uniforms and white helmets passed, looking like machines, so silently and stately did they move. On the other side the artillery, with bonnets and glittering swords, marched along headed by two bagpipes wearing different garbs. People moved hither and thither in the bright sunlight, dressed in their Sunday attire, many with prayer books and psalm books. Just then there was a thundering noise and the clang of the bell as it chimed forth the hour of eleven sounded like the discharge of a dozen guns. "Let's go down," said the friend, and reaching the perilous ladder he and the scribe were soon on solid ground.

AN ENCHANTING VIEW

MANIA FOR SCRIBBLING.

It is a remarkable fact that there is an inborn desire on the part of everybody who goes into the dome to leave something that they will be remembered by, and to this end the walls from the second flight up are scribbled over and bear the names of thousands of visitors. It is interesting to work out the chirography. The writing has been done with pencil, and on the wall around the outside of the clock dozens of names are written above each other and crosswise. The scribe who indited "God's names, like their lives, are always found in public places," was somewhat correct in his philosophy. Of course a name was inscribed at the foot of the doggerel and another jotted down underneath, "And just to prove the proverb true, I see you put your name thereto." The names of the visitors have been written since the bell and clock were placed in position. The desire of many to have their name highest on the wall is quite clear, and it would appear as though some had undertaken perilous feats in order to place their chirography at the top of the heap. Like the boy who wanted his name above George Washington's on the Natural bridge in Virginia some have taken great risks to gratify their ambition. "J. Hanley" and "W. Ronton," with awkward scrawl, have the honour of being first on the roll of fame, as it were, but "Geo. R. Rower, Syracuse, N.Y.," is not far behind. The names of people from all parts of the world are in all manner of places.

A PATRIOTIC SONAT.

Standing in such a high position, a [illegible] generally comes over most persons, followed by that of sentimentality. It report be true many a tale of love has been unfolded at the dizzy height and lovers have plighted their troth beneath the clanging bell. Whether it was a love-sick girl who indited the following lines we cannot say, but the handwriting is a woman's and she seems to have been laboring under a sweet yet heavy sorrow. Her pathetic essay is: "Here in the golden sunlight I am sitting dreaming of the far off future, wondering what it has in store for poor humble me. Ah! could I remain as I am to-day, light-hearted, gay and blithesome, with no care to cloud my brow, no sorrow to touch my heart. But vain wish. Sorrow lies in my pathway. It may be in the depths of the years to come or perhaps its footsteps follow close to my own. Alas! how short, how fleeting are the pleasures of this life, how everlasting the pleasures of the next. Yes, I will prepare myself for that glorious eternity for which I was created, so that my life, be it long or short, may be dedicated to Him who has done so much for me, that when the angel of death comes for me my soul may be white and pure as the fleecy snows of winter. Perhaps ere another year has passed away my body will be a mouldered covering of the tomb, and I be remembered only as a picture of the past, with few to shed tears for her who died ere the shore band of time had left its trace on her brow." The sentiment is good, but we fear it is a plagiarism and that some humble author has been robbed of his utterances. As a person descends from the third story he will see the entry, and on the wall near the steps leading to the second story the name of "Oscar Wilde." If it is his, he's writing there is not much satisfaction about it.

PROVINCIAL COUNCIL.

Grand Gathering of Church Dignitaries Summoned to Rome—Priests and Land Leagues.

New York, June 4.—The Herald's Rome correspondent has reason to believe that letters issued by the Propaganda are on their way to New York, summoning all the American archbishops to Rome to receive papal instructions and make preparations for the Provincial Council of the whole American Church, to be held next year in the United States. The archbishops will be required to report on the state of politics and ecclesiastical affairs in America, especially in regard to Ireland. The chief object of the Council is to tighten the bonds connecting the Catholic Church of America with Rome, and convert discretionary measures leading to secular affairs into decrees. The whole life of the Catholic Reformation movement, clerical and secular, has become lately, through the influence of Democratic-Republican institutions, it has become lately, great interest is attached to this Council by the Vatican. Inquiries in the cities show that the probabilities of the Plenary Council have been discussed for some time, but the authorities of the Catholic Church have refused to say anything on the subject.

Rev. Dr. Macdonald, of St. Patrick's Cathedral, states that there is no truth whatever in the report that the Cardinal has issued a proclamation forbidding the priests to attend or participate in the Land League meetings. Rev. Jas. Lennon said the letter was a privileged communication and he would prefer not to discuss it. Several other clergymen declined to give any information regarding the matter.

DEATH OF MR. SIMPSON.

The news of the death of W. B. Simpson was to day received with surprise by his old friends in Kingston, for his illness was not known, and it was thought that he was late to reach close to the allotted years of four score and ten. He has had at a comparatively early age 465 for a man of his sympathetic and cheerful temperament. The deceased was a son of Colonel Simpson, who distinguished himself during the rebellion of 1837-8, and was afterwards Collector of Customs at Cobourg. W. B. Simpson's first official position was that of temporarily filling his father's post. He was in succession made Collector of Brockville, Kingston and Montreal, being superannuated only a year since. While not a regular officer in the liberal sense he was a just, faithful and courteous one, reflecting credit on the department by his gentlemanly bearing. In Kingston he made a host of social friends, and was most esteemed as a member of Chalmers' Church and St. George's Cathedral congregation. He was by regular gradations moved to the crowded and honorable post of Montreal Grand Master. He was instrumental in forming the Grand Lodge, and while D.D.G.M. for Kingston District formally opened Cataraqui Lodge here, with Dr. Barker as its first Master. Latterly he has been separated from his brethren, but is well remembered. The accounts vary as to the cause of death, rheumatism of the heart and Bright's disease of the kidneys are both named.

WELLAND CANAL INQUIRY

The investigation regarding Dr. Kennedy, Surgeon of the Welland Canal, has closed, and the evidence will be laid before the Attorney-General for a decision. Dr. Kennedy was examined. All the money he received was for medical services, and he came to Kingston to see if he could not get light employment for Anger in the Penitentiary. He says he got $200 for attending Anger while he was in the Welland Canal, suffering from injury in the head, having received a blow with a poker. Hence Anger, he says, never gave him anything, nor did he receive anything from the gaoler. He did not, he said, demand an extra $600 from Anger after his arrival at Kingston, and if Anger said so he told a falsehood.

THE CHURCHES.

Bishop Cleary confirmed two hundred and seventy one children and adults in Trenton on a recent Sunday.

Father Barber, O.M.I., is giving missions in the Diocese of Kingston, having recently been at Trenton and Gananoque. He is one of the ablest and most successful missionaries either in Canada or the United States. In the Dioceses of Ottawa and Montreal he has accomplished incalculable good. His stay in the "natural" diocese is to be prolonged for some months.

The Catholic Brown, of London, has published Bishop Cleary's late pastoral in extenso.

The St. James Church sale takes place on Thursday next at the Parochial School House.

DEATH OF DR. SILVERBROOK.

To-day the sad news was received of the death in Nile Westminster, British Columbia, of Dr. Silverbrook, formerly of this city, and a brother-in-law of the Deputy Collector of Inland Revenue here, Mr. Thomas Alexander, and a graduate of Queen's. The illness lasted only a week, but it was one of great malignity, from typhoid fever. The deceased's old home was Chatham, Ontario, but he had made himself a new home and a large practice on the Pacific coast. A son, six years of age, now resident with his grandmother, in Kingston, is orphaned by the sad event, having lost his mother a few years since. The removal of husband and wife so early in life is a calamity which must centre a wide sympathy upon their families.

The early closing movement amongst the grocers is not a complete success. For three days it was well observed, but since then there have been a few engagements every night. But great movements are not effected in a day!

IRISH ITEMS.

Conspiracy Discovered—Informers Must Leave the Country at Once—A Petition.

Dublin, June 4.—The existence of a conspiracy to murder at Carrick-on-the-Suir, County Tipperary, has been discovered. A number of arrests are expected. James Carey and the other informers who testified in the Phœnix Park trials have been notified that they must immediate places out of the country to which they wish to be sent. Carey protested. He would remain in Dublin, but the authorities pointed out that he would receive no police protection and on no condition would he be allowed to remain in Ireland. It is inferred from this that extradition proceedings against Walsh, Sheridan and Tynan are collapsing. A memorial to the Government, praying that the death sentence on Kelly, one of the Phœnix Park murderers, be commuted was signed by seven jurors, summoned during the recent Commission, including two who served on the jury which convicted Kelly.

CANADIAN INDIANS

Ottawa, June 3.—It is stated that there are about 60,000 Indians in the United States living on reservations, who cost the country $30,000,000 annually, and the sum is increasing yearly. Canada manages them, clothes, feeds, educates and trains them in industrial pursuits for about $1,300,000 annually. That is to say the Canadian Indian population costs the Government $35 a year per head, while that of the United States costs $160 per head.

Having the agency for this section of the country, we are prepared to fit them up and guarantee them to be all the patentee claims for them.
