A GREAT SUCCESS.—The concert given by the scholars of the Queen Street Sunday School on the evening of 29th May, was a most decided success, judging by the enthusiasm of the people. The Committee have decided to repeat it on Thursday evening next, 7th inst., at 7.30 p.m. The admission will be 15c. children will be admitted for 10c.

A STRANGER'S FATE.—While at New Lough a few days since the writer made a call at the carriage factory of H. Finkle & Son, and was pleased to see the improved facilities that have been added for the more speedy completion of carriage building. Messrs Finkle & Son have been very successful in disposing of their work, a good criterion as to taste and workmanship.

AN INCONSIDERATE DAUGHTER.—Mr. Jones, mother of John Jones, who escaped from the Penitentiary on Saturday night, regrets her son's action. She had made strenuous efforts to secure his release, and sent to the Government a largely signed petition praying for his release. She was confident that her William would have in time been gratified. She, therefore, considers his act an ill advised one.

THE HAY CROP.—Hay merchants are busily engaged in getting the fodder in the country to the other side before the new tariff comes into force. G. R. Sabre has just returned from an extensive tour and declares that there will be a fine crop of hay this year. In New York State the appearance is remarkably fine. He bought hay for $30 per ton, for which farmers had returned $11.25 in the winter.

OFF FOR EUROPE.—Dr. McDonald and T. Milne sail by the Sarmatian on Saturday for Europe. On Thursday they have Kingston for Quebec, where they take passage. James Walters, who has been in Kingston over thirty years, also sails for England by the seven steamer. The Allan Line boats are carrying off a great many people. The state rooms have been engaged for several weeks to come.

A FUNNY MAN.—A Toronto gentleman will come to Kingston with a machine called "Le Parachute." He will on Dominion Day fly from the shot tower—provided he is allowed to ascend to its top—to the Royal Military College grounds. He asks $100 and expenses, but should he touch the water in the course of the trip he will collect nothing. The entire will be conducted by the gentlemen who desire to get up a celebration.

ON THE WHARF.

The Band of "B" Battery will perform the following programme on the Queen's Wharf this evening, (weather permitting), sharp o'clock:

EVENING ATTRACTIONS.

March Out of the P. W. O. Rifles—A Very Fine Display—Other Musical Demonstrations.

The air last night was filled with music and the streets crowded with promenaders of the youthful kind. The warm weather brought the people out in great flocks, and with new gingham and calicoes, straw hats and bobby socks they took in the sights. "Kingston takes the bakery for beauty," said a youth with a curled moustache and a bad eye. "There are more girls here than in any town I've ever seen. And the way they crowd the streets is something wonderful. Why just look at that stream!" he exclaimed as he sat in front of McAlmon's livery and scrutinized the surging crowd of passers by. It was large, no doubt, but there were many attractions.

The first musical demonstration was given by the minstrel band, and the melody was really refreshing. The gamins turned out on force, rolled in the dust, and when the Opera House doors were opened made a rush for the gallery, where, with coats off, they took in the evening's programme.

THE SALVATIONISTS PARADE.

Attention was next drawn to the Salvation Army's march out. The display was not equal to that of some previous nights. The band did not appear but there was music of a vocal character. After the Market Square meeting the Army returned to the barracks, followed by a crowd.

VOLUNTEERS MARCH OUT.

That in which many were most interested was the first march out of our citizen soldiers. Patiently the people strolled around in anticipation of it. About 8.15 o'clock the battalion passed down Princess Street. The band led the way, and with torches in their hats and glittering horns presented a splendid appearance. The Companies, from "A" to "F," mustered in fair force and joined in the march out. They were desirous of making the best appearance possible, and to this end paid great attention to the instructions given. The new Captains were in their places. Capt. Macdougall, in charge of "B" Company and Capt. Mowat in command the "E" Company. The corps marched four deep. The general impression was that they looked and acted well. After the parade they returned to the Drill Shed and dispersed. They have a church parade on Sunday afternoon next.

COMPANY "F," P.W.O.R.

Last evening, after the street parade of the battalion, this Company, (former ly No. 6) held a meeting, at which it was unanimously resolved that the members should contribute $1 of their pay towards the Battalion Fund, the balance to go towards the establishing of a "Company Fund." Private Ram was appointed Secretary of the meeting, and the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President—Lieut Murray.
First Vice President—Pt. A M Ferguson.
Second Vice President—Pt. R.B. Burns.
Secretary—Pt. Wm. Allen.
Treasurer—Pt. Wm. Nicol.
Committee of Management—The above officers, together with Pte. Sergeant Robinson, and Privates J. Goale, W. Skinner and T. Swaddle.

The Company is now drilling actively and with the determination to uphold the good record which it has established in the past. It is creditable to note that during the past three years five promising young officers of the Battalion have graduate from the ranks of this Company.

The schr. Eureka is loading 200,000 feet of lumber for Oswego. The schr. B. W. Folger will load ties for Charlotte, and the schrs. J. H. Breck, Annie Foster and Wm. Elgin iron ore for Fairhaven and Big Sodus. All these vessels have made contracts on p. t. which, when figured out, mean "pretty tough."

OUTDOOR MEETINGS.

In speaking of the outdoor exercises Captain Abbie says that people have declared she has no right to go on the market square; but when the Army marches out and begins to sing she can see all the saloon and tavern doors opened and men and boys with pipes or cigars rush out and listen to them. They pour in the red-hot shot, and she believes great good is accomplished.

MAKING A VISIT.

The Society Editor Calls on Mr. and Mrs. Arratta—Not Much Difference in Age After All.

Yesterday afternoon the society editor of this paper was called up out of the cellar and asked to present the compliments of the staff to the umbrella man and his bride. A look of terror came over the face of the young man, but he braced up and declared his intention of "doing it or dying." Waxing his moustache and drawing forth the purple lining of his left hand upper pocket until it looked like a handkerchief he, said he had forth. Soon Johnson Street was reached and the little frame house around the corner where the tri colour ed parasol used to hang was approached. But what was the scribe's astonishment to see the words, "cooper shop" above the door. He was unprepared for this, but he steeled his feelings and timidly enquired where the aged bridegroom could be found. He was told and in a short while stood in the presence of the newly wedded pair. They live in the stone dwelling adjacent to the old home stead. "Good day, Mr. Arratta," said the society man, at the same time chucking a little boy under the chin. Mr Arratta was mending a dilapidated umbrella, but he stopped his work and passed the time of day. He was in fine spirits and received his visitor good naturedly. He recognized the scribe and evidently knew his intentions. The public, of course, will be curious to learn what was talked and gossiped about. It was "strictly business." The bridegroom looked as natural as he has for the past 20 years. He worked away steadily, only halting now and then to remark that he didn't care what the papers said about him as he didn't "owe nobody. He could always pay his way. "I've been all over America, and from New London to 50 miles below Montreal," said he, "and I never had a policeman touch me. I never was in a court and I always paid for all I got. I made lots of money and spent lots of it.

THE BRIDE'S APPEARANCE.

Mrs. Arratta, who was formerly Miss Martinello, is a pretty brunette with a wealth of wavy hair, banged in front. She is petite, has a pair of dark liquid eyes, rosy cheeks, teeth of pearly white ness and a welcome laugh. When Mr. Arratta, whom she tenderly addresses as "Mike," told her who the stranger was she exclaimed "Oh you're going to put something in the paper about us. Don't you say anything about me." This was a melancholy salute, but we promised to do her justice. Mr. Arratta was asked if he was as old as he had been reported to be. "Na!" said he and his wife with an indignant glance that reminded the scribe of his dead mother in law said "the paper said he was 64, why he's only 46 years. They said I was only 14 and I'm past 16 years." We remarked that Mr Arratta looked to be quite young, but probably his recent change had something to do with his appearance. He smiled and his wife chatted away but warned the newspaper man to make mention of her at his peril. Mr Arratta was asked if it was true that he had given $2,000 to the bride's parents as a recompense for their daughter. He declared that the statement, published by the News, was

AN ENORMOUS LITTLE FALSEHOOD.

"I hope she'll get more than that at the other end," said Mr Arratta, turning to his wife who smiled in his face. By this he meant that when he died he hoped to leave her a good round sum. "I don't want to be left alone in the world," said the wife. "I'd rather die first," indicating that there was a tender feeling between them. "I guess you didn't think two years ago that you'd ever get me," said the wife. "and I don't think so either," she added. Mr Arratta is a believer in horoscopes and declared that he was probably destined for his little bride. That they are happy there can be little doubt and what is a slight disparity of age when love, joy and comfort are assured.

THE ITALIAN'S HISTORY.

Michael Arratta has a history. He was born in Genoa, where he lived happily until sixteen years of age. He was then pressed into the service of his country but by the assistance of a Captain, with whom he was acquainted, was taken on board an outbound vessel and sailed for America. He reached New York and for years travelled in the States and Canada. Finally he landed in Kingston, fell in with Mr. Genova who kept the umbrella stand on Johnson street, and with him remained for a number of years. He ultimately purchased the business and has since been making money at it. Mrs. Arratta is the daughter of Italians and is the only wife that Mr. Arratta has had. For over thirty years he lived the life of a [illegible] as some imagine. We trust the couple may live in happiness and peace for many years to come.

MEETING OF MEDICAL MEN.

At a meeting of the medical men last evening Dr. Sullivan took the chair and clearly explained the reason why the meeting was called, and also why the notices were without signature. The object of calling the medical men of the city and neighbourhood together was to remind them that the next meeting of the Canada Medical Association will be held in Kingston, in September, and as this will be the first time that Kingston has been selected as the place of meeting it was incumbent on the profession to make arrangements for the proper accommodation and hospitable entertainment of the Association. The notices were without signature simply because there was no one person who was authorized to call such a meeting. After some discussion it was resolved to ask the authorities of Queen's University to permit the meetings of the Association to be held in the University, and a Committee was appointed to make other arrangements and report at a future meeting.

RUM LOOKING CROWD.

Ribaldists Before the Magistrate To-day—Drunkards Not all Picked up by Salvationists.

It has been remarked of late that all the drunkards have been declaimed by the Salvation Army, but had those who labour under this impression attended the Police Court this morning they would have been relieved of it. The drunkards have not all been "gathered in" yet. Some men, at certain times and under peculiar circumstances, continue to "break out." A writer has truthfully said that you can never tell by looking at a man when he is sober, what sort of a drunk man he would develope into if he had the opportunity and the requisite intoxicants, but you can be pretty sure that the man who changes a dime on Sunday morning that he may have a nickle to put into the poor box never invests in a glorious drunk.

John Connel, after attending a christening, went upon a spree. He made more fun than any other reveller we have seen for a long time. His views of life and things broadened, and he seemed to have a contempt for the details and worry of business. Clouds of adversity became rose tinted or disappeared altogether. Later on in the glorious drunk he warmed up, and snatches of song were heard of the "Won't go home till morning" chass, concluding with a hurrah! hurrah! chorus. About this time his hat was on the side of his head, and he had rent on his coat tail. He was picked up this morning. With a great headache he appeared before the Magistrate, expressed his penitence, and was allowed to go.

William Murphy, a mere lad, made his bow at the tribunal. Dismissed with a caution.

Robert Billen left his work too long for his own good. When dismissed he created a disturbance by demanding his money at the Ontario Foundry. Discharged.

Ellen Crow, a fresh looking damsel came from Cape Vincent and was en route to her parents, who reside on Amherst Island. She said that she was subject to temptation, had prayed to be delivered from an accursed habit, but fell time after time. It was a shame that she should act so. She was detained, but will be sent to her home on the boat.

Catharine Malone was "fit on" by the police and a hackman while sitting upon the side walk "saying nothin to no one." She was too drunk to speak. Dismissed, the 20th acquitted for the day.

Daniel Macdonald, the telegraphic vagrant, was again on deck. He had come up from Pittsburg to see if his sister had sent him anything. He was loafing around, waiting for "that parcel he has so often told about. Sentence deferred pending his departure from the city.

100 Hopeless Cases

Examined and treatment refused during the year ending May 1 at the International Throat and Lung Institute, and hundreds more are dying every year of some form of throat or lung trouble, who could be cured if proper treatment was applied in time. We give a candid opinion and will not treat any case we think hopeless. 7,500 cases have been treated by us with the most gratifying results during the last year. The Spirometer invented by Dr. M. Souville of Paris, ex aide surgeon of the French army. The treatment prescribed at the International Throat and Lung Institute is curing more cases of catarrh, catarrhal deafness, bronchitis, asthma and consumption than all other treatments combined. Consultations and a trial of Spirometer free.

MONTREAL, May 2nd, 1883.

DEAR SIRS, It is with the greatest pleasure I can certify to the wonderful effects of Dr. M. Souville's Spirometer and medicines. I have used produced a permanent cure in my case of asthma and nasal catarrh of several years standing. I tried a number of physicians without obtaining any relief. Four months treatment by the successors of the International Throat and Lung Institute, 177 Church Street, Toronto, has effectually cured me. I can confidently recommend it to all who similarly suffered.
