Order per Orton, Bryce.

THURSDAY EVENING, JULY 12, 1883.

SCHOOL BUILDING.

This evening the Public School Board will consider the question of increased and improved school accommodation. It is urgently needed without a question, for no place has so many badly planned, badly ventilated and badly heated central schools as Kingston. This fact should caution the Board against proceeding without the fullest consideration of every possible plan of improvement suited to the general condition of the schools. There is $8,000 or $9,000 to be expended, and it will be a lasting regret if it is not placed to good advantage. Whatever is to be done now let it be thorough. It is a good rule to make haste slowly.

A STANDING MENACE.

The most disgraceful spot in the city's thoroughfares lies at the stone bridge, Williamsville. The street railway track is so low that the centre of the road is a mere drain for the roadway generality, and it is practically a barrier to traffic, as no driver will face the dirty puddles. The public have daily anathematized the spot, the papers have treated it to condemnation and ridicule, but there the matter rests. The Street Railway Company never incurs a dollar of expense it can avoid, and so long as it can continue to smile at the city's efforts to make it do its duty to the public so long will its track remain in a disgraceful condition at Williamsville and a dozen other places. The taxpayers are a patient lot to allow the City Council to so long neglect its charge of seeing that the road is kept reasonably passable. The Aldermen have not a very great confidence in their own powers to allow a corporation so feeble as the Kingston Street Railway Company to defy them upon matters which its charter make plain. If they have any pride in their own position they will see that the railway track is raised at once.

A GOOD STEP.

In Kingston, perhaps less than in any other constituency in Ontario, has Orangeism been subverted to political purposes, but yet the re-organization of the Order, begun in Toronto, will be heartily applauded here as elsewhere. Those who have witnessed the strong attempts to convert the body into an oath-bound association, to be handled by one man, can well appreciate this necessity for an independent coalition of all well-meaning Orangemen. The prospectus of the new body declares that the principles of the Orange Association have too long been diverted from their original purposes by politicians, and in the end have been foully abused. Resolutions and warnings of earnest brethren have from time to time called for relief from such influences, but they have been of no avail against personal and political interests. Therefore upon a platform for upholding the cardinal principles of the Order, no preference to men, securing perfect freedom of opinion, and to encourage fair legislation, the new organization has been effected, and officers elected. The Order which made such a respectable parade to-day cannot but be advantaged by such a platform.

AN OUTRAGE.

Prejudice against the Salvation Army is undoubtedly very deep in London, when public opinion tolerates a continuation of the prosecution and punishment of Salvationists for beating drums in the streets. The Police Magistrate is, no doubt, acting legally in imposing the fines, but he cannot surely for one moment defend the equity of the prosecution, so long as party bands and those attached to minstrel troupes and excursion parties are allowed to parade without a protest, let alone an arrest and punishment. It does seem, too, as if the one of the men who should feel a lasting personal debt of gratitude to the Salvationist should be an instrument of the law in this instance. In the light of a one-sided action the prohibition of the Salvationists is an outrage on the public spirit of fair play. Were such a prosecution entered upon in Kingston it would bring many of the most influential men of the city into the ranks of earnest supporters of the Army. It would almost be looked upon as a return to the religious persecutions of a past century. Of course the Army has a better position in Kingston than in London, but justice in the two places is, or ought to be, the same. All bands should be prohibited or all allowed. Canada does not want any exhibition of legal prejudices.

CHAMPIONSHIP RACE.

Hanlan and Ross have mutually agreed upon Mr. John E. Eustace, of the Atalanta Boat Club of New York city, as referee in their race for the championship of the world on the St. Lawrence River at Prescott and Ogdensburg on the 18th July. Both oarsmen are doing hard work in training, and in their practice spins are watched by admiring crowds. From present indications the race will be the finest ever witnessed in America. Ross will make a desperate struggle to the coveted championship, and, of course, Hanlan will be equally determined to maintain it. Strangers are already beginning to arrive, and before the end of the week a large crowd is expected.

AN EMPLOYMENT PREVENTER.

Information comes to hand that a navvy on the Ontario & Quebec RR. fell in love with a Sharbott Lake beauty but the venerable "papa" was averse to the union. An elopement was suggested, but as the pair was about taking the train for the city "papa" turned up, severely fastened himself to the lady's arm, and took her home. The navvy still lingers around the city.

These subscriptions are all from Kingston with the exception of Mrs. Trout's. The city has done its duty well, and should have some support from the country at large. A local lady is also on the point of establishing a scholarship.

The meeting decided to organize then and there, and apply at once for a charter. A ballot was taken for a Provisional Board of Directors, (nine men and five women), and the following were chosen out of 25 nominations: Mrs. Trout, Mrs. Dickson, Miss Gildersleeve, Mrs. Harty and Mrs. Britton; John Carruthers, A. P. Knight, E. J. B. Pense, Sir. R. J. Cartwright, Henry Folger, Hon. G. A. Kirkpatrick, Wm. Harty, Alex. Gunn, R. V. Rogers.

This Board will hold office until the charter is completed, and meanwhile will meet on Monday next to elect its Chairman, and then a President of the Faculty and a Registrar. Then will be proceeded with the choice of the rest of the staff. The movement for the college has done its work quickly and well. Kingston is deserving of great credit for it.

TORONTO DRIFT.

The Globe says it seems to be settled that there are to be two medical schools for women in Ontario, one in Toronto and one in Kingston. The competition between these institutions, if not carried so far as to cripple both, should be to the interest of intending students. In the matter of medical training the women of Ontario are now better off than they are in the matter of higher education in general. To be generous for once Toronto should drop out and give Kingston a chance to make the College a great success.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

Yesterday afternoon Detective Macauley, of the G.T.R. force, had a narrow escape from death. He was standing near one of the tracks, conversing with the laborers, when an engine came noiselessly upon him. He was struck by the cowcatcher and knocked down. His feet went under the catcher and the powerful wheels would have been upon him in a moment had not Cahman Phillips and another person pulled him from his perilous position. He was not injured save by the shock. His escape was most fortunate.

WHERE IS SHE, ANYWAY?

The Toronto Evening News has a correspondent in Ingersoll who says that Miss Stevenson was not requested to leave Ingersoll. He asserts that she is still in town catching all the boys by her seraphic smiles. She has been dubbed "laughing Annie." The Lieutenant, now in Kingston, will be surprised to learn that she is in Ingersoll and that, though her name is Maggie, the boys will call her "Annie." We are surprised at the naughty Ingersoll boys.

BOUND TO GO ON.

At Gananoque yesterday Rev. Mr. Harris said the Salvationists were having a hard time of it in London, but they are bound to go along. They only wanted the same rights others had, and them they would have if the whole army had to go to gaol. To-day telegrams indicate that three Captains have been incarcerated.

"I wouldn't be without Dr. Bowen's Celery and Chamomile Pills if they cost $1 a pill. They cured me of neuralgia of nine years standing." Joseph Snyder, Paulsen, Pa. 50c per box, at druggists.

HOLMAN FAMILY.

Their Present Opera Season in Kingston—A Good Company—A Bereavement to Bear.

Last evening the Holman Opera Company commenced a brief season of comic opera in this city, producing "Olivette" in a most interesting and enjoying manner. The organization is known as the Boston Opera Company, because largely composed of Boston artists with whom Mr. J. T. Dalton and his wife were associated until recently. The bill on the opening night was excellently filled, every one of the Company singing in fine voice and with better than usual effect. Miss Sallie, in the little role, was as captivating as ever, as I observed by received recalls after several of her numbers. Miss Blanche Holman, as "the Countess," A. D. Holman, as "De Merrimac," J. T. Dalton as "Valentine" and Mr. F. Nelson as the "Duc des Ih" were all in good voice and gave most artistic interpretations of their various parts in the cast. The opera is quite familiar here and needs no extended notice; suffice it to say that it has seldom been seen in Kingston to better advantage. It was repeated at a matinee this afternoon. To-night the "Mascot" will be given, and we doubt not a very enjoyable evening will be passed by those who attend the opera.

A HEAVY FAMILY BEREAVEMENT.

Few of our citizens are aware of the heavy bereavement which the Holman Family bears. No musical club have been more familiarly and favourably identified with our people. Mr. G. Holman and his wife first appeared in Kingston as members of the Henry Cooper Opera Company, of which Mrs. Holman was contralto and Mr. Holman acted as stage manager. Shortly afterwards they formed a Company of their own, and in the last twenty years have visited the city a dozen times, always receiving cordial and liberal support. The daughters of the family—Misses Sallie and Julia—were "the pets of the public," and stars of no small magnitude. Three years ago the latter died, and the feeling was that the light of the household had been extinguished. But greater afflictions were yet to come. Some months ago, when travelling from Freemont to St. Jos. by rail, Mr. Holman's little grandson "George" became ill. At St. Joe two physicians said he was very feverish, not critical, so that next morning he would be able to continue the journey of the Company. The life of the little one flickered for a time, then went out. The Company had to be disbanded, and at a time when its outlook seemed most bright. The body was conveyed to London—the home of Mr. and Mrs. Holman since the rebellion of 1838—and placed in the vault. A few weeks later on and Mr. Holman's brother, better known as "Big Al," dropped dead of apoplexy, and he and little Georgie, when the springtime came, were interred side by side in the quiet Western cemetery. Nor was this all. While the Company were filling important engagements in Southern Iowa Mr. G. Holman received intelligence of the death of his sister, Mrs. F. Duggie, of Brantford, and the sorrow he carried was the more intense because he could not attend the funeral. The measure of grief was not yet full. Mrs. Brightshaw, mother of Mrs. A. D. Holman, at her home at London, suffered from a stroke of paralysis, requiring the attendance of her children and for ever unfitting her for the parts she so often played to perfection. Such a train of unfortunate circumstances do not often come within the bounds of one family circle, and we do not know of a better way in which the people of Kingston can manifest their sympathy than to give the Company the benefit of their presence during their stay in the city.

TO RUN THE RAPIDS.

Dr. Woodman, of the Knickerbocker Club, New York, started from Cape Vincent yesterday for a sail and row down the river to Montreal and other points by way of the rapids. His boat is a new and very light canoe made for the occasion, and is furnished with many more appliances for the comfort and safety of its adventurous occupant. The Doctor proposes to run most of the rapids, avoiding only the most difficult and dangerous ones. He is to be joined at Ogdensburg by other members of the Club who will make the journey with him in the same manner.

ANOTHER DETROIT EXCURSION.

The str. Bohemian, of the Royal Mail Line, arrived up yesterday and this morning left with a party of 300 Americans for a trip down the rapids. They embarked nearly a hundred miles. The Royal Mail Line str. Algerian also took a nice party East at 5 o'clock.

A GREAT BARGAIN.

THAMES ON A TEAR.

Twenty or Thirty Lives Lost—Many Houses Seen Drifting Down the Stream—Drowings.

London, Ont., July 11.—The most disastrous freshet that have ever been known in this vicinity occurred last night. It raised for eight hours and the river Thames rose rapidly, inundating London West. Nearly everyone in the village (2,000) had to take refuge on the house tops. Houses were washed over and carried off down the river. Only one bridge is fit for travel. Three or four are totally carried away. Both railway bridges are badly sprung and traffic is suspended. Houses were carried down the river with people screaming on the roofs and inside. One house was lodged against some trees a mile below the city. A boat followed, attracted by the screams. They were drawn away by persons on roof tops whom they rescued first. The family are supposed to be drowned. Four of the family of Mr. J. F. Gracey were washed away while trying to get to high ground. Three of a family named Stratford, three of the family of D. F. McLean, two of the family of Wm. Mayland, a child named Cox, and an old lady named Hopkins are also among the drowned. Horses, cattle and live stock generally were drowned by the hundreds. About half past three when the swelling tide had several London West houses floated out on the Thames and commenced their journey toward the lake. All the inmates escaped but one young lady. The house in the flood kept its upright position. Miss Wright never screamed, nor indeed did she appear to have lost her presence of mind. As the strange vessel passed Dundas Street Mr. McLean standing on the walk exclaimed, "Gracious heavens, there's a woman in that house, and she has a lamp in her hand." "Nothing can save her," exclaimed another, but fortunately the house drifted in near Reeve Bartram's and Miss Wright was rescued. Mr. Hopkins, of Kensington, first handed his wife into the boat and then essayed to jump in himself. "Hold off man," roared Mr. Guy Parke, but the man jumped into the frail skiff, which instantly upset. Parke and Hopkins clung to the boat, but the poor man was swept to her doom. Miss Wright turned a raving maniac. On Blackfriars Street, Petersville, the houses are turned every way. The fences are all gone and the streets filled with rubbish.

On the Warnciliff road houses are floating in the middle of the road and in some there are said to be dead bodies. On the south side of the track the scene was still more striking. Hundreds of acres of flats were submerged. An Island consisting of about an acre and a half to the southwest of the Cove bridge has been utilized as the refuge of a large herd of cattle. Mr. Johnson, proprietor of the brick yard, sustains a heavy loss. Two million bricks were destroyed, and over 300 cords of wood sent adrift.

LIST OF THE DEAD.

Up to this hour the following is the list of lives lost: Mrs. Hopkins, Kensington; four children of Mr. E. F. Lacey, London West; a woman name unknown; a 7 year old girl of Mr. Gun, Ann Street; three children of George Stratford, Napier Street; three children of D. F. McLean, Blackfriars Street; one child of Wm. Mayland, Ann Street; Mr. James Spackman, wife and 3 year old boy.

The London West school was used as a house of refuge by many of the unfortunate victims.

A family named McCauley were rescued this afternoon in an exhausted condition. A woman was swept down the river clinging to a table, and when near the Cove Bridge, succeeded in clutching the willows upon the river bank, where she clung for fully three quarters of an hour. It was found impossible to reach her, however, and at last she sank.

The locality of Blackfriars bridge presents a scene of the most deplorable desolation. Throughout all this section of the village buildings have been washed away.

Mr. Jeffrey was obliged to cut a hole through the gable of his residence on Centre street, from which he lowered his wife and family in a boat below.

A little boy was observed floating down Centre street, but owing to the almost irresistible force of the current all efforts to secure him were unavailing.

A woman was picked out of the flood dead at the corner of Blackfriars and Napier streets. There are many yet housed up in the Petersville section who can not be got at but at 10.30 the work of rescue was going vigorously on.

THE FLOOD SPREADS.

The flood was felt at St. Thomas, Inwersoll, Stratford and other places, and great damage done. At London the water has subsided, and relief has been given to the needy. No additional bodies have been recovered.

WAITING FOR NEWS.

A Rumpus in Madagascar—England Asks for Explanations Respecting the Affair.

London, July 11.—Mr. Gladstone, in reply to Sir S. Northcote, said that when the French occupied Tamatave, Madagascar, and proclaimed it in a state of siege the British Consul was ill. His Secretary was arrested in his presence; the Admiral was only allowed to make a verbal protest. The flags of all the foreign Consuls were hauled down. An English missionary named Shaw has been arrested at Tamatave and remains in prison. The charge against him is unknown. Inquiries have been made regarding its nature. The only answer received was, "The law must take its course." Mr. Gladstone said, "In announcing these grave and painful occurrences I can only now say that we must wait receipt of further details. We must also await those communications from the French Government that the case may require, and which we have intimated we expect, and which it would be our duty to make under similar circumstances." Gladstone's remarks were followed by cheers.

London, July 12.—The Speaker of the House of Common has informed Mr. Bradlaugh that he will be excluded from the House until he engages not to attempt to take the oath in disregard of the resolution of the House.
