NO LONGER "TO OBEY."

HOW ONE MAN HELD OUT "FOR THE OLD, OLD STORY!"

(See Friday night's editorial in Whig on the marriage question.)

"Love, honor, obey," and the last most emphatic
"In accordance with rule," said my friend to his spouse.
An occurrence had risen, with strong points on both sides,
Which had proven much harder to soothe than arouse.
At length it led to the troublesome question,
Unanswered for ages, of which was the one—
And a matter like this, until settled in private,
Were well conference leave severely alone.

My friends undertook to argue it sagely
Not quarrel about it as common folks do,
Just merely exchange with each other opinions
And decide which was right when once they were through.

(Wife) THE ARGUMENT.

"Assuming a case—the wife much in earnest,
"With what seemed to her, a very good reason;
"And he should object, without one 'why or wherefore,
"Or else 'put her off' from season to season.'

(Husband)

"Well, my dear, if most kind, he might do as you say.
"And gently resist, or waive the point so.
"But his right is and doubtless will ever remain,
"To quiet all nonsense by one great big 'No!'"

(Wife)

"But I think, why yes! surely, there is something said,
"If they twain should be one"—

(Husband)

"Remember, dear, please,
"It reads, one flesh, not one mind, or one spirit,
"No woman has share in either of these;
"They are man's right divine, he permits if he chooses
"A certain amount of the one or the other,
"But expects it repaid in smiles and good dishes,
"When these fail, I assure you, there's trouble and bother,
"Unless he is good, oh! yes, awfully good!
"And he need not be good, 'tis needless to tell you,
"Some such law was once given to him I believe,
"But 'th' obedience' from her, spoils its practical value.

"The fact is, my darling, it just comes to this,
"In home, or in dress, or whatever it may be
"Why, yes, I may say, from the size of the household,
"Right down, if needs be, to the naming of baby
"It all quite depends on the style of the husband,
"What treatment she gets she obey is most sweeping,
"Though it causes, I know, in general cases,
"Either quarrels and ruin, or heartbreak or weeping."

(Wife.)

"But surely now, husband, you don't think the letter
"Of that law's fulfillment was ever intended;
"The ones just beneath it, for children and servants,
"In sentiment lofty, were better attended.

"Obey in the Lord," is the true Bible teaching:
"And thus, whenever the husband is trying
"To enforce, in the home, what is noble and holy,
"He should rule, despite either scolding or crying.

"But I claim, that the wife has privilege equal,
"Not permitted, allowed, but equal in fact,
"In the spending of money, arrangement of household,
"Or raising of children, in word and in act.

"If not, then fond words and gentle caresses,
"All the bright dollars given, when he cares to spare 'em,
"Are favors, not rights, and woman in England,
"Is no better off than wife in a Harem!

"So far as her rights are concerned, through her master,
"Perhaps may possess some fine, civilized notions,
"Of how far he may safely allow her control,
"Of her own words, and deeds, and thoughts, and emotions.

"Indeed, when the subject we carefully ponder
"The law of the East is, by far the superior,
"It relieves woman-kind from being accountable,
"Man, assuming the sins of her, an inferior!"

"But here, in our Canada, even her promptings
"Of right and of wrong are under control;
"While he—Adam like—if he stumble to ruin,
"Has the right to blame her for the loss of his soul!"

DECISION.

At this point—I'm reporting, and must give 'in toto'
The arguments used and decision attained—
He roused himself sharply, "I declare I was napping,
"But, you've had the last word—so you're point is gained.

"Now, I must be gone! Good bye, little girlie,
"I cannot stop longer, the street car's just here
"Look your sweetest to-night when I come from the office,
"Lest you drive me down to the Club room, my dear!"

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

The longest bridge in the world is in China. Its roadway is 70 feet wide and 70 feet high. There are 300 arches, and each of the pillars, which are 75 ft. apart, bears a pedestal on which is the figure of a lion 21 feet long and made out of one block of marble.

When a Wesleyan Conference assembled at Hull, England, eighteen resident clergymen of the Church of England, led by the Vicar of Hull, attended to present a warm fraternal address. This unusual kindliness to Dissenters has brought sharp condemnation upon the makers of "unwarranted advances."

Courtney, by rowing three miles at home in Union Springs in 19 minutes and 27 seconds, shows that he is still ready to break the records that other men set up, although those other men always respond by breaking Courtney's heart when he tries to race with them. That is the way they get square with him.

The women of England drink as generally as the men, and with as little conception that there is any harm in so doing. To see ladies of refinement regale themselves from brandy flasks while travelling on the trains is a sight that surprises only strangers, and thousands of the most respectable of the sex don't scruple to stand with their husbands at the public house bar, and even to take their children to these places.

Milwaukee, Wis., is the scene of a very curious divorce suit. Jeremiah Hutchings asks that he be freed from the "she dragon" to whom he is attached on these grounds: That she has a terrible temper; that she paints, powders and uses all other arts to beautify herself—a fact which he states he did not know before he married her; that she takes all his money from him and doesn't allow him enough even for clothing, and lastly, that life with her is simply a burden. The court has not yet rendered a decision.

The conferring by the Queen of the Garter made vacant by the death of the Duke of Marlborough on her young grandson, Prince Albert Victor, has fallen like a thunderbolt on English society. She sent for him while Mr. Gladstone was absent in the Northern seas and conferred the blue ribbon at Balmoral, the Princess Beatrice alone being present. It is the first time the highest titular order in England has been granted to one so young, and it is absolutely without precedent that the son and grandson of the sovereign should hold a blue ribbon simultaneously. On the last vacancy the Queen passed over Mr. Gladstone's nomination and gave the ribbon to the Duke of Grafton.

AN ELECTION INCIDENT.

The Standard states that a few days ago about 200 men were set to work by Mr. McNamee, the contractor, on the new junction railway that runs through Jacques Cartier County, and the impression prevailing throughout was that they were put there to help Mr. Monsseau's election. On the 15th, the day before the nomination, Mr. St. Jacques, the foreman, offered all those who would go to St. Genevieve the next day and help Mr. Monsseau, to pay their day's work and carry them thither for nothing. Eighty-four men accepted the offer. The next morning Mr. McNamee appeared and ordered all those who were not electors to remain at work while the others might go. All the 84 said they were not electors, but Mr. St. Jacques insisted on their going, telling them they had better obey Mr. Monsseau than Mr. McNamee. Accordingly they went to St. Genevieve and created the row. The next morning they, with their foreman, were all discharged by Mr. McNamee, and now they are besieging Mr. Monsseau's office in the city to get paid or taken back.

LUARD'S ECCENTRICITIES.

His Extraordinary Criticisms at Cobourg Camp—Scenes in a Luncheon—Retreat of the General.

Cobourg Militia Camp, which has been under the able management of D. A. G. Villiers, broke up on Saturday. Two before the brigade was inspected by Major-General Luard. On riding to the saluting base, preparatory to the march past, he discovered several staff officers, including the camp quartermaster, the paymaster, the surgeon and regimental surgeons, not mounted. He demanded who they were, and on receiving the information peremptorily ordered these off the field. During the field evolutions which took place, if the slightest irregularity occurred, the General seemed to become beside himself. There is no doubt he made many criticisms which were deserved, and offered innumerable suggestions which were invaluable, but the effect of these was almost entirely destroyed by the manner in which they were made. The slightest deviation of uniformity was everywhere made the subject of a military philippic. A folded overcoat strapped on upside down was in several cases a sufficient pretext for onslaught on both officers and privates. Riding up to one company he singled out an unfortunate young soldier whose countenance was bronzed by constant exposure, and denounced him as dirty and disgraceful. Turning to the officer in command, one of the most respected in the regiment, he politely informed him that he (the officer) did not look any too clean himself, and could not expect his men to be tidy. When the review was over the General was gracious enough to accept an invitation to luncheon with the brigade and regimental staff. During a conversation which took place thereat—in which Colonel Williams, of the 46th, and the General were the chief participants—the former was given the lie direct by the latter. A painful lull in the conversation ensued, and shortly afterwards the General, accompanied by his A.D.C., arose and beat a hasty retreat. Colonel Williams will call the attention of the House to the question of the General's conduct. It is also rumored that an arrangement has been made by influential seats in Parliament, to agitate for his immediate recall by the Imperial authorities. The only battalion who received the slightest scintilla of credit was the Peterboro' Rangers, one of the finest and best equipped in the Dominion. Before the camp broke up Colonel Villiers, the Commandant, issued brigade orders addressed to all ranks expressing his entire satisfaction at the proficiency which the troops had attained during the time at their disposal; also commending the general good conduct of the men while in camp.—Globe.

HIS WIFE'S DEBTS.

The Court Sustains a Husband in His Refusal to Settle—Domestic Infelicity.

At the Division Court sittings at Brighton before Judge Benson the peculiar case of Fort v. Pollock created much interest. About last November the defendant, a gallant young bachelor farmer living a few miles north, fell a victim to the charms of one of Warkworth's belles and joined the noble army. In the exuberance of the honeymoon he called at the plaintiff's jewellery establishment in Brighton and chose a lady's gold watch and chain, valued at $80. He asked the plaintiff to put them by until his wife could call in and see them. The jeweller put them away but saw no more of his customers till March last, when the young wife called and said she was to see the articles for her. She thought they would do and enquired of the jeweller would wait for his money until after harvest. This he consented to do, and thereupon his customer purchased jewellery to the further value of twenty dollars. When the flowers were in bloom and the honeymoon was over the defendant called on the plaintiff and asked if his wife had got a watch and chain from him. Upon being answered in the affirmative he said, "Well I don't feel like paying for them." It turned out that his partner did not apparently fully appreciate the romance of farm and dairy life, and had returned to town. The defendant learned that she had contracted other debts in the month of March amounting to hundreds of dollars. He then offered to pay all her debts if she would return home, but she declined. The action was brought by the plaintiff to compel defendant to settle the account for the watch, chain and jewellery, amounting in all to $120. Mr. L. U. C. Titus appeared for plaintiff and Kerr, Q.C., of Cobourg, for defendant. The plaintiff had a number of witnesses. Mr. Kerr asked for a non-suit on the ground that the wife had no authority to run her husband into debt without his written order. His Honor took the same view and dismissed the case.

GOOD MANUFACTURING FACILITIES.—Z. Prevost (at the New York Clothing Store) has every facility for manufacturing order work. A Good Offer.

In order to induce you to test in your own family the great pain cure—Polson's Nervoline—we have put it up in 10 cent bottles, which you can purchase at King's drug store. This is the best way to introduce an article of merit, for if meritorious you will continue to use it and recommend it to your friends. Nervoline is good for outside use, and better than any other for internal. It may be given to the most delicate child. Try Polson's Nervoline. Sold by all druggists.

McGregor's Speedy Cure.

From the many remarkable cures wrought by using McGregor's Speedy Cure for Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Constipation and Affection of the Liver, and from the immense sale of it without any advertising, we have concluded to place it extensively on the market, so that those who suffer may have a perfect cure. Go to Chew's Drug Store and get a trial bottle free, or the regular size at 25 cents and one dollar.

The most miserable martyr to existence is probably the confirmed dyspeptic. But Burdock Blood Bitters cure Dyspepsia and all diseases of the Stomach, Blood, Liver and Kidneys. Do not trust to word alone, but address the proprietors for proof.

Dr. Carson's Stomach Bitters are not an Alcoholic Stimulant, but a purely Vegetable Medicine, Cathartic and Tonic in its action and invaluable in all affections of the Stomach, Liver and Bowels.
