KINGSTONIAN'S LETTER.

Life in California.—A Former "Whig" Employee's Epistle—Greeting to Friends.

Eight years have passed since your correspondent was in Kingston, and during that time I have frequently thought of the old city. Occasionally an old Kingstonian comes across my path, and it does me good to have a talk about home. There are a great many Canadians in this part of California. The city of Stockton, in which I am located at present, contains about 12,000 inhabitants, including 1,000 or more inmates of the Insane Asylum, and is situated close to the San Joaquin River. It is something less than 100 miles from San Francisco. The great wheat producing San Joaquin Valley is the main support of Stockton. The city maintains three first-class daily newspapers—the Evening Mail, the Morning Herald, and the Morning Independent. Each of the above named newspapers publishes a weekly. There are also two or three smaller weekly newspapers, a monthly magazine, and a paper one side of which is printed in German. The business of the city is steady and prosperous, the old time mining excitements having all died out.

THE COLE OF CHINESE.

The drawback to all California towns is the Heathen Chinee. It is a pleasure to Californians to learn that the New Yorkers are getting a taste of the moon-eyed Celestial. The people in the East will never know the extent of the Chinese evil until they get a number of the tribe in their midst. Not only do Chinese live in the most filthy dens imaginable, smoke opium and gamble, but they seek victims to their damnable habits from among the young white girls and boys. Only last week two young girls—one fourteen and the other fifteen years of age—were arrested here for smoking opium. Two boys were also arrested for the same offence. It is useless to write regarding the manner in which the Chinese live or their habits, as the same has been printed again and again in the Eastern newspapers. The subject is too filthy to handle.

ATTRACTION OF DECORATION DAYS.

The citizens of Stockton celebrated Decoration Day in a glorious manner. Nearly all the societies, headed by the Grand Army of the Republic and followed by the school children in large waggons, all provided with large bouquets of flowers, marched out to the cemetery and decorated the grave of the dead soldiers and other loved ones. An oration, singing and reading of an original poem formed part of the exercises of the day. John P. Congrave, city editor of the Mail, wrote the poem. It is dedicated to Rawlins Post, Grand Army of the Republic, and was entitled

OUR OWN LOVE DEAD.

Oh! the tender rays of the peaceful days
Quietly fall on land and sea,
When the wars have fled and the wrong has bled
And the olive's forever free!

Is the sun bright crown on the slope and plain?
In the sunshine grows to gold,
And the day dawns come with the roll of drums
From the battle fields of old.

When the war wind came with a rush of flame
And swept the stricken land,
And the tear was shed and the prayer was said,
With unsheathed sword in hand.

Then our loved and best, from the east and west
From the north, the true and the tried,
Like a ball's last toll for a vanished soul
Went out on the crimson tide.

And our loved ones lie 'neath the South'rn sky,
Awaiting the bugle call;
While, generous shower in the bright hued flowers
From the hands of freemen fall.

Let the cannon speed over the sacred ground
By the blood of heroes blest,
For our own who lie 'neath the Northern sky
On the shore of the Golden West.

We will greet the dead in their lowly bed
With the pride of victory won,
Tears are held to chaste they are blind to tears;
But our daily vows be done.

We will scatter flowers in unstinted showers
Over the sod grown down the west,
We will lightly tread o'er our own dear dead,
For our own we love the best.

Yet we still can share for the rest a share
Of our love and tears and flowers
Yes, they claim a part of our grateful heart,
For the nameless dead are ours.

Let us scatter flowers in unstinted showers
For the dead so nobly died,
For the nation's brave, in their far-off grave,
And our own loved dead are one.

Oh! the tender rays of the peaceful days
They are shining for you and me.
We owe to the dead, in their lowly bed,
Tears of thanks for a land long be.

A BLOODY DUEL.

Last Tuesday night a dispute arose over a game of cards in a saloon in Stockton, in which two men were engaged. After exchanging angry words with each other for half an hour or more one of the young men challenged the other to fight. The challenge was accepted; the fight to be with duelling pistols. The challenged party, whom I shall name Jack for short, was not in the least angry, while his opponent, whom I shall name Tom, couldn't be satisfied without gore, gore! Jack's friends made arrangements for the fight, procuring two large dueling pistols, loaded with powder and wad only. The next day (Wednesday) at 2 o'clock in the afternoon a sail-boat, with at least twenty men, left Stockton, going down the San Joaquin River to a place called the "Indian Burial-ground." Under Jack's left arm was a silk sack containing a red fluid like blood. The principals took their positions twenty paces apart, and at a signal Jack fired. It was amusing to see Tom duck his head as the paper wad from Jack's pistol fell about half way between them. Tom then took deliberate aim and fired. Jack staggered a moment, pressed his left arm tightly on the sack of prepared blood, and then fell into the arms of his seconds. The red fluid oozed through his shirt and ran down his sleeve. They placed the wounded man in a small boat, which two men had rowed over it, and pulled out for the city and a doctor. Tom was the worst scared man in the country all the rest of the day, and didn't come back to the city until after dark. He found out this morning that it was all a hoax, when he treated all hands and took the first train for New Mexico.

VARIOUS INTERESTING ITEMS.

Tramps are as thick in Stockton just now as politicians before an election. The police bagged seven of the tribe two days ago. As soon as harvesting commences they will be scarce, as a great many of them will go into the country.

Strawberries have been in the market for about one month. The retail for 12½c. a box, about a quart being in each box. Cherries have been on sale for at least two weeks. Apricots have been offered for sale for about a week. Green peas, string beans and new potatoes have been sold for a month past. Raspberries and blackberries are just ripening.

Several Canadians formed a cricket club here some two months ago. Base ball is the game generally played in this city.

A Printers' Union was organized in Stockton last month with thirty-five charter members. An old Kingston printer was elected President of the Union.

Madame Janauschek, the great emotional actress, will appear in Avon Theatre in this city next Monday night as "Marie Antoinette." As your correspondent has to appear at his work in about fifteen minutes you will not get any more "stuck" for the present.

A FULL SERVICE.

The Style of Service at the Opening of Toronto Synod—A Sketch Well Worth Reading.

(Toronto Telegram.)

The "full choral service" which opened the proceedings of the Synod of the Diocese of Toronto was held in St. James' Cathedral and attracted a large congregation. The choirs of all the city Anglican Churches where surplices are tolerated, took part in the celebration, and the interior of St. James' schoolhouse was alive with white-robed choristers. They all wore surplices, and the majority wore cassocks, but the vestments worn by the clergy were such that even the shrewest opponent of

"ECCLESIASTICAL MILLINERY"

could find no ground for complaint. The choirs of the following Churches participated in the service: St. Mathias, Holy Trinity, St. George's, All Saints', St. Luke's and St. Thomas', and in all there were about 120 surplices in line. Shortly after 10 o'clock the boys took their places in the line and the united choirs, followed by the Bishop and clergy in order of seniority, marched around by the eastern aisle of the Cathedral to the main entrance. As they reached the door part of the congregation rose to their feet, while the evangelical portion indignantly retained their seats. As the organ pealed forth the familiar strains of the choirs took up the refrain and marched slowly down the aisle towards the chancel. The most diminutive of the choristers had been placed in the front ranks, and the effect produced by this arrangement was striking in the extreme. When the foot of the aisle was reached the line opened, and, attended by the Diocesan clergy, Bishop Sweatman passed between the two lines of choristers and took his seat in the Archbishop's stall in the chancel. Prominent among the clergy who were in line were Rev. Dr. Courtney, of Boston; Rev. Archdeacon Body, Canon Sandiding and Rev. J. D. Cayley, of Toronto; Rev. Mr. Jones, of Oshawa; and Rev. Rural Dean Stewart, of Hamilton. A number of the Anglican clergy of the city occupied seats

"ONWARD, CHRISTIAN SOLDIERS,"

AMONG THE CONGREGATION.

When the clergy had taken their places in the Chancel they were followed by the choirs, and before the singing of the hymn was completed, all attired in surplices occupied positions in the Chancel. Rev. J. D. Cayley, intoned the service and the responses were joined in by the congregation with much fervour. Rev. Mr. Jones, of Oshawa, read the lesson for the day; Ven. Archdeacon Body read the Collect for the day. During the chanting of the Apostles Creed the Bishop and all the clergy who were stationed on the eastern side of the Chancel stood facing the west. At the conclusion of the order of morning prayer Rev. Dr. Courtney ascended the pulpit and selecting his text from Thessalonians v. 25., "Brethren pray for us."

The congregation was composed of a majority of the congregation of the church, and a large attendance from other churches. The former showed signs of extreme indignation at the unusual innovation upon their ordinary service. When most of the congregation rose, they remained seated, especially during the procession, and when the preacher ascended and descended the pulpit. At the conclusion of his eloquent address the preacher turned to the east for the final benediction. The expression on the faces of many of the worshippers showed that they did not endorse the newly imported innovation. Some of the prominent members of the Church were highly indignant, so much so that many left the building and others declared that they would lock up their pews forever. There is likely to be a lively discussion the subject.

Wait a Minute

And read this. You may be troubled with corns, and if not at present they may take root in the near future. Therefore want to tell you what to use in order to make a perfect cure, and especially what to avoid. Of course like the majority of people you will want to use the best that is to be had. That is Perkins's Painless Corn Extractor. Sure, safe, painless. Avoid, then, the article "just as good" or the something else "a good deal better." You will regret using anything else than Putnam's, for it don't burn, and you can't tell what the others will do until you try. Don't live to be sorry when you can so easily prevent it. VITAL QUESTIONS !!

Ask the most eminent physician Of any school, what is the best thing in the world for quieting and allaying all irritation of the nerves and curing all forms of nervous complaints, giving natural, childlike refreshing sleep always?

And they will tell you unhesitatingly "Some form of Hops!"

CHAPTER II.

Ask any or all of the most eminent physicians:

"What is the best and only remedy that can be relied on to cure all diseases of the kidneys and urinary organs; such as Bright's disease, diabetes, retention or inability to retain urine, and all the diseases and ailments peculiar to Women."

"And they will tell you explicitly and emphatically "Buchu."

Ask the same physicians

"What is the most reliable and surest cure for all liver diseases or dyspepsia, constipation, indigestion, biliousness, malarial fevers, ague, &c., and they will tell you Mandrake! or Dandelion!"

CORNS AND COLDS.—At this season when coughs are so prevalent an effectual remedy, and one easily obtained, is Perry Davis Vegetable Pain Killer. It is no new nostrum, vended by unknown agents, but has stood the test of over twenty years, and those who use the article internally or externally, will connect with it grateful recollections of its worthy inventor.

BE ADVISED in time, and do not allow what may appear to you as a simple back ache now, to run into a disease of the kidneys, which invariably proves fatal in the end. Dr. Van Buren's Kidney Cure will at once ease your pain and positively prevent these unfortunate results. Take it at once. Any druggist will have it.

Convincing Proof.

The attention of readers is respectfully called to the advertisement of the Puttner Emulsion Co., appearing in this paper. Convincing proof is there given of the unbounded popularity of their valuable proprietary medicine which cannot be gainsaid.
