CAUSE AND EFFECT.

Mr. Anglin hinted in his speech in Toronto on Tuesday evening that the Redistribution Act had something to do with the Government's success at the June election. Had that Act anything to do with the blow received by the Ontario Government in February last?—Ottawa Citizen.

No, but the liberal use of money had. We have all along contended that the gain of the Conservatives in the Local campaign was not due to the unpopularity of the Government nor the power and policy of the Opposition, but to the application of monetary influences. We are not believers in the perfect purity of the electorate. We believe the Ballot Act and the law against corrupt practices have done much to secure a fair and intelligent vote, but it is notorious that in the February election law was defied, that the Tories were bound to win if such was possible, and that they fell back upon the old methods of accomplishing their purposes. It is now pretty evident where the funds came from and who distributed them. Of course the charges made against the Government and its vassals are denied, the Tory press using strong language in resenting the impeachments of the Globe, but time or actions in Court will show whether or not these have been justified.

MR. YOUNG'S ELECTION.

The London Free Press says "if the Mowat Radicals imagined that it would be permitted to them to walk over the course in North Brant they have been undeceived from their mistake." Such an idea was not entertained by us for a moment. We shared with Mr. Young in the belief that he would have an unscrupulous opposition in returning to his people for re-election. Our expectations have been fully realised, and the nature of the campaign may be imagined when we state that the Tory cause is now being championed by Senator Plumb and Abraham Lander. A nice team, surely! Formerly Ministers of the Crown were elected by acclamation.

The first departure from a rule so commendable occurred when Sir Richard Cartwright became Finance Minister in Mr. Mackenzie's Government, and when Sir John headed the corps of wire-pullers and electioneering agents sent into Lennox County to defeat the man whom the fallen Premier so cordially hated. As the result was in 1873 so it will be now—the financier selected by the Liberal party will be elected by an increased majority. The Free Press talks of Mr. Young as "a weak man," a statement which even good Tories cannot endorse because it is grossly untruthful. It is only a few days ago since the Hamilton Spectator gave him a certificate of ability of which he should be proud, coming as it did from a politically hostile source, yet from the pen of one who dare to do an opponent justice.

Our London contemporary consoles itself with the thought that Mowatism is doomed, that anyway "Mr. Young's days will be short in the land." We do not see any occasion for these gloomy predictions. Mr. Mowat is not at all worried about the outlook; his colleagues are even cheerful and in a mood quite unbecoming men who expect to go to a funeral. If the dissolution of the Government depends upon the defeat of Mr. Young that circumstance cannot be close at hand.

CRACKING TORY HEADS.

Hon. Mr. Mills seems to have given great offence to the Tories by declaring at the late Anglin banquet in Toronto that "wherever he saw a Tory head put out to injure the Grit party he understood to hit it." Mr. Mills was really giving his experience, and some of those who have been dressed down by him in the liveliest fashion take most umbrage at his statement. Since the translation of Mr. John Cameron to Toronto Hon. Mr. Mills has been acting as editor of the London Advertiser, and in that capacity has been doing the Liberal party splendid service. Of course when one shows any activity in the interest of Liberalism, when he takes a hand in exposing the crookedness of the Tory party, he is at once attacked and belittled and bannered by the Ministerial press. When Hon. Mr. Blake is subject to so much abuse and scurrility from the chief organ of the Government Hon. Mr. Mills need not expect to escape similar attention. The London Free Press, which ought to know better, not only ridicules the ex-Minister of the Interior but lies about him, alleging that he was not successful at "head hitting when up at Bothwell as to enable him to boast very much of his expertness" that "he was so scared that he could not deal at effective blow at the head of Mr. Hawkins"; that "he missed his opportunity and the proper officers gave the issue against him in consequence." Then does a paper, professing to speak intelligently, mangle the truth and distort the facts. It cannot surely be forgotten that Bothwell was gerrymandered so that it was well nigh impossible for any Liberal to win, that notwithstanding the great odds against him Mr. Mills really won the day, but he was cheated out of his due and robbed of his honors by a partizan Returning Officer. Mr. Mills did some very hard hitting in that election. He not only hit Mr. Hawkins but the editor of the Free Press, and wounded them badly if we may judge of their feelings by their persistent efforts to injure Mr. Mills and keep him out of Parliament. The courts have yet to determine the issue in that election, and when they have done so we will be the better able to judge of Mr. Mills' expertness as a skull-cracker.

REMOVING NUISANCES.

The Editor, British Whig.

DEAR SIR,—I hope the City Commissioner will find time to have nuisances removed from the streets. If he takes a walk up Barrie Street he will see a heap of ashes, which, if not taken away, may cause an accident, for the consequences of which the Corporation can be held responsible.—Yours,

June 11. AMICUS.

FAITH WITH WORKS.

Sermon by the Lord Bishop of Ontario Upon the Living Faith, in St. James' Church.

Last evening, at St. James' Church, the Lord Bishop of Ontario preached to a large congregation upon the text taken from the second lesson of the day, James ii. 14: "What doth it profit, my brethren, though a man say he hath faith and have not works; can faith save him?" Or as the revised version has it, "Can that faith save him." Nothing has been more general, more amazing in the Christian world than the reliance upon a mere profession of faith, too often evidenced at the close of life, when there is need of the truest comfort. From the very day that the Saviour said, "Sell all that thou hast and follow me," self denial has been the great stumbling block of the Christian. To believe aright has been the one great struggle, not but that we should fight for the faith once delivered to the saints, one that would make us fitter for God's acceptance. Yet no theoretical faith, no one creed or cold deduction of reason, will ever save alone. The man who relies on them is under

A TREMENDOUS DELUSION.

Our Lord gave us love and sympathy as well as faith, with intent that we should use them. But there is that right belief, that true scriptural truth, which will give impetus to good works, and serve also as a regulator of temper and moulder of disposition, just as the earnest investigator of God's word advances in his study. This was the right belief—the one thing needful, the pearl of great price. The faith which can be professed alike by Christian or Freethinker, though beaming brightly and daily defended, is no more than mere chaff; it is a salt without a savor. If faith can live without works then faith excuses us from works; purity of faith, on the same principle, licenses impurity of practice. The man never stirred to religious action by the tenets he professes to love; who congratulates himself on the right of private judgment being universal and never uses it himself; who sympathises with others and uses but one part of his own religious privileges, is doing himself a great injury. His hearers know what Christ said of those who heard "these things and did them not. We must apply a

DIVINE MOTIVE TO ACTION.

Christ has left an incentive, a corrective. That "man who spake as yet never man spake" has given us a graphic panorama of the great judgment scene, where our conduct in this world will be measured, and He shall say, as we have merited it: "Come, ye blessed," or "depart, ye cursed." Could picture or painting give a more vivid warning? Be assured that faith will not save those who cry "Lord, Lord," nor even those who prophesy. It were better for the self satisfied believer that he had never known the faith at all. He must be justified by full peace with his Lord and Saviour. He must warn them against discussing for amusement that which was meant for warning and instruction. Their talent of understanding the Word of God would require as strict an account as any other; and this should be realized long before the uselessness of repentance goes with failing breath. Might all be able to judge of the unspeakable difference between a living and a dead faith!

MONTREAL CHURCH REBELLION.

A meeting of the members of the congregation of the East End Methodist Church, Montreal, was held on Friday evening to discuss the recent action of the Stationing Committee in appointing their pastor, the Rev. Mr. Saunders, as Governor of the Stanstead College, in despite of the protest served upon them by the congregation. Rev. Wm. Galbraith occupied the chair. The meeting was singularly harmonious and all were unanimous in their desire to retain the services of their pastor. A motion was passed to the effect that all constitutional means be exhausted to avert the removal of Mr. Saunders, and Mr. Galbraith was instructed to open correspondence with the President of the Montreal Conference to try and arrange the matter so that the wishes of the congregation may be acceded to. There was no desire shown by the meeting to recede from the motion passed last Tuesday, regarding the secession of the congregation in a body from the Methodist Church. This point was neither considered nor discussed. The East End church congregation do not want unnecessary removal of pastors. Mr. Saunders, they say, has built up the Church, and they see no reason why he should not remain until his three years are up, at the same time they wish it to be fully understood that they have no personal objection to the Rev. Mr. Hagar or any minister that the Stationing Committee might appoint. What they object to is this removing of pastors at will.

DEATH OF JENNY TRUE BLUE

Another famous character has been removed by death. We refer to Jenny True Blue, who expired in the County gaol yesterday after a short illness. Jenny is one of the most remarkable creatures who have made their residence in Kingston. She has been before the court perhaps a hundred times, and has thrown more appeals for mercy at the Magistrate than any unfortunate we know of. She and Sister Isabella Long were hard to handle when they travelled together, tackled the Police Justice and poured their honeyed words upon him; it strained his feelings to punish them. Poor Bella, bad must be her condition when alone. Jenny was named "True Blue" because of her excessive admiration of Orangeism, upon which she continually barped when intoxicated. Some years ago she lost her arm, being injured by a passing train while lying drunk beside the track. Her age was 75, her death from natural causes, such being the verdict of the jury in the case.

John McMillan, of the West End Malt House, is extending his business. He has now a brewing business in New York, and will be absent from the city for several weeks superving.

SALVATION ARMY MEETINGS.

Good Meetings and Parades—Another Lieutenant Coming—English Talk of Being Shot Down.

The band is now larger and more efficient than ever.

The Salvationists don't believe in turning over new leaves. They want nothing short of new books.

The meetings of yesterday were largely attended, and the soldiers on parade much more numerous than usual.

The most comical feature of the meetings now is the tambourine playing of some of the sisters. The performance is very neat.

One of the speakers at the Salvation Army yesterday said that the devil had been in St. George's Cathedral for many years.

Capt. Abbo advises the people to open their hearts, to throw the devil and his old furniture out, and the Lord will enter, refurnish and be a good tenant.

The reporters may be "funny fellows" but they were the first to welcome the Army to the city, and they have stuck to it through good and evil report.

All the sergeants said to have left the Army were in their places yesterday, and Col. Callaghan explained that their little differences had been perfectly reconciled. They had taken everything to the Lord in prayer.

A venerable crank last evening declared that the Wino said he ought to be shot down. He is clearly laboring under a misapprehension. This is not a Nihilistic organ and does not approve of murder in any form.

One of the Salvation sergeants says it has been suggested that the bartenders will be the death of him. He doesn't fear such a thing, besides though the body be destroyed the soul cannot be injured. Abbo says she'll have all the bartenders yet, and the landlords, too.

Mr. J. Bawden and Col. Callaghan were among the speakers. One said he he had been induced to give up his idols and accept the simple gospel; the other said he had been a churchman and Christian for years, but he didn't know what salvation was until the Army came to the city.

The band played at the head of the corps in the evening, en route to the City Hall from the Victoria Barracks. This is, in the opinion of some, a dreadful violation of the Sunday law, but it is excusable when the military bands play not hymns but secular music, and the bands accompanying excursion parties are allowed to roll off the most fantastic airs of the period.

About the 1st July another Lieutenant will arrive, and then perhaps Captain Abbo will take a rest. When he was here she asked the Major for a week's holidays and he gave her such a look and told her to "go right along." She expects to get a furlough, but she's bound to see the barracks up. She wouldn't miss that "go" for a good deal.

An elderly man, one who was for 40 years addicted to strong liquor, spoke powerfully last evening. He described the great change in his habits, all coming from looking at the Salvation Army's knee drill on the Market Square and "watching of Capt. Abbo." He hoped Abbo wouldn't get a furlough; some of the soldiers had to keep their eye upon her or they would go back to old evils.

PORTSMOUTH AFFAIRS

About 75 young folks of this village at to ided by their pastor and chief Sunday School teacher, drove to St. George's Cathedral on Sunday morning to receive confirmation. In consequence there was no service in St. John's Church in the morning.

The Salvation Army did not hold any open air meetings yesterday, the leaders paying Cataraqui a visit. In the evening they held a very successful meeting in the Town Hall, lead by Sergeant Taylor of the city corps.

Lieutenant Atkins is waiting orders to open an attack on Gananoque.

P. McIntyre, from Memphis, Tenn., an old Kingstonian, arrived on a flying visit to his old home to-day. He is one of the large wholesale provision firm of C. W. Goyer & Co., of Memphis, and has been on a business tour to Chicago and Buffalo.

CHURCH MUSIC.

The Editor, British Whig.

SIR,—I was very much surprised when reading the correspondence in the Daily News of the 9th inst., signed, "Church Goer." I did not expect such thanks for the slight services rendered in the choir of St. Mary's Cathedral.

I do not intend to enter a discussion with regard to the "barbarity" of the French language with an individual ashamed to sign his name to the correspondence. However, I desire to compole him by stating that I will not in future trouble my barbarous tongue by singing in a "barbarous" or any other tongue.

Knowing well that this wonderful manufacturer who signs himself "Church Goer," thinks himself a great musician and takes the liberty of giving advice I will in return give him a little advice, which I hope he will follow in the future. It is, to learn how to read Latin and English before trying to sing in these languages, for it is only necessary to hear a harsh voice combined with an impossible pronunciation of English or Latin to thoroughly disgust one. I think it would be better for "Church Goer" to learn my "barbarous tongue" than make those around him miserable with his extraordinary dialect.

Now, will "Church-goer" tell me whether or not he has consulted our Bishop or priests before insulting me in such a manner? I will answer, without hesitation, "No!" because if His Lordship or any member of the clergy of our Church had had any objection to the two or three French hymns which I have sung during the last three years (for I generally sing it Latin) I am certain I would have been notified in a more agreeable manner that has been done by "Church-goer." I believe that to the Bishop and the priests alone belongs the right to notify one of any transgression of the rules of the Church. I do not expect "Church-goer" to be astonished at my taking his attacks personally as I am the only member of the choir who sings in French.

Many thanks, Mr. Editor, for granting me this space in your paper, which will, I hope, be sufficient to tranquilize the feelings of our extremely sincere "Church-goer."—Yours,

J. E. M. TASCHEREAU.

ATTEMPTED ASSASSINATION.

New York, June 9.—Wong Chin Foo, editor of the Chinese American, to-day had Chin Pan Tip arrested on a charge of attempting to assassinate him. The affair is said to arise out of publications in Foo's paper regarding gambling houses, and it is charged that Tip is the instrument of gamblers. Foo says he entered the store where Tip was, and the latter asked the proprietor to hand him a revolver. Foo also says Tip and two companions tried to murder him in Chicago, and were to receive $10,000 if they succeeded and $5,000 if they merely injured him.

Wong Chin Foo is the young Chinaman who lectured in Kingston a couple of years ago.

TRIAL OF CONSPIRATORS.

London, June 11.—Lynch, conspirator, being cross examined, said he never saw Wilson or Ansburgh before he saw them in Bow Police Court. The Irish Republic was mentioned in the oath he took in New York when he joined the conspirators. He was not aware that Ireland had not a separate Parliament else he never has been in association with any organization or plot in England or Ireland. It was of no account to him whether Ireland had home rule or became Republic. He had never conversed with Dr. Gallagher or in presence of any other person.

FOOT RACING CRAZE.

Quite a lot of bad feeling has followed the cross-cut work which seems to have occurred at Picton in connection with the foot racing. It is said by one who professes to know whereof he speaks that it was arranged by "the boys" that in one match Fralick should take the first heat, and Butler the second. This would get the betting worked up pretty good, but the bulk of the money being up against Butler his Western friends had him do the very thing the Kingstonians didn't want and least expected—he went in for all he was worth and took the third heat. Then there was some, awful swearing and gnashing of teeth. In the other race it was fixed that Gus Carruthers should win easily, but the betting induced the Western wire-pullers to change the programme and Fralick won. A second time the Kingstonians were bled, the losses for the day being very heavy and such an example of our young men will not forget for many a day. It is to be hoped some of them have been cured of their racing fever, that having been severely "bitten" they will eschew professional matches in future.

On Saturday evening the foot race between Moran and Perry occurred on the Cataraqui Driving Park. The track was sticky. Mr. W. Duffy started the men, who got off slowly, Moran taking the advantage. The race was closely contested and won by Moran. The stakes was $50 a side and the distance 100 yards. Another race will be arranged to-night for $100, to occur on Dominion Day, the track to be perfectly dry and each man's course roped out.

A GOOD REMOVE.

An Oswego youth wandered into the station yesterday and appeared to be very funny. He was making sport of Harry Wells' dog and donkey, and could not conceive the ground for friendship between the two animals. "Oh, I never could be friendly with an ass," he exclaimed, and Policeman McCormack made him feel sick by remarking, "No I don't suppose you could. Relations are often the very worst of friends." The Oswegian disappeared.

QUEEN'S HEALTH.

Rumors of Her Abdication—Belief in Spiritualism—Her Injuries.

Washington, June 11.—A paper published here says that the Ambassador at one of the Great Powers has telegraphed his Sovereign on Wednesday last that the abdication of the Queen was impending. His reasons given for this course are Her Majesty's last failing health and increasing unwillingness and inability to perform the duties incidental to the Government. It is said that the Queen is a great believer in spiritualism. She thought that the spirit of her dead husband used to assist her in working out the questions which perplexed and annoyed her. At her last visit to Balmoral she seemed to feel the actual presence of the dead Prince and talked as though he were by her side. This and other occurrences alarmed the Princess Beatrice greatly, who insisted that some other members of the family should come down at once. The trouble with the the Queen's knee came from a large ulcer of a cancerous nature that formed under the knee joint and in spite of all that can be done is eating its way to the bone. Her condition is very serious.

CZAR'S ACKNOWLEDGMENTS.

CONFERENCE WITH PARNELL
