OVERSHADOWED.

To the grief that may be healed again
And only then, that pours when sing
The heart is broke, or stunned by its pain
Of shadowed over sent by sorrow's wing.

The distant storm which all the forest bends,
The bolt that rends the far off stately pine,
With awed, hushed breath we view, and prayer ascends,
And thoughts, word wrought, leave on the page their sign

But when so deep that eyes are stricken blind,
Hands weak and helpless through no unwilling fears,
No word, no speech, no prayer the soul can find
Even sympathy can bring no gift but tears.

A CHURCH PARADE.

14th P.W.O. Rifles Attend St. Paul's Church a Second Time—Chaplain Carey's Sermon.

Yesterday morning the 14th P.W.O. Rifles attended the service in St. Paul's Church. The corps, full strength, and preceded by the brass and bugle bands, left the Drill Shed, in light marching order, at 10:45 o'clock and reached the church via Bagot Street. The centre pews were reserved for the volunteers, the side pews were occupied by civilians. The congregation was a very large one. Chaplain Carey officiated. His sermon was founded upon Psalms lxiii, 1:

"O God, thou art my God; early will I seek thee."

He referred to the great demand which there was in this age for youthful strength and activity and energy, but he said the young would be badly off if they had not the old to counsel and guide them. In order to be the better qualified to bear the responsibilities placed upon them, in society, in mercantile life, in the church, the young should early seek the Lord. His grace and the sanctifying influences of His holy religion. The preacher especially dwelt upon the necessity of

FORTIFYING AGAINST TEMPTATION,

and said the discipline of the soldier should enable him to say "nay" to whatsoever had the ring of impropriety. They had correct examples—the example particularly of Him who denied Himself in order that he might benefit the whole human race. The Chaplain, in passing, also enlarged upon the virtue of total abstinence, and bade the volunteers imitate in this respect the present chief of the British army. Eighteen years ago when Wolsley headed the expedition to the North West total abstinence was the chief plank in his platform, and it has been a well demonstrated fact that the soldiers who do not use liquor are not only abler to stand exposure and hardship, but they are better physically, morally and intellectually. In concluding he congratulated the regiment upon the distinction which it had won on Dominion Day. He congratulated the officers; he congratulated every member from the Colonel to the last joined recruit, upon the good name which the corps had obtained; and his sincere wish was that it might not do anything having a tendency to lessen the esteem in which it was publicly held. He had a word to say about the amazement which some people had expressed that he risked his by going with the volunteers to Brockville. As long as the volunteer forces of Kingston conduct themselves as well as they did on Dominion Day he would not be afraid or ashamed to identify himself with them. Some were evidently not aware that he was the only clergymen west of Montreal, occupying close relations with the volunteer forces. Bishop Bond and Rev. Canon Ellwood, were, like him, connected with the forces, and to their praise be it said that when the Victoria Rifles, of Montreal, went about a year and a half ago to Quebec, to take part in the great review, they went too, and without fear of public opinion. He trusted that the conduct of the 14th in the future would be as it had been in the past, that nothing would occur at any time to bring the blush of shame to the faces of the citizens. He hoped they would be faithful in this life and merit a reward in the life that is to come.

REPUTATION AS A CLERGYMAN

The singing was unusually hearty.

UNCOMFORTABLE MARCH HOME.

The rain poured down as the congregation was dismissed. Notwithstanding the wet and the wind, however, the corps formed up and were led, to quick music, back to the drill shed, admired by many on route.

On Friday its inspection by Major-General Luard takes place.

PROGRESS ON A RAILWAY.

The other day we copied from the Belleville Intelligencer an item to the effect that track-laying on the Northern extension of the C.O.RR. had commenced at Trenton. This, it seems, is a mistake, as 45 miles of track have been laid north of Trenton, of which 30 miles have been ballasted. Rails are being laid at the rate of two miles per day. A correspondent says he went over 25 miles of the track on Dominion Day, and the road is smoother than any one he has ever ridden upon in Canada. It is well ballasted; iron bridges span the creeks and streams, and they have good solid masonry abutments. The bridge at Chisholms' Rapids is a superior structure, costing $30,000. The road will be finished to the iron mines, a distance of 75 miles, by the 1st of September. All the station houses will be of brick. The Company has a fine roundhouse at Trenton Junction, and they are building another at the Carrying Place; they are also erecting extensive works for the shipment of ore. The rolling stock is also being increased. There are now six or eight locomotives and 300 cars in service. It is contemplated to build a branch to the far-famed Sand Banks. The C.O. RR. Co. consists of the McMillan Bros. and several iron capitalists in the States.

COTTON AGAIN.

The Interminable Conflict Over the Much Depreciated Material—Cousineau's Farewell.

The Editor, British Whig.

SIR,—In reply to our letter of July 3, the "large" firm of Walsh & Stoacy write on 6th inst., that the wager on the fall of cottons shall be on the basis that "if cottons are sold by any other house in the city 1c to 2c per yard cheaper before 1st Oct. than on June 25th they win, otherwise they lose. We had adopted the Kingston cottons mill's price list as a reliable standard, so that there would be no equivocating or squirming on the part of the "large" firm. However, to suit the "large" firm we will change our wager to the following basis, viz.: On June 27th we were selling Kingston cotton, 22 yards for $1; if any store in the city (of their own free will and without being solicited to do so by Walsh & Stoacy, or their agents) sell this cotton in the regular way at 5½c or less per yard we lose, otherwise we win; the "large" firm to put up $100 cash or a cheque that is negotiable.

We find that to the additional wagers we offered to the "large" firm have not been accepted, they knowing they would lose. This we consider an acknowledgment that they were arguing against facts, and have, therefore, been obliged to take "back water."

They write that were they to wager on another statement of their's we would doubtless find some way of getting out of it as we did their bet on the 100 bales. Will they kindly explain to the public how we got out of it? We compelled them to swallow the pill they made for us; unpleasant as it was.

They have the hardihood to again assert that they have $23,000 worth of stock now after a successful season's trade. This is a very ingenious way of advertising but we will bet $100 or more that the assertion is unfounded. As to the slur thrown on the class of goods we keep, it is only what could be expected from such an ungenerous source. We do keep millinery, clothing, boots, and soap, and would say that if we keep soap it is our own business. If we keep boots and millinery they are bankrupt stocks, and we advertise and sell all such, and the public of Kingston both rich and poor are very willing to take advantage of the bargains. Many of the buyers are as "finely span," though probably not possessed of so much nerve and assurance, as the "large" firm of Walsh & Stoacy.

They also state that when they are as long in business as we are and do not do twice as large a business as we are doing they shall go to the North West, etc. Well we have invested in the North West enough money to buy out their entire business. We have been in business thirteen years, have gained money and experience, and if the "large" firm wish to do the same, we would advise them earnestly to mind their business and not depreciate the reputation of their rivals, either verbally or in print.

They again repeat the statement that they sell more cotton for $1 than any other house. If so, why do they not let the public know through the daily papers, the quantity they give for $1? Surely they will yet accept our oft-repeated challenge to do so! It is the opinion of many business men in the city that Walsh & Stoacy's letter of July 6th was a miserable defence, being made up of feeble arguments and misrepresentation. They have only made a worse bungle of their case. As our correspondence has had the effect of placing the "large" firm in a proper light, and of proving that they wilfully mislead the public, we will refrain from any further correspondence for the present.

F. X. COUSINEAU.

July 14th, 1883.

[Walsh & Stoacy have withdrawn the $100 placed in our hands on the ground that Mr Cousineau has not taken up their wager on the terms of deposit.—ED. WHIG.]

N. T. & Q. RAILWAY.

George A. Cox, President of the Midland Railway, attended the meeting of the Directors of the Napanee, Tamworth and Quebec Railway, at Yarker, on Friday and submitted a proposition for building the road and taking stock in it. The offer will most probably be accepted by the Company. He took hold of the Midland Railway when it was so badly run down that it was not safe to travel over and when its finances were in such a condition that no farmer would sell the Company a load of wood without the cash being paid down; he has raised it to a leading position among the railways of the province. Mr. A. White, general freight and passenger agent of the Midland, went over the line yesterday and will submit to Mr. Cox an estimate of the business tributary to the line. His report will decide the question as far as Mr. Cox is concerned, and the Company will then take action.

O. & Q. RAILWAY.

Tracklaying is completed on the Ontario & Quebec Railway fourteen miles west of Perth, and the work, under the energetic superintendence of Mr. Angus McDonald, is now proceeding at the average rate of one mile a day. The track has been laid close to the village of Maberly. Ballast from Kirkham's pit is being placed on the "fills" to widen the road-bed.

"I wouldn't be without Dr. Benson's Celery and Chamomile Pills if they cost $1 a pill. They cured me of neuralgia of nine years standing." Joseph Snyder, Paxtons, Pa. 50c per box, at druggists.

There is no one article in the line of medicine that gives so large a return for the money as a good porous strengthening plaster, such as Carter's Smart-Weed and Belladonna Backache plasters.

THE GREAT SHOW.

What is to be Seen and Enjoyed on Saturday Next—The Programme in Advance.

The Barnum and London Show, which is to exhibit here on Saturday, has convinced the newspaper world that it is the biggest thing under canvass. In the exhibition pavilion will be seen the most varied, unique and interesting performances. There are three rings, an elevated platform or stage, besides numerous trapezes; performers are giving exhibitions continually and the arrangement of the seats is such that every spectator can see all that is going on. Never in a circus tent has there been such an air of respectability or cleanliness. The performers are lady-like and gentlemanly in deportment and appearance, while the small army of young fellows who assist are clad in Prince Albert coats, silk hats and top boots. A novel feature is that the several clowns are not allowed to speak or make any noise. The merry makers are attired in various grotesque costumes and have to depend on their actions alone to create a laugh. Another thing that the management deserves the thanks of the public for is the suppression of the female with their red and white lemonade and barber pole candy. The programme of acts opens with the triumphal presentation of processional, arenic and caravan splendor. After the customed lady and gentlemen riders comes the herd of elephants, camels and many wild beasts, some of the camels and elephants and a pair of zebras being driven in harness. After the parade comes the introduction of Jumbo, the baby elephant, the band of Indians, the Montezuma that heads the Zulu warriors, Col. Goshen, and a female snake charmer. Then follows an exhibition of trick stallions and ponies, which makes way for a leaping contest between sixty vaulters. Then comes a wrestling match in one ring, a dancing match in another, globes quo dancing and high kicking in the third, while the stage is occupied by the Kilpat children in a remarkable act on wheels attached to their feet. Then follow feats on flying trapezes, slack wire, bareback track act, somersault and trotting act and lady bareback riding, gymnastic and acrobatic acts, light balancing, bicycle riding, Caledonian sports and horizontal bar exercise, a high trapeze act and sensational slides for life a distance of three hundred feet by Emma Justan, and five-horse bareback and hurdle riding. All of these specialty performances. The entertainment concludes with the very exciting hippodrome races. There are eleven races in all, including gentlemen's jockey, ladies hurdle, double team, Roman standing, elephant to saddle, man against running horse, four-horse Roman chariot, and several comical races, the whole sending the people home completely satisfied.
