Daily British Whig.

Quibus per Orbem Dicor.

FRIDAY EVENING, JULY 6, 1883.

Peter X., of the Berlin News, evidently feels hurt at what we had to say about his political exploits, but he changes all the Wing's offences to the wicked employees. He says the proprietor is a gentleman, but he has some bad men in his office. Such, indeed, is the case, but their record does not equal that of the wicked partner Peter X. had in St. Catharines. So far the bad men of the Whig have not warned the Governor General to keep off, and urged the people to burn him in effigy.

On Wednesday an application was made to strike out the petition in the South Wentworth election case. Mr. Osler, Q.C., and Mr. Muir filed an affidavit of the petitioner and defeated candidate, setting out that "after diligent inquiry they were unable to find evidence in support of the petition sufficient to unseat Mr. Awrey, and they desired to have the petition dismissed on this application." It was arranged that the petition should come on for trial in the ordinary way on Monday, and that no evidence should be given. A notice was served by petitioner's counsel of his intention to give no evidence at the trial. Mr. Awrey, the respondent, is a Liberal.

A cable to the Montreal Herald states that the Athabasca, the first of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company's steamers for the service between Thunder Bay and Algoma, was launched on Wednesday at Glasgow. The steamer, in speed and capacity, greatly exceeds the expectations of those interested in her. The second of the steamers, the Alberta, will be launched next week, and the third of the fleet, Algoma, in the week following. The Toronto Globe's London correspondent says that "these three vessels are the quickest built on the Clyde for the last seven years or more, and it is now certain, barring accidents, they will be thoroughly equipped and finished well within the contract time." The steamers will be on the route this fall, one or more of them at least as early as August or September. They will be taken apart at Montreal and in this way be passed through the canals into Lake Superior.

SIR CHARLES' DIFFICULTY.

The discussion of Sir Charles Tupper's appointment as High Commissioner has by no means cleared up the question of its legality. It has been contended, and we believe very forcibly, that the Minister of Railways cannot fill two offices, that at any rate he cannot represent a constituency in Parliament and accept of a position to which emolument is attached. The Independence of Parliament Act is quite positive in this point. The first clause says: "No person accepting or holding any office, commission or employment, permanent or temporary, in the service of the Government of Canada, at the nomination of the Crown, to which an annual salary or any fee, allowance or emolument or profit of any kind or amount whatever from the Crown is attached, shall be eligible as a member of the House of Commons, nor shall he sit or vote in the same during the time he holds such commission or employment." The fifth clause makes the case against Sir Charles even plainer. Observe the wording of the statute: "If any member of the House of Commons, by accepting any office or becoming a party to any contract or agreement, becomes disqualified by law to continue to sit or vote in the same, his election shall thereby become void, and the seat of such member shall be vacated and a writ shall forthwith issue for a new election, as if he were naturally dead; but he may be re-elected if he be eligible under the first section of this Act (before quoted)." The course of the Liberal party should be plain under the circumstances. It is quite evident that an effort has been made to evade the law. The appointment would not have been kept profound secret until after the adjournment of the House, and Sir John would not have been so careful to conceal the facts when enquiry was made for them, if the contrary had been the truth. Well, what can be done? Clause eleven of the Independence of Parliament Act states: "If any vacancy happens in the House of Commons by the death of any member or by his accepting any office, the Speaker, on being informed of such vacancy by any member of the House in his place, or by notice in writing under their hands and seals of any two members of the House, shall forthwith address his warrant to the Clerk of the Crown in Chancery for the issue of a new writ for the election of a member to fill the vacancy, and a new writ shall issue accordingly." This will be done if the Government persists in blinking at a circumstance which is manifestly wrong and about which a terrible howl would be raised were it committed by the "Grits." There is reason to believe that Sir Charles Tupper did intend to resign, that it was originally his purpose to retire from the Government, and that he remained there, not to save the country the difference in salary, not to continue in the state of poverty in which the Tory organs say he is, but to discountenance the idea that he was either too unsavory for Sir John or, disappointed in not getting the Premiership, was disposed to settle in a place with which were associated lighter duties and better pay. Be this as it may we are satisfied of one thing, that Sir Charles will be forced to either leave the Government or abandon the Commissionership. It has been pointed out that the mere fact that he does not get the salary of the latter office will not save him; he accepts the appointment and that acceptance makes it illegal for him to represent Cumberland and exercise the functions of a legislator.

ORGANS AND ORGAN BUILDING.

Mr. George Pedlar has shipped a nice pipe organ to the Allen Settlement, near Madoc. While in our sanctum this morning he had occasion to examine our "oldest cremona," and the circumstance recalled his construction of an organ when a boy, upon a farm, in the county of Huron. He said he lived a long way from a business centre, and having a great passion for music determined to build an instrument after the style of one pictured on a circular which fell into his hands. His tools were but a jack-knife and a saw, and with these he ultimately finished the music box, "and had lots of fun with it." Mr. Pedlar said his great difficulty was to get the brass for the tongues. He walked for miles through the woods in search of an old kettle which he understood the Indians had abandoned, and failing in his mission made use of the fastenings of a set of crinolines. "The organ," said Pedlar, "is still at the old homestead, a crude affair to my eye now that I have learned the business of organ building, but it is prized by me, and if there is ever an exhibition of rare curiosities I will enter it, for certain."

TROUBLE AT AN END.—The trouble in the East Hall Methodist Church, Montreal, over the removal of their pastor, Rev. J. R. Saunders, has almost subsided. The Church Board ascertained that they could not hold the church property as it was virtually in the hands of the General Conference. The Rev. Mr. Saunders left last week for Stanstead and his successor, Rev. J. M. Hagar, preached in the church on Sunday to fair congregations.

RUNNING A BAZAAR.

Cleverly Drawing the Cash From the Youths and Bald-headed Men—Church Lotteries.

The bazaar and strawberry festival, held in the City Hall yesterday by St. Paul's Church, was a decided success. By energetic labor the Hall was prepared and in the evening thronged by the youthful portion of Kingston. The scene was a lively one as the crowds of neatly dressed ladies and gentlemen moved around, enjoying themselves in a pleasant and social manner. There were numerous schemes by which the pockets of the people were depleted. Most energetically did the ladies strive, and generally with success, to secure the dimes. On the left of the hall on entering, was a lengthy table containing a large display of fancy work of all descriptions. This table was presided over by the matrons of the Church, and at it the largest sales were made. Further up was a fish pond where angling was carried on most successfully. Every one who paid a small amount went away with a catch of some kind. One young man drew a doll; his chum went one better and hauled up "Jumbo," but whether it really was an elephant or a pig scientists will have to determine. Several young ladies were anxious to jump into the pond, but the gentlemen insisted that they were too wary to be caught, and if they were hooked it would make the boys too tired, in such weather, to hold them. A banquet stand was placed at the head of the hall, and any person coming within range of the sparkling eyes of a half dozen maids, were drawn up and put through the process of decoration. "Some of the fellows," said a pretty girl with a dimple in each cheek and a pair of laughing eyes, "are terribly stingy. I have to talk and talk and then they go off and don't buy any thing. Other fellows come right up and buy when I ask them." A friend remarked that these were like sheep, waiting for the shearer. Every glance ran them deeper into the meshes. Ice cream and strawberry tables were liberally patronized. The cream was dispensed with unstinted hand, and the strawberries were dealt out on a more liberal plan than bivalves at a church oyster supper. There were several lotteries for which young ladies were the ticket vendors, and the number sold was quite large. One drawing was for a doll's house, another for a bracket. The band of the 14th P.W.O. Rifles was on the platform and at intervals rendered delightful music. Under the able tutorship of W. Carey this band is progressing at an astonishing rate. The entertainment closed about 10:30 o'clock.

GENERAL HOSPITAL.

Resignation Withdrawn—Complaints Against the Students—Talk of A New Wing.

The monthly meeting of the Board of Governors was well attended yesterday.

The resignation of the Steward, L. Buttner, was withdrawn, but it is understood that he does not desire to retain the position more than a few months longer. A bonus of $50 was granted him, as his salary was not lately advanced in proportion to those of other employees.

There have been numerous complaints from the Steward regarding the conduct of medical students, to whom the privileges of the hospital are granted, and as these have given rise within a year or two on several occasions to an unpleasant feeling, the Board will probably make the next complaint a subject of a searching investigation and a striking example.

The interior of the hospital has been brightened by the annual cleansing and thorough white washing; the halls have been re-painted, and the House Surgeon's quarters re-painted and papered. It was resolved to proceed with the painting of the walls and the much needed painting of the wood work outside, tenders to be invited. The contract for wood for one year was given to M. Mallon at $4.45.

There was no deaths last month, but three births. The patents on June 30th numbered 42, an increase of three over the month previous. The Governors for the current month are John Duff and John Fraser.

No plans have yet been prepared for a new wing, but they are under consideration. An excellent position is suggested for the new building, which will be much more conveniently placed than the Watkins wing.

A few statistics of the cost of hospitals may be interesting, showing that the management of the Kingston institution is all that can be desired in the line of economy:

	Patients	Salaries & Wages.
Toronto	1,977	$9,043.00
Hamilton	530	2,037.00
Kingston	526	1,374.00
Ottawa	372	1,722.38
London	416	2,000.00
St. Catharines	127	1,385.50

TURN THEM OUT.—It is stated that the people of Ingersoll did not receive the Salvationists who intended establishing a corps there, in fact after the meeting began the officers were told to desist and given a time in which to disappear. The Lieutenant who went from Kingston was expected to arrive home this afternoon.

ARCHBISHOP PURCELL.

A Sketch of His Life—His Financial Troubles—His Long Sickness and Death.

St. Martin, Ohio, July 5.—Archbishop Purcell, the oldest prelate in the United States, died here yesterday, St. Martin, Ohio. He was born in county Cork in 1800, of poor parents, and emigrated to America in 1818, was educated and received four minor orders in Baltimore, Md., studied at St. Sulpice College in Paris, and was ordained by the then Archbishop, Dr. de Quelen. On returning to the United States he obtained a professorship in and, later, the presidency of Mountain St. Mary College. Two of his pupils were Archbishop Hughes and Cardinal McCloskey. In 1833 he was appointed to the bishopric of Cincinnati, comprising the States of Ohio and Michigan, now divided into four flourishing sees. He was made Archbishop in 1853 when he had his famous theological debate with Dr. Campbell, the founder of the Disciples of Christ or Campbellites. His brother, Father Edward Purcell, the business manager or Chancellor of his Diocese since 1836, borrowed large sums of money on which high rates of interest were promised, and sunk these, as well as a large amount deposited with the Archbishop by his parishioners, in building churches, and charitable and religious institutions. In 1878 the Archbishop found himself with liabilities of no less than $3,700,000 and assets of about $777,000. He published an appeal, in which he pointed to his and his brother's abstemious lives, and to the cause of the financial trouble, which was that his brother "had no kind of mercantile or financial training, and had an excessive trust in the honesty of others who borrowed from him." As the Archbishop then said: "This debt has crushed me with its weight." The claims against his estate now amount to $4,000,000. For the last three years Archbishop Purcell lived at the Convent of the Ursulines, in Brown County, O. Paralysis had rendered him helpless, his tongue was affected, and it was with the greatest difficulty that he could make himself heard; the nuns wheeled him about in a chair and fed him with a spoon. Here he was visited from time to time by friends, to whom he presented the sad spectacle of a complete physical wreck. His loss of speech and other misfortunes seemed to have rendered his mind dormant and indifferent to passing events. He bore his sufferings passively, and long since fixed his mind entirely on the "things that are not of the earth."

WESTERN LIFE.

Two Civic Commissioners Shot Down—Hatred Reaches a Culminating Point.

Denver, July 6.—The city is terribly excited over the startling news of the Grand County Commissioners being attacked by a masked mob. In 1879 the county was created and the seat located at Hot Sulphur Springs. At an election in 1880 the people changed the county seat to Grand Lake. The matter was taken to the District Court then the Supreme Court. Meanwhile hatred existed between the two factions. The Grand County's Commissioners are Barney Day, R. J. Mills and E. P. Webber. Day and Mills favor the declaring of the vote illegal that created the Grand Lake County seat. On Monday the Commissioners had a regular meeting at Grand Lake. It is reported that they decided to declare the office of County Treasurer vacant, because of his refusal to file satisfactory bonds. Day, Webber and Clerk Dean stopped at a boarding house near a pine thicket. On Wednesday morning, just before 10 o'clock, the two Commissioners and the clerk started to the place of meeting. Midway through the thicket three masked men suddenly commenced firing and shooting all down almost instantly. One of the Commissioners returned fire, instantly killing one of the assailants. The other two masked men disappeared. The startled citizens arrived a moment later and found Day dead and Webber and Dean mortally wounded. They tore the mask from the other man and found he was Mills, the other County Commissioner. The other assailants are not known. Suspicion rests upon the noted desperados, Bill Reiman and Len Coffin. The news at Hot Sulphur Springs produced the most intense excitement. Shortly before dark, 20 horsemen, well armed, left for Grand Lake and a terrible fight is expected. A courier is riding 50 miles over the mountains, the only means of communication.

A TERRIBLE SIGHT.

El Paso, Tex., July 6.—Joseph Brewster, a soldier guilty of rape at Fort Davis, was hanged at Ysleta yesterday in the presence of 800 spectators. He made no confession but delivered a speech of 20 minutes, during which he took two big drinks of whiskey. His religious adviser took the bottle from him once. After the fall Brewster twitched terribly. The rope slipped and he was hauled up to the platform, the rope re-placed and then re-hung.
