THURSDAY EVENING, JUNE 21, 1883.

SENATOR'S EXPLOIT.

Senator Vidal was one of a Committee appointed to draft the report on temperance at the meeting of the General Assembly. He is a greater politician than teetotaller, and so conceived the happy idea of giving his party and the new License Act a puff. He wrote that "the enactment recently passed by the Dominion Government has provided efficient machinery for the more successful enforcement of the laws against illicit trade," and that "the action of this Government is making itself favorably felt upon the more thoughtful portion of the community." As soon as the document was read it was objected to. Sen. Vidal saw at once that his motive was suspected, but he thought to fight down opposition and asked in tones of well simulated indignation, "Does this Assembly purpose to sit in judgment on the Parliament of Canada?" There were loud cries of "Certainly," and the report was not only sat upon but the honorable gentleman as well. His position was not worthy of a venerable legislator—that the members of a learned and influential body should not presume to criticise what he was injudicious and partizan enough to force upon them.

Mr. Senator Vidal no doubt had in his mind's eye the action of the Methodist Conference, which endorsed the Crooks Act and pronounced it the best regulator of the liquor traffic which had ever been enforced. He seemed to have reasoned thus wise: "I am a member of the Assembly, have the reputation of being one of the greater temperance men in the country, will be surely selected to state an opinion on my pet subject, and if I can work in a favourable notice of the Act which I and those constituting the Upper Chamber thought so perfect that we passed it in less than an hour, great will be the boom created throughout the Dominion and deep must be my leader's gratitude." And forthwith he indited the gush which the Assembly rejected amid laughter and jest and derision. It was conceded to be quite time enough to compliment the Government and endorse its License Act when it had been declared constitutional and valid. Even it had been operated sufficiently long to give some evidence of its value in controlling the licensed trade and suppressing that which is illicit.

Senator Vidal seemed to think that the Assembly was not a competent body to deal with the question as it had left Parliament, but he should have thought of that matter before he introduced the report. He certainly did not anticipate the speeches which Rev. Mr. Macpherson and Dr. Burns, of Halifax, delivered, declaring that "if this Dominion Bill was to kneck their excellent local legislation on the head they were put back, from a temperance point of view, twenty five years, and respectfully differing with Mr. Vidal that the clauses objected to in the report did not endorse the Dominion License Bill." The Toronto Mail learns in future to eschew politics in the Church Courts, at least to commit what little schemes they have to engineer to more skillful hands than those of Senator Vidal.

SIR CHARLES' DEFENCE.

In his farewell speech, at the banquet tendered to him by his Halifax friends, Sir Charles Tupper made a lengthy reference to the new Pacific Scandal. He denied that the contractors of Section B had been recouped the large sums of money that are alleged to have spent in connection with the Ontario elections. He remarked:

"It would not be at all surprising if Mr. Manning, who is a wealthy man, contributed to the elections. Mr. Shields, before he went into contracting at all, was a wholesale grocer in Toronto, one of the most active and energetic members of the party to be found in the Dominion. Mr. Macdonald was a Conservative, and it would not be at all surprising if they contributed; but I say this openly and above board, that from the hour I entered office down to this hour, if they will show a single instance in which I ever personally benefitted my self, or ever received one dollar for my party from any contractor, I will consent to be driven with disgrace out of public life. I know this, that from the hour I should accept a contribution for party purposes from a contractor, directly or indirectly, I should be his slave instead of his master."

Two points are particularly noticeable, (1) that he does not deny that the contractors contributed to the election funds—for Sir Charles Tupper says they were not recouped by him, and that he made nothing personally out of them, but is it reasonable to suppose that men, noted for their avarice, for their inordinate love of the mighty dollar, who are at this moment quarrelling over the financial affairs of the firm, would consent to persistent "bleeding" without hope or promise of reward? In the Hewson case it will be remembered that Sir John stated that Mr. Shields paid $2,500 for him and to effect a settlement of the difficulty; but he afterwards amended his evidence and said he got the money from another person.

2. Sir Charles Tupper periodically becomes eloquent in proclaiming his personal and political purity, and it was editing that he should give himself a character on the eve of his departure from Canada. It was only to be expected that in this Section B business he should declare there was no scandal when he saw in "the greatest job in the British Empire" nothing to cause him to blush and his opponents to storm. Sir A. T. Galt sat beside him when he spoke, and we can fancy his feelings as he recalled the language of his letter in 1873:

"I continue to belong to that section of his Conservative party which acquiesced in the condemnation passed by the country upon the late Administration, and I cannot blame those members of our party who found it their duty to sustain Mr. Mackenzie's efforts to carry on the Government. The exigency our necessitated a breach in the former party, and had I then been in Parliament Mr. Mackenzie would have received from me all unselfish support. The Administration must now be judged on its own merits, and not supported from any fear that their resignation would restore Sir John Macdonald to power. My opinion in reference to this latter contingency, in that, notwithstanding the public services of that gentleman, it is impossible to ignore the circumstances that led to his defeat. I regard his election as a regular leader of the Opposition in Parliament as a grave mistake, which tends to, perpetuate a breach in the party, and must ultimately lead to the formation of new party lines or to the final adherence of many of our friends to the Liberal ranks."

Time and office have modified the views of the late High Commissioner, and he seems to be less inclined to believe in his party's infallibility though he cannot forget his denunciations, in the past. Sir Charles was applauded, of course, when he loudly declared his innocence of wrong, but he was heard to talk in this way before and yet be driven from office in disgrace. The courts only can bring out the facts; the action states there is only one vacant stall, that occupied by the late Lord Beaconsfield, and the Queen has refused to allow it to be given to any one.

A DISPLEASED ORGAN.

The Montreal Post is greatly displeased with the appointment of the Marquis of Lansdowne, and prints a number of things to show that he has been a hard and unfeeling landlord. Accounts certainly vary in regard to the antecedents and "home rule" of the new Governor, and our contemporary seems to get its information from a peculiarly hostile and jaundiced source. Eminent men in Britain say that the Marquis of Lansdowne will make a splendid Viceroy and the Marquis of Lorne says his successor has executive ability of a very high order. With these statements before us we do not see that there is ground for the unfavorable speech in which the Montreal Post has indulged. We have, after all, nothing to do with what the Marquis has been as a landlord. Our only concern is as to what sort of a Governor he will make. He can't evict anybody in Canada; he can't fine anybody for the paltry offences which he may have had to consider and punish as an Irish Magistrate; he can't do anything but what he is advised to perform by his Ministers, and act as the medium between the Government of the Empire and that of the most important British dependency. Mr. Gladstone has given him an appointment, on merit it is alleged, and the objections of no class will now lead to its cancellation. A change seems to be impossible, and hence Canadians should become reconciled to the situation. We verily believe that when the Marquis has arrived and entered upon his duties the wisdom of Mr. Gladstone will become very apparent. The Premier knows how important it is that the cordial and loyal relations between Canada and the mother country should be sustained. He would not surely send to the Dominion one whose service could not prove popular and advantageous.

AN EXTENSIVE BUSINESS.

One of the firm of Armour & Co., Chicago, is in the city. He reports the panic in the produce market over. Confidence has returned and large orders for provisions have been given by the Eastern merchants. Mr. Armour believes that there will be a rapid advance in prices. The firm of Armour & Co. is said to have the largest and best equipped meat house in the world. Their slaughter house cost over a million dollars. They have branch houses in Milwaukee, New York and Kansas City, and do business annually amounting to millions of dollars. All over the United States they have agencies, refrigerator houses, icing stations and refrigerator cars, in which they have $1,125,000 invested. They are building a large refrigerator in Watertown, which will be a model of its kind. Watertown will be a distributing point for the Thousand Islands and other St. Lawrence river localities. The refrigerators are arranged for bulk ice on top and cracked ice on the sides and are kept at a temperature of 38°.

FLOODS IN GERMANY.

Berlin, June 21.—The floods now prevailing in Silesia have been attended by waterspouts. A large part of Hirschberg is submerged and the houses in adjacent villages are flooded. The railway near Schlaberoum has been washed away. A number of the cattle have perished. During the last 24 hours the rise of the river at Neisse has been most alarming. The evangelical school and church, two barracks and part of the post office have been submerged. Disastrous floods are reported in Bohemia and Moravia. The Danube is expected to overflow its banks shortly as the river Inn and mountain streams are rising rapidly.

LOST WHILE WHALING.

Princetown, Mass., June 21.—The whaling schooner Ellen Rizpah, of this port, has arrived at Woodhole. While on the voyage Mate Dunham and a boat's crew, with the exception of a colored man, were lost. The Captain and Mate struck a whale at the same time and the Mate's line becoming foiled his boat was dragged under and was never seen afterwards. Dunham was a brother of the Captain and leaves a family. The number of men lost is not stated but it probably six to eight.

DIVORCED AND REMARRIED

St. Louis, June 21.—Rush Tevis and his divorced wife, Kate E. Reese, daughter of Col. Reese and niece of General Sherman, have been remarried in Philadelphia. Tevis last winter shot her seducer, Frank Ignhart, and subsequently obtained a divorce, but could not overcome his love for her and made overtures for a reconciliation.

HOSTILITIES INEVITABLE.

Washington, June 21.—Advices received from the Chinese legation within 48 hours are to the effect that hostilities with France are regarded as inevitable.

Paris, June 21.—A telegram from Rantaiz states that the French do not intend to go to the capital of Madagascar, but will occupy the Custom Houses and all the roads leading to the capital and await the submission of the Hovas, which they expect shortly.

PITHY PARAGRAPHS.

Governor of Nova Scotia.

Matthew H. Richey, M.P., of Halifax, has been appointed Lieut. Governor of Nova Scotia. Mr. Richey is the son of a Methodist Clergyman, and a graduate of Queen's University.

Helping the Irish Fisheries.

In the House of Commons yesterday the Bill providing for the application of £250,000 of Church Surplus Fund to aid the Irish sea fisheries, and particularly to provide harbours, passed its second reading.

Salvation Army Barracks.

General Booth on Monday afternoon visited Castleford, where, in the presence of a large concourse of spectators, three corner stones were laid in connection with the new Salvation Army Barracks. The building is to seat 1,300 people, and will cost £14,000.

Knighting the Marquis of Lorne.

English papers say that Lord Lorne is to be made a Knight of the Garter on his return to England. Truth, however, states there is only one vacant stall, that occupied by the late Lord Beaconsfield, and the Queen has refused to allow it to be given to any one.

An Important Discovery.

Dr. Haanel, of Victoria University, recently received a letter from the Secretary of the Royal Society, enclosing $20 from Sandford Fleming, Chancellor of Queen's University, to assist in providing means for the development and application of the new and important discovery in blow pipe analysis recently made by Dr. Haanel.

Trip to Calgary.

On the 15th of August the track of the Canadian Pacific Railway is expected to be laid to Calgary and the General Manager of the road has extended an invitation to the Directors and a number of distinguished Canadian and British capitalists to take a trip over the line. Sir John Macdonald, possibly the Governor General and several Lieutenant Governors, will be present.

The Truth Suppressed.

Mr. George Augustus Sala has returned from Moscow. He says the real story of the coronation pageant has not been told. The mobs cheered by order of the police. The officials simulated a confidence they did not feel in the loyalty of the people, but were actually in constant dread. All the telegrams sent were carefully scrutinized and adapted. The newspaper despatches were opened and doubtful passages obliterated.

A Libel Suit.

A doctor threatened the Port Hope News with a libel suit. Now, he may be a good doctor but he is a poor judge of a paper, since the News is well known to be the wrong paper to threaten, for it is all fight. Forthwith it handles the doctor at a column's length in this style:

"He is dying for office. He begged his way into the Presidency of the —— Association, so as to give him a position that his brains could never have earned. He would sell his soul as quick as he would his friends for position. A more perfect toad-eater does not exist. His stock argument is, "you're a liar." He is always threatening law to protect his precious reputation. Every body knows that he is as two faced as the devil."

Davin is a Rage.

Chief Justice Wallbridge, in comment ing upon the case of a certain criminal at Winnipeg, said he didn't believe the prisoner was as black as the papers had painted him, and that when there was an execution he would "get one of those editors and make him hangman. Nicholas Flood Davin acts as the champion of the press, and in his paper, the Regina Leader, says that the Hon. Chief Justice is not the first man he has known to insult the journalists by a joke; but, he adds "at the present moment in Winnipeg there are editors who could spare the Chief all the brain he ever had and be clever men afterwards. Hon. Mr. Wallbridge will have learned by this time that editors as well as Justices are not to be judged by appearances.

Who is the Metropolitan?

During the present Anglican Synod at Montreal the ownership of the title of "Metropolitan" will be discussed. It is claimed, says the Herald, that the Bishop of Montreal is the legal Metropolitan, and that the Bishop of Fredericton, who exercises the power, is altogether in the wrong. Why should the Bishop of Montreal be the Metropolitan? Because Montreal is the commercial metropolis? In that case one of the youngest Bishops in the Dominion would be elevated to a position which is more honorary than otherwise, and which it is reasonable to contend should be occupied by the senior member of the House of Bishops. The agitation in the Diocese of Montreal on the subject cannot surely have the countenance of Bishop Bond.

FACTS COMING OUT.

Dublin, June 21.—During the examination at Mullingar in connection with the murder of Mrs. Smythe the informer testified that the Assassination Society was started by Michael and John Fagan, with the object of removing tyrants and bad landlords. Among those named for removal were the two Smythes and the Earl of Longford. Two of the prisoners were deputed to execute the sentence. The Government have given Carey, the informer, the option of proceeding to the colonies or being released and allowed to remain in Dublin without police protection.

AN IMPORTANT CASE.

Brussels, June 21.—The trial is proceeding at Marcheon, Famenne, of Rolland, French adventurer, who, by pretending that he knew Victor Hugo, Gambetta and other men of prominence, obtained 600,000 francs from a local banker. In the course of the proceedings yesterday the prisoner declared that Gambetta had paid him a large amount for procuring important German papers concerning Bismarck. He said the money he was accused of embezzling was really paid him to bribe members of the French Chamber of Deputies.

At the meeting of the Synod of Montreal on Tuesday the Bishop was presented on behalf of the people of the Diocese with a purse containing $2,000, to be applied to the purchase of a suitable piece of plate.

DORSEY'S BLUSTER.

Amazed Because Charged with Fraud Alleged Use of Public Money In Bad Humor.

New York, June 21.—Stephen W. Dorsey has written a long letter to Howard C. Dickinson, of this city, describing his fight with the Government in the Star Route trial. "As a matter of truth," he says, "the original object was wholly political. It was a conflict between what I thought ought to be a wise administration of public affairs on one hand and what MacVeagh and those who always followed him to the root thought would best subserve their own ends and gratify their own ambitions. I was never so amazed as when the charges were first made in the New York papers, accusing me of having conspired to defraud the Government. I did not know that I had ever defrauded anybody anywhere or in respect to anything. Nobody knew better than MacVeagh and James that I never made a penny out of the Post Office Department, and that not a cent had ever been paid to me or to any one for me out of the public treasury. He asserts that his wife was shadowed and his house invaded and Government money offered in sums to induce his servants to report what they heard in domestic circles, also that the Government officials attempted to induce his colored boy to steal his books and papers. The public, he says, had been made to believe that he had taken from the Treasury millions of dollars. Garfield knew it was a lie. Arthur knew it was a lie. MacVeagh knew it was a lie. Brewster knew it was a lie. Bliss knew it was a lie. "The claws of ingratitude have spread their nails and left me without a scratch and the abhorrent use of the public treasury in this case has made every citizen feel unsafe. The infamous exercise of the powers of the Executive officers will be long remembered as long as a miserable caricature of a Government we now have is remembered by anyone."

INDIAN ATROCITIES.

El Paso, Texas, June 21.—The squaws captured by Gen. Cook have managed to let the bucks stir at large know that they are to be made prisoners, and not placed on the San Carlos reservation. Patrick Finn, who disappeared on May 8th, was murdered by the hostiles the night before Gen. Cook surprised them. Mexican women, who were rescued, were compelled to witness Finn's mutilation and final death by impaling after unspeakable atrocities were committed. Some of the murderers are prisoners. The Mexican officers are greatly dissatisfied because they had no hand in the clearing out of the Apaches. It is reported that complaint will be made of Gen. Crook not reporting his capture to the Mexican authorities.

A HARDENED WRETCH.

Lockport, June 21.—George Moore (coloured), charged with causing the death of a coloured girl whom he abused by inhumanly beating and starving her, and suspending her by the thumbs, was convicted last night of manslaughter in the fourth degree. The crime was committed in 1878, the prisoner escaping soon afterwards into Canada.

WHOLESALE MURDER.

A Medical Practitioner's Work—What Was Found in the Cellar of His Residence.

Philadelphia, June 20.—The police found in a cellar on North Fifth Street, formerly occupied by Dr. Isaac Hathaway, the bodies of several children and a large number of human bodies. Hathaway was arrested in March, 1881, with Rev. Thomas B. Miller, for committing criminal malpractice upon Mary Butler, whose child died. Both were admitted to bail, and Hathaway fled. He, however, returned some time ago, but has never been re-arrested. Three months ago his wife charged him with brutally assaulting her and threatening her life. She told the officials at that time her husband had performed several criminal operations upon her and she knew he had performed hundreds of others. Upon this evidence the house was searched and the remains of skulls of infants and bones found buried in the cellar of the dwelling. Hathaway is now in the county prison, charged with assaulting a relative. The Coroner has lodged a detainer at the prison against him.

Philadelphia, June 21.—The human remains found in the house formerly occupied by Dr. Hathaway, was examined to-day by the Coroner's physician and the entire collection found to be foetal bones. They were probably the remains of a dozen babies. The authorities will examine the dwelling recently occupied by the doctor which is thought to be another charnel house.
