JOURNALISTS' CLAIMS.

Mr. D. Wylie, of the Brockville Recorder, is mentioned in connection with the Shrievalty of the United Counties of Leeds and Grenville, made vacant by the death of Mr. Patrick. No man is better entitled to the appointment, and if the Government of Ontario recognizes the voice of the press, as expressed in their strongly worded memorial forwarded to the Attorney General by the Association of newspaper men during their late jaunt through the Lower Province, he will be honoured. Mr. Wylie has done fifty years' battle for Reform and Liberal principles. He is the oldest journalist in active service, his senior in the profession, the Nestor of the Wasp, having some time since retired to office and given his last thoughts to the people in the octogenarian's correspondence. Mr. Wylie was not forgotten by the men whose practical principles he so ably championed. He was by Mr. Mackenzie given a position in connection with the Militia, not one bringing to him an immense salary and all the luxuries of life, but a place whose duties he was qualified to fill while they afforded him a competency. A Tory Government, moved by impulses which are too well understood and need not be now described, removed him, without consideration and cause, and forced him back into the journalistic ranks. The opportunity is again presented of doing him an honor he greatly merits, and deep will be the disappointment of the members of the Fourth Estate if he be overlooked.

A CHIMERICAL SCHEME.

The World is wise when it refuses to credit the statement that New York capitalists are burning with anxiety to construct the line (Brockville & Georgian Bay RR.) New York capitalists are always ready to invest where the chances are in favor of a handsome dividend, but to suppose that they will put their money into a railway scheme before even a preliminary survey has been completed, is to pay them a very equivocal compliment. From the first the Times has placed no reliance upon the offer made by Mr. Cole, for the simple reason that it was lacking in all the main essentials of a business transaction. No doubt he has interested some New Yorkers, who always have their eyes open for the main chance, and the general activity which prevails in Eastern Ontario furnishes the best evidence that a line will be built from the St. Lawrence to the Sault. Brockville holds the strategic point. If we construct one section to Westport we shall be well on the way to Georgian Bay, the halfway house to the Sault.—Brockville Times.

We have written nothing which more than the above depreciates the Brockville & Georgian Bay RR. scheme. We have stated that it is chimerical, and our contemporary really endorses this statement when it says it has placed no reliance upon Mr. Cole's proposition because it lacks definiteness, or "the main essentials of a business transaction." We print on the first page of this issue the correspondence of "M.A.J.," which, we believe, reflects the feeling of a majority of the people of Westport. This correspondence assures us that the K. & P. RR. branch is well thought of, and that it will have the financial and moral support of those affected thereby. We feared that the advocacy of the B. & G.B. RR., visionary though the project is, would tend to confuse the ratepayers and delay the work which the country so much requires; but "M.A.J." dispels our apprehensions. The K. & P. RR. is now under construction in the direction of the Glendower mines, and we hope that before long steps will be taken to have the people say what their intentions are in regard to the bonuses towards the extension of the line to Westport. This branch is now needed; and if it is thought expedient hereafter to build to the Georgian Bay there will be no bar to progress, inasmuch as the Company now possess the charter.

MIDLAND CENTRAL FAIR.

Whilst not wishing in any way to injure the prospects of the Provincial Show it must be evident to every one who has given a thought on the subject that the purposes for which it was originated have been fairly answered, that its usefulness is greatly degenerated, and that it has become a big bone of contention between the east and west—the west generally doing the picking—and that it has not long to survive.

Seeing this Toronto has established a show of her own, which, whilst open to the world, must be looked upon as being especially representative of a certain locality, Toronto being the centre and immediate beneficiary—a show far eclipsing the Provincial even in its palmiest days, almost without a rival in the Dominion and an example that other local centres would do well to take pattern by; a success achieved by a liberal prize list, an unlimited use of printer's ink, and a programme of general and special attractions, not restricted by what they would cost but by what they would be likely to bring in.

The experience of last year must have taught Kingston is not likely again to be honored by a visit from the Provincial, and that to have a fair with its concomitant pecuniary advantages, such as will render the east independent of, or at least indifferent to, the problematical visits of the Provincial, centralized local efforts must be relied upon. Our Midland Central has already won a good reputation throughout the Province and may be taken as the representative show from Belleville, west, to Prescott, east, and this year above all others it should be shown up in its best dress.

So far as can at present be gathered the exhibits will be largely in excess of former years, but it must be also borne in mind that exhibits alone do not make up a show, than "one swallow makes a summer." It's the crowd, the 25 cents admission fee, that are wanted, and to attract those the crowd must be first attracted. We, therefore, urge upon the managers of the show to spare no exertions, to allow no slugged consideration of cost of "specialties" to interfere with what we may fairly hope will favourably contrast with last years' failure, feeling sure that the merchants, hotel keepers and others will cheerfully contribute their quota and that Kingston will see a regular old fashioned "whale" hauled on its shores during the show week.

ACCUSED OF FAVORITISM.

THE FACTS OF HOYLE'S DISMISSAL FROM THE KINGSTON POLICE FORCE—AN INTERPSTING INTERVIEW.

The Remarks Made of a Causal Character—No Refusal to Do Duty When Ordered The Sergt.-Major Accused of Favoritism—Who are His Pets?—Other Subordination.

The removal of Police Officer Hoyle from the force created considerable discussion in the city last night, and many were the regrets expressed that this faithful officer had been so summarily removed. There being peculiar circumstances connected with the case a Wasp representative hunted up the ex-constable and asked for his version of the affair.

"Mr. Hoyle, will you kindly give me statement regarding your dismissal?"

"Well, I don't care for newspaper notoriety. I am now off the force and I don't crave to get back upon it under such as officer as Sergt.-Major Bell. The Chief is a nice officer, so far as I know. Probably it would be as well to let the matter go without further publicity."

The reporter told Mr. Hoyle that the case had excited much interest and that the public were anxious to know just how the difficulty occurred. He said there was a difference of opinion on this point, besides if there were disturbing influences they should be known. "There is a rumor," said our reporter, "that dissatisfaction exists, and we wish to get at the facts if possible."

Mr. Hoyle then

MADE THE FOLLOWING STATEMENT.

"Yesterday about 9 o'clock I was in the station house sitting at the table. I picked up the Wasp and while reading it came upon a paragraph in reference to police inspection. The Magistrate was asked to impose fines as sufficient warning had been given to the people to clean up. After reading the item I threw the paper down and remarked, "In my opinion that is an honest and fair piece of news. I don't think it is necessary for the police to inspect any place five or six times. If the Magistrate would do his duty and put a fine on all parties, after being notified, there would not be a necessity for so much inspection, and I for one will not look at any man's place five or six times. I am sick from having done so before." Mr. Hoyle continued that he had been out all the previous half day, and immediately on his return to the station house he and P. C. Small were ordered to inspect one McGinness' place, on Ontario Street, which had been reported before and the parties taken to court. While at the inspection and had to leave, as the parties in the house know. "Well," he continued, "after I had made the remark in the police station the Sergt.-Major, who was standing near having just come in and heard it said,

HE WAS TAKEN SICK,

"You will have to do anything you are ordered so long as you are on the force."

"I said, I will not do that; I will not look into any man's closet five or six times."

"The remarks made by me were reported to the Chief and I was called to repeat them. I did so and the Chief said I should obey orders. I told him I could not do it as I was sick, in fact would not do it. My badge was called for and I handed it in. Then the Commissioners met and I was called before them. I stated the case and the result was my dismissal. There's all the facts."

REALLY NOT ENGAGED OFF.

"The Sergt.-Major then did not order you to re-inspect McGinness'."

"No. The remarks made were only casual, and caused by my reading of the piece in the paper. Often previously remarks of a more serious character have happened in the station house in my presence and no notice has been taken of them."

"Then you think there is favoritism shown to some members of the force?"

"Yes, I think some men can say and do about as the like. The other night one man refused positively to go on beat and another had to be sent in his place. No notice was taken of that act. The Sergt.-Major was the one whom the officer refused to obey. I don't think my case was as bad as that. Then again men go out on beat and never return until next day when they have a sick report to make, and every thing is all right in place of getting a report previous to leaving or returning and complaining of being sick. I always secured my report if sick before I went home. Had I not done differently I am positive I would have been reported."

COMPLAINT OF FAVOURITISM.

"Is there much complaint amongst the men regarding the way in which the Sergt.-Major conducts himself?"

"Yes. One half of the force must be dissatisfied with the favoritism shown by him. One man can do about as he likes while another has to live strictly to regulations or stand the consequences. No pet of the Sergt.-Major need fear any trouble. There is much more that I could tell you about, but as I have been asked I give this statement to you. I do so and I can prove its truthfulness. I do not blame the Commissioners for what they did. They had no alternative. I have long been annoyed and dissatisfied with the treatment I have received from the Sergt.-Major. Yesterday I spoke my mind out, but with no reference to the Major's authority. The result is as you see."

ELECTRIC LIGHT.

The Excursion of the Salvationists upon the Steamer Maud—Features of the Trip.

Two hundred and eighty persons boarded the steamer Maud as she pulled out last night on the "moonlight" trip of the Salvation Army. The excursionists represented all classes in the community. The jovial youth was there and the sedate old man; the spoony swain and the love-sick maid; the man with the red nose and the individual who drinks "only water, sir." The Salvationists were on hand in large force and the unsaved also stood around and did not look the least unhappy. The band, Lieuts. Brooks and Ryerson, and best of all Capt. Abbie were there. The latter looked ill, but smiled upon her friends. A little hand bound in white cotton and held in a sling told of the effects of the late accident. She was cordially greeted by her soldiers and friends and congratulated on her narrow escape from more serious consequences. There was another officer on deck. Capt. Coffin, but the Wasp's criticism had quieted him. He was not heard to offer any remarks and the meeting he seemed so anxious to have on Tuesday night did not occur. The Maud ran up to the asylum, and, turning, went down the river. The moonlight was not furnished but the excursion was lighted by electricity. The lightning flashed with great vividness and some couples seemed to be much frightened as they tenderly hung to each other. The evening was spent in singing and listening to the excellent music of the band. Ice cream and cake and candies were also dispensed and greatly relished. About 10 o'clock the rain descended; but when the boat reached the wharfat 10:30 o'clock there was again dry weather All reached home without a wetting. The trip was fairly enjoyed and the members of the Army are certainly indebted to Mr. H. Folger who generously donated the entire proceeds of the excursion to the barrack fund. No further trips or picnics are now announced.

A TERRIBLE FIRE.

Hunter's Point, Aug 22.—A fire broke out shortly after 11 o'clock in the packing shop of the Empire Oil Works, Long Island City. The shop was of brick, 250 ft. by 700 ft. Over 100 men and boys were employed. There was the wildest excitement. The shop was soon in a mass of flames. The tin shop was 175 by 250 feet. New again this was followed by the barrel shop. The fire spread to one of the largest agitators in the yard containing 305 barrels of oils. The Brooklyn Department sent several engines, but the fire spread rapidly. The Howe Lard Oil Works are in great danger. The damage is already estimated at $70,000. Patrick Cooney was very badly burned; 30 others were injured by the falling walls. The fire is believed to have been caused by workmen accidentally dropping a hot cinder in an oil can.

The loss by the Empire Oil Works fire will be $200,000.

The operations of the French have been stopped for the present, the troops being insufficient to attack Sontag and Bacninh.

A CYCLONE'S WRECK.

One Place a Complete Ruin—Collecting the Dead and Wounded—A Pitiable Scene.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 23.—A cyclone at Rochester, Minn., last night is reported to be very severe; 34 are reported to be killed; 50 or more are injured. There are vague rumours of a train disaster by being blown from the track.

Kasson, Minn., Aug. 23.—A cyclone passed about six miles south doing great damage. Three women, wives of Norwegian farmers, were killed, and a number of others badly injured. Houses were destroyed and live stock killed.

Dodge County, Aug. 23.—The crops in the path of the cyclone two miles south of here were destroyed. Heavy damage was done to buildings. A man named H. Elbrech and wife, working in a field, saw the storm and clung to each other. He was knocked senseless. She was blown a distance and horribly mutilated. His arm was twisted and other parts severely injured.

FULLER PARTICULARS GIVEN.

The portion of the city north of the railroad, called Lower Town, received the most damage. Not a house remained uninjured, and not twenty are standing. It looks at a distance as if there had never been a building in that portion while in other sections the remains of houses show the terrible destructive force of the work as soon as the cyclone passed, and as the people in the more favored portion began to learn of the damage they went to Lower Town to render assistance, many working all night. While all knew the destruction had been fearful they had no idea of its extent until the next morning when its horrors were appalling. Commencing at J. R. Cook's house, on St. Paul Road, which was entirely demolished, the cyclone took Leland's residence and barn and the outbuildings, not leaving a stick standing, thence sweeping through Lower Town.

EFFECTS RESEMBLING A FLOOD.

It seemed as though a terrific flood had swept over this section; in many places where there had been a residence hardly a board is left. The grass is filled with dirt and sand, as if a muddy stream passed over it

Ten business blocks were unroofed and two hundred houses damaged; total loss $400,000.

LIST OF KILLED AND WOUNDED.

Dead—John McOle, prominent business man, owning four mills, was picked up by the wind and hurled to the ground breaking every bone; Mrs. McQuillan, Mrs. Steele, Mrs. Zirearth and August Zirearth, her son; Mr. Osborn and his aunt; Mrs. Fred. Clough, Mrs. Wetherby, Mr. Hetzell, Wm. Higgins, Mrs. Quick and child, Miss McCormick.

Eight bodies have been taken into the country by friends before their names were known. Four are still unchaired, making 28 killed and 51 wounded.

Louis Pesse, Mrs. Coons and Frank Clement, with broken limbs are with friends.

COURSE OF THE CYCLONE.

The cyclone started near Owotanna, followed the line nearly a mile South of Wiona RR. crossing at Rochester, and following north of the road, passed east 25 miles and 3 miles north of the road. It varied in width from one and three miles and did not skip as usual, but swept everthing clear. Houses, barns and crops are all gone. As far as heard from about six persons have been killed outside of Rochester. Loss to the crops $300,000.

Those under the doctor's care as follows: Mr. Carl Quick and five children, badly cut; Mr. Rhend, wife and child; Frank Schultz, badly hurt; Annie Zrearth, badly cut; Mrs. Rhend, internally; John Rauer, John Schaenock, Milo Weeneys, Dan. O'Brien, Mr. Wetherby, Geo. Hansen, Oscar C. Hall, Mr. Hawkins, Wm. Lee, injured externally; S. A. Welch, not serious; Mrs. Irwin and two children; Nels. Hansen, wife and child badly cut; Mrs. Osborn and daughter, badly bruised. Three children were so bruised that it is thought they cannot be recognized by parents. The above are in the hospital.

ANOTHER CLOUD-BURST.

Tucson, Arizona, Aug. 23.—On Tuesday night a cloud burst and did great damage at Stoneman's Pass, Pima county. The machinery of the Twain Mining Company was washed away. A number of Mexicans were drowned.

CYCLONE IN MINNESOTA.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 23.—North of Viola the cyclone swept the crops and buildings clean. A man named Wells was very seriously hurt. Along the railroads people saw the clouds rolling over with a roaring noise.

A LONDON SCANDAL.

Lord Charles Beresford Takes too Much Wine and Insults the French Ambassador.

London, Aug. 22.—A great social and diplomatic scandal has just transpired. M. Waddington, the French Minister to London, was given a special entertainment and dinner at the house of a noble lady at her summer retreat at Cowes, on the Isle of Wight. The occasion was graced by the presence of the Prince of Wales. The French Minister was accompanied by Admiral Kroppel. Everything went well and merrily until after the ladies retired from the table and the cigars and light wines were brought in for the gentlemen. The conversation soon drifted to the Chinese war and then a debate was started by Lord Charles Beresford upon the merits of the English and the French navies. The hero of Fort Moks grew warm with wine and he gradually became very offensive in his remarks. The efforts of the Prince of Wales and others to check him into decorum served but to make him persacious. He fell to ridiculing the entire French fleet, and wound up with the statement that he could take Candor, the little gunboat with which he moved around Moks during the bombardment of Alexandria, and chase the whole French fleet in Chinese waters away from the Annam coast. M. Waddington considered Lord Beresford's contract so extremely insulting that he arose from the table, demanded his carriage and actually left the house. The hostess followed him, and after most earnest solicitation finally persuaded him to refrain from going to a hotel and re-enter her home. In the meantime the British officers present compelled Beresford to leave the place, and such was the noble Lord's resistance to this treatment that his ejectment practically amounted to being kicked out. Every effort was made to hush up the matter, but nothing could suppress M. Waddington's denunciation of the treatment to which he had been subjected, and the affair was last night the scandal of London.
