CITY AND VICINITY.

PROBS.—Moderate to fresh winds generally fair weather with local rains, mostly in southern portion; stationary or higher temperature.

PROFESSIONAL VISITS.—Dr. G. S. Ryerson, surgeon for the eye, ear and throat diseases in Toronto General Hospital, will visit Kingston on Monday, July 16th, and may be found at the Burnett House.

INSURANCE.—By a recent letter from Mr. Ball, Manager of the Sovereign Fire Insurance Company, to Mr. Snook, it seems that the claim of Mr. Killins, referred to in yesterday's WHIG, for the destruction of his store and contents, is likely to be immediately satisfied.

CORRECT PARTICULARS.—The name of the man killed near Parham station on Wednesday evening was Peter Rainville, a farmer, living two miles from the station. His horses threw him out of his vehicle, and falling on his head the concussion split the skull. He was picked up dead.

PRICE OF WOOL.—Very little wool is coming into the city at present. Farmers will not dispose of their clips while the price remains at 20c. to 21c. per lb. They would rather manufacture it into blankets and flannel. The amount purchased in the city so far will not go over 10,000 lbs.

DIVISION COURT.—The Judge and lawyers have returned to the city, after doing the Circuit Division Courts. The business done was very meagre. There were few cases and those tried were of a trivial character. On Tuesday the Court opens here, but an important jury case of Flint vs. Tierney will be adjourned.

THOUSAND ISLAND PARK.—The rush of summer travel is now beginning in earnest, despite the somewhat unfavourable weather, and people are flocking to the Park in great numbers. The formal opening of the season will occur to-morrow, when services will be held in the Tabernacle tent. On Monday the Rev. LeRoy Hooker, of this city, will preach.

PARISH BOUNDS.—Rev. R. L. Stephenson, of Perth, has been giving the bounds of several parishes in the rear. The mission of Maberly until such time as the missionary at North Frontenac can see fit to add a portion of Oso, will comprise the township of S. Sherbrook and all that part of Bathurst west of the villages of Harper's Corners, Fairbrooke and Playfair.

BIG STRAWBERRIES.—William Marlow now takes the lead in the strawberry line as to size, as far as samples shown to us go. He brought to the city to-day some very fine berries of the Sharpley variety—not one or two boxes, but many dozens of them. Mr. J. A. Allen, who saw them and is a good judge, says they are remarkably large for so late a date in the season.

ONE OF SEVEN EXCURSIONS.—The Grand Trunk RR. brings an excursion party from Geneva, N.Y., in six Pullman coaches to Kingston on Tuesday morning. The Maud has been chartered to take the party to Alexandria Bay. They leave Kingston at 9 o'clock. The Pullman cars run alongside the Ferry wharf. This excursion is one of seven under Grand Trunk management.

LONDON THE LESS.—R. Barker, Post Office Inspector of London, writes to a friend here: "The water got within a few feet of our house, and all around the house was awful. Past the door swept horses, trees, bridges, etc., and this lasted until evening when the water subsided. I saw houses drift down the street, strike a bridge and appear on the other side in pieces, together with the furniture, the chickens, ducks and pigs."

GRAND LODGE.—W. D. Gordon, while in Ottawa, installed the officers of an Encampment. Great preparations are being made for the Grand Encampment, which meets in the Capital on August 6th and 7th. The Kingston Encampment will attend and to the ranks will be added about 40 members. The Watertown Encampment will probably visit Kingston the day before and join our local organization in its travels Eastward.

THE LATE DROWNING.—To-day we give the newspaper particulars of the drowning of young Fred Burgess, at St. John, and the sadness of the first announcement is increased by the details. He was drowned almost within reach of eager helpers. The deceased had spent many weeks in Kingston with friends within the past three years, and was affectionately regarded. This spring here he spoke with much pride of the rowing skiff which has led to his death.

MARINE NOTES.

A Captain Recompensed by the Government—Dismissal of a Crew—Finding Firearms.

The schr. O'Gorman is loading pods for Oswego.

The schr. Eliza White has cleared with lath for Charlotte.

All vessels loading coal at Oswego in future will have to pay their own tonnage bills.

The schooner Lendville, known to Union sailors as the "Home Comfort," owing to her excellent appointments, is in port with 24,000 bushels of corn from Toledo.

The arrivals at Garden Island are the schrs. Jessie, Augusta, and Mary Battle, from Toledo, and schr. W. J. Suffel, from Detroit. The cargoes were timber and staves.

The tug Bronson has cleared for Montreal with three barges carrying 1,300 tons of coal, 100 tons of phosphate and 14,000 bush. grain. The tug brought up five light barges this morning.

The bottom of the Atalanta, hauled out at Deseronto, was in a very rough condition owing to the number of barnacles which covered it. Her centre-board was also split and badly broomed up.

Several days ago Capt. Saxie Brooks, of the Cecelia, discharged his crew because they would not accept the wages he offered to them. Without money or friends he landed them in Kingston. President Pudlon looked after them and shipped them to the canal, where they will await the Cecelia's arrival. The vessel cleared for the canal with only three persons on board, and one of these had a wooden leg.

FOUND BY A DIVER.

James Coullen, a diver, working on the shoals, has had a curious find. He reports that many of the rocks are polished as beautifully as with instruments by the action of the water. Yesterday while prowling about in his suit he picked up a fowling piece. It had evidently lain in the water for about twenty years. It was in good shape and loaded with shot, capped and cocked ready to fire. How it was lost our readers who were familiar with navigation years ago may infer.

A LOSS PAID FOR.

Capt. McIlwain, of St. Catharines, has succeeded, after seven years, in securing payment for his vessel, the St. Andrews, sunk in the Welland Canal. She was grain laden and struck an obstruction. She was raised and last year sank off Long Point Cut, Lake Erie, with 14,000 bush. wheat, consigned from Toledo to Kingston. The claim presented to the Government was not allowed by the arbitrators who first examined it. Capt. McIlwain then went to Ottawa himself, and by his own personal exertions, after explaining all the circumstances to Sir Charles Tupper, had the case re-opened. On the second hearing $3,000 was allowed him with seven years' interest. He had just returned from Ottawa after seeing Sir John Macdonald, who paid the whole amount awarded, with interest.

CLAIM OF CAPT. TAYLOR.

Now that the Government liability has been established it is only right that Capt. W. R. Taylor should have his claim adjusted. Some years ago the schooner Annie Falkiner, coal laden, was passing through the Canal. She struck a rock and sank, and it cost $4,100 to raise and repair her. The accident was caused by negligence on the part of the Government. Near Port Colborne in a cut, and the rugged rocks are still sticking out. A boom was placed alongside it to prevent the vessels from running against the rocks, but the water being high the boom moved inward. The vessel coming along struck the obstruction and sustained the damage alluded to. Capt. Taylor, as well as Capt. McIlwain, is entitled to recompense.

SALVATION ARMY NOTES.

Capt. Abbie returned to the city on the Maud at noon to-day.

On Monday the hallelujah pic-nic will be held—the event of the season. If the weather be fine the attendance will be very large.

Next Saturday will be a busy day, between the weekly market, Barnum's circus and the great Hallelujah Tent Opening.

Captain Abbie has arrived and will be at this evening's meeting. If she is an interesting address will be given. Her experiences abroad have been remarkable.

Last evening Happy Nellie, of the Salvation Army, was presented with a beautiful bouquet of roses. They came from the garden of our esteemed friend, Mr. M. Flanagan.

Captain Abbie and her forces, in four boats under direction of Commodore Henry Folger, will make an attack upon Simcoe Island on Monday. Before such a combination the devil ought to fly.

All four of the ferry steamers are under engagement to carry the pic-nic party to the hallelujah pic-nic on Monday next. Capt. Abbie Thompson, Lieutenants Ryerson and Brock, Rev. H. Harris, Mrs. Watson and others will be present and conduct the services. Tickets 25 cents; children 15 cents.

The advertisement in another column announces a rare attraction for Saturday next, on which occasion the Army will open their new circus tent and run in opposition to Barnum. There will be a Jumbo at both pavilions, but that with the Salvationists is destined to have a greater future than Barnum's. In the former case there is the assurance of immortality and eternal life.

The Gananoque Reporter has a long and interesting account of the Army's Tuesday attack on the village. It says: "So far as the meeting is concerned, there is no doubt but the audience were gratified at the service—they had seen and heard something of the great Salvation Army." Our contemporary speaks well of the singing and adds: "A large crowd attended the solution to the wharf glad that they had come and hoping that they would come again."

THE GREAT RACE.

CROWDING TO THE RIVER FRONT—PROMISE OF A SPLENDID RACE ON WEDNESDAY NEXT.

Hanlan and Ross in Practice—In Good Condition and Well Trained—People Already Excited—The Men Hopeful but Tolerably Silent—Our Excursions.

It would seem public opinion being fairly calculated, as if the bulk of our people are going to Ogdensburg on Wednesday, the date of the race between Hanlan and Ross. These men are the finest oarsmen in the world. "Our Neil" has merited the title of the world's champion, and there is no other that can defeat the St. John athlete. Ross has remained comparatively quiet during the season, engaging so far in no exciting races; but Hanlan has been in service since the opening of the season, participating in a series of regattas and by his winnings, pocketing a large sum of money. He has, therefore, become richer and at the same time kept himself in condition without resorting to the severe training which does so much to tear one up physically and early in life incapacitate him for hard work.

A HANDSOME PRIZE.

There is reason to believe that the forthcoming race will be the fastest on record. Hanlan, on his own account, has promised this, and we are given to understand by those who have seen the men at work, that Ross was never in better shape for pushing the champion. Ross is by long odds the heavier man, his rowing weight being now 180 lbs. It may, however, be somewhat reduced before Wednesday. Hanlan pulls at about 150 lbs. The men are of course, urged to do their best for ambition's sake. Hanlan has an honor and reputation to defend which he spent years in acquiring, and Ross has a desire to snatch it from him, thus at once obtaining the greatest victory and prize which any oarsman can have. There is something beside—a purse of $4,000, made up of the stakes and the offering of the people of Prescott and Ogdensburg.

Ross was the first to reach his headquarters, which are at Daniel's Hotel, Prescott. He has been talking little, but a correspondent says "there is about him an air of determination that plainly says the Champion will have no walk over this time. Ross is in the best of condition, and his long clean sweeping stroke, when out for practice, is greatly admired." His style is not unlike Hanlan's, but it lacks the poetry of motion which the latter's skillful sculling is said to possess. Ross is attended by his brother Edward, an oarsman of some expectation, having won in several races for small purses and against lighter timber. He achieved some prominence by his rowing at Ottawa on Dominion Day. The boats of the Halganian are kept in Wiser's houses. The oarsman is careful in his movements and training, retires early in the evening, rises early, and performs a regular amount of service daily.

HEADQUARTERS OF THE CHAMPION.

Hanlan has not been long at his headquarters, at the Windsor Hotel, Ogdensburg—not over a week. He reached the burg as soon as possible after his performance at Pullman, Ill., where he encountered nearly a score of oarsmen and defeated them all without difficulty. What he is capable of doing we cannot tell. There may be two or three who have had the opportunity of timing him on a spurt; but no more. In his races, even when such has not been expected, he has halted and hesitated and even stopped work while his opponent struggled on. When in full swing he can drive his boat along quicker than a steamboat, and has repeatedly headed off some of the fastest crafts running out of Toronto. The little curly-headed fellow has been feted to an extraordinary extent. The Americans cannot make too much of him, and if his allegiance is not won it will not be their fault. The evening of his arrival he was tendered a public reception at his headquarters at the Windsor House, and in a brief speech, thanking the people for this ovation, said he thought that, barring accidents, the coming race would be the best the world had ever seen. He also said that during the past thirty days he had rowed in five races—winning them all.

LAYING OUT THE COURSE.

The course for the race has been laid out. It lies west of the lighthouse near the American shore. Both oarsmen express themselves as delighted with it. The erection of the grand stand, which will be on a high bluff overlooking the whole course, was commenced yesterday. The oarsmen have had frequent spins at the same time, and their movements are watched with great interest by thousands along the shore. Prescott and Ogdensburg are already filled, rooms and even meals being engaged weeks ago, almost from the time it was announced that the race would take place. Certainly the press have been generously provided for, being given excellent accommodation at Hanlan's headquarters, and promised a tug with which to follow the oarsmen around the course on Wednesday afternoon. The betting just now is in favour of Hanlan, and it will most likely continue to be so influenced. Promising as Ross is he labours against the feeling that his opponent is invincible, and hence the favourite. Betting men, too, favour Hanlan, because they know him to be reliable. He will do his best to win, and when he is defeated—as he must be sooner or later—it cannot be said that he sold himself to his friends. On Wednesday afternoon the contestants were out, and so close as to permit of a comparison. They row beautifully and the finish of the race must be very exciting.

GREAT HERD OF SPECTATORS.

It is fervently hoped accommodation can be had by those who may go from this city to view the race. The mail steamer will no doubt carry many, but the Maud will be the popular boat for the day. She offers the advantage of no changes, meals at Kingston rates, and reaches Ogdensburg at an hour to enable the excursionists to secure a position where a good view of the race may be had. Those who cannot go by steamer, will find the trains convenient, a quick passage to and from Prescott being made for $1. A great many will certainly travel by rail. A private party make a tour down the river in the steam yacht Marquis of Lorne, with R. J. Killback at the wheel. It is some years back since "Bob" acted as pilot, and he may have forgotten the location of some of the shoals and snags. It is to be hoped not, or the party placed in his mercy will not see the race—except in their minds.

THE LATEST CRAZE.

The latest craze among fashionable young ladies is to have their luxuriant tresses cut quite short and disposed in bewitching locks on the forehead, with a particularly alluring tress wave just above the nape of the neck. The effect is very bewitching, and the ranks of the "short-haired" are increased every day. This latest caprice has emanated from stately Newport. It appears that towards the close of last season some fair daughters of La Belle France discovered that their long hair was a drawback towards the thorough enjoyment of the bathing season. They held a council of war and electrified the "swells" by appearing with their chevelure close cropped quite close. Others followed suit, and though there might be no possible chance of their ever dipping their abbreviated tresses in the briny deep, adopted the style out of a slavish adherence to fashion. Two-thirds of the tourists arriving at the hotels this season have their locks shorn to the required length. The Kingston young ladies have not been slow to fall into line and fashionable hair cutters have been besieged by damsels all anxious to conform to the mode.

CELEBRATING AN EVENT.

The Mail says that in 1784 the townships of Kingston, Ernesttown, Adolphustown and Fredericksburg were settled by the United Empire Loyalists. These men relinquished fortunes and estates in the then new Republic in order to live on British soil and to enjoy British institutions. They underwent great hardships as pioneers of the Bay of Quinte district; but they have left behind them for the benefit of their families fine estates and names which all true Canadians revere. It is suggested that as next year is the centenary of the landing of the Loyalists in the district mentioned the occasion should be appropriately celebrated. The idea is a good one. No doubt descendants of Loyalists in other parts of Canada would take part in the celebration, and probably the Lieut. Governor, who is himself descended from an important Loyalist family, would be present.

A SAW MILL BURNED.

For several days the saw mill of Thompson & Avery, at Sharbot Lake, had been shut down for repairs. The machinery was out of gear and workmen were engaged in fixing it. About ten o'clock last evening the mill took fire and burned with great rapidity. Several of the workmen had a narrow escape from being burned. It is supposed that a light fall upon some of the waste oil about the machinery and hence the conflagration occurred. The loss totals about $3,000, with an insurance of $800. A considerable quantity of shingles and lumber was destroyed. The mill was burned in a very short time. Thompson & Avery may rebuild, or they may purchase one of the other mills in the vicinity.
