Arrival of Cracksmen.

We warn the people of Kingston to carefully look after their houses and property. Six crackmen and confidence men have arrived, and there is every prospect that they will attempt to do "some first class work." The police have their eyes "peeled" for the visitors.

A Large Funeral.

The funeral of the late William Sherwood occurred yesterday afternoon. It was attended by a great company. Kingston Lodge, I.O.O.F. No. 30, and the Encampment were present in uniform, headed by the 14th P.W.O. Rifle band. The pall bearers were Messrs. W. B. Little, S. Oberndorffer, J. Metcalfe, W. McCammon, J. B. McIver and W. J. Livingston. The presence of so many citizens testified to the respect in which the deceased was held. The beautiful Oddfellows' service for the dead was read at the grave.

A Hard Voyage.

We learn that the schooners Bangalore and Hyderabad, laden with salt had a hard voyage to Chicago. Both vessels were harassed with head winds and head seas and worked so heavily that they sprung a leak. When the cargo of the Hyderbad was being unloaded Capt. Olsen, of the Custom House, found that 140 packages of salt were destroyed by water. The inspector who examined the cargo of the Bangalore also found that a large portion of it was badly damaged.

General Distribution.

Geo. M. Reid, of Reid Bros. & Co., London, Ont., is superintending the delivery in Kingston at every door of a sample package of the "Nonesuch" Washing Compound, manufactured by the Merchants' Company, of London, Ontario. It is a genuinely good article, fast becoming the choice for general use, and a trial is sure to make friends for it. Hence this mode of introduction. There is no need of the imported article when a Canadian article is so excellent.

Commercial College.

Mr. D. A. Girvin, B.A., will deliver his second address this evening on Political Economy in the Collegiate Institute building, corner of Clergy and Barrie Streets, at 8 o'clock.

Dr. Phelan's third lecture on the Science of Health will be delivered on Wednesday evening in the same building and at the same hour. The lectures by these gentlemen last week were largely attended, showing that the people of Kingston can appreciate scientific lectures as well as the people of any city in Europe and America.

Climbing Over the Wall.

The papers continue to criticise, in a humorous spirit, Sir John's visit to Victoria barracks. The Winnipeg Sun says: "Sir John Macdonald is said to have taken a great fancy to the Salvation Army, and no wonder. Apart from the fact that the gallant Captain at Kingston is a pretty and captivating officer of the female persuasion, the Army has crystallized Sir John's own sentiments in the phrase, 'If you can't get in at the golden gate, climb over the garden wall.'"

Visiting the Woods.

With the earliest Spring Mr. R. W. Phipps, of Toronto, will make a tour through the great forest region in the north-east portion of Ontario, passing from the front near Kingston back towards and past Lake Nipissing, obtaining from lumbermen, farmers and other practical men their opinions as to the best methods of conducting in protective forests such portions of territory as it may be advisable to preserve in woodland and of preventing the ravages of bush fires in all portions of the country.

NEARNESS OF GOD.

Prof. Ross, of Queen's College, Declares in Favour of a Universal Salvation.

Rev. D. Ross, the new Professor of Apologetics and New Testament criticism in Queen's College, occupied the pulpit of Chalmers' Church yesterday morning and preached an excellent sermon upon the words, (Isaiah lv. 6.) "Seek ye the Lord while he may be found; call ye upon him while he is near." Reference was made to the spirit of exclusiveness which predominated with the Jews to their belief that no other people would be shewn the mercy of God. Isaiah witnessed that the blessing of salvation was dispensed to all who called upon God out of a pure hearts for God is a God not of the Jews only but of the Gentiles, universal not national. The narrow bigoted spirit of the Jews had, however, lived throughout all the centuries and until our day. There are now those who think that salvation can be found only in their section of the Church, that Christ is the Saviour only of those who receive the sacraments of men who are in the LINE OF APOSTOLIC SUCCESSION.

He is the God of the Episcopalians and Roman Catholics, not of the Methodists and Congregationalists and Presbyterians. Others think that only those who have been baptised when they have made a personal profession of their faith can be partakers of the blessing of the gospel and inherit everlasting life. They do not recognize those baptized in infancy even though they receive the baptism of the Holy Ghost. Christ is the Saviour of the Baptists only, not of the Episcopalians and Presbyterians and Methodists. This bigotry was worthy of the Jews of old. Is it not time that intelligent people read the Scripture aright and learned that divine mercy is independent of churches and sects, that salvation is the gift of God through faith in his son? There is, said the preacher, a gradation of thought in the text—(1) Seek the Lord; (2) Call upon Him. Under the first heading the uncertainty of life, the warnings contained in accident and misfortune and calamity were commented upon. Tens of thousands perish while hugging the delusive hope that they will have the opportunity and time for righteous living. Men who were prudent and prompt in regard to business matters neglect eternal interests or the great end and purposes of their existence. And oh! 'tis pitiful to see one who has been neglecting spiritual impressions all life long attempt at the last moment to break loose from the fetters that bind him and finds that he cannot do so. The spirit will not always strive. There is a point beyond which mercy will not be strained. Under the second head Prof. Ross discussed the nearness of God. Sometimes, said he, God is nearer to us than at others, especially during trouble and calamity and sorrow. Many are attracted to Him by the representations of His wonderful compassion and love which the Scriptures contain, but more are led through sorrow and disappointment to call upon Him, and out of the thick clouds of darkness they

HEAR THE CHEERING WORDS.

"'Tis I, be not afraid, peace be unto you." God, too, is near in the churches, and He, not man, must be worshipped. When men say they can wander through the field, stroll through the meadow or tangled forest and worship God far better than in the temples built with hands they know not what they say. The men who neglect their duty in the sanctuary are not apt to see sermons in stones, books in the running brooks and good in everything. God is again near when presented in His word. He speaks in the tempest, in the hail, in the winds and the mildew, but we cannot interpret Him aright. In the Scriptures we understand Him, and the words must be terribly impressive if realized as the utterance of the eternal though invisible. Lastly He is near, very near, on high days when He is manifested not only in the preaching of the word but in the breaking of bread. The text was commended to each one, "Seek ye the Lord while He may be found, call ye upon Him while He is near."

Police Court—Monday.

Mayor Livingston and Ald. Smythe dispensed justice this morning.

P. Fallon asked for leniency. He came out of gaol on Saturday at 6 o'clock and at 7 o'clock was drunk. He was given a chance to get out of the city.

Angus Halliday, an Indian, was found in a woodshed, where he said he had been chased by a white man.

"Where's your squaw?" asked the Mayor.

"In the woods," was the reply.

"I suppose she's waiting for you."

The Mayor let the copper colored individual go to join her.

Edward Murphy, a vagrant pensioner, was allowed time to enter one of the city charities.

William Wilson, for stealing a valise from John McCarthy and a cap from P. Deane, Washburn, worth $40, was sent up for trial.

Patrick McGuire pleaded guilty to stealing a violin from Thomas Gormley on Sept. 18th, also $2 from R. Draper, Inverary. Sent up for trial.

George Belton was discharged. No prosecutor appeared. He was given two weeks in which to pay an old fine.

The Schooner Julia Goes Down.

On Saturday noon the schooner Julia left port with 7,500 bushels of barley. The cargo was taken on board at Gananoque and belonged to Messrs. Richardson & Sons. Oswego was reached at 9 o'clock. While endeavoring to enter the harbor the schooner struck the middle pier and went down. The cargo is all under water. The grain was insured and there was $3,000 on the vessel. George Richardson has gone to Oswego and will have the craft raised. Captains say that Captain Greenon was imbecile in attempting to enter the harbor at night. The only safe entrance can be made in daylight.

A TRIENNIAL COUNCIL.

AN IMPORTANT CONGREGATIONAL MEETING IN THE UNITED STATES—DR. JACKSON'S RETURN AND ADDRESS ON IT.

An Historical Sketch—Cognate of Scriptural Mention—Various Effective Branches of the Church—Cordial Reception of the Canadian Deputation—Headway That is Being Made by Congregationalism.

At the evening service in the First Congregational Church yesterday, Dr. Jackson took occasion to refer to the Triennial Council of the Congregational Churches in the United States, recently held at Concord, N.H., to which he was deputed as one of the delegates of the Congregational Union of Ontario and Quebec held in London last June. The rev. gentleman selected his text from Acts xv., 30, 31, and observed that the gathering at Antioch of the early Christians was the first Council recorded in the Scriptures, which was claimed by thought to be Congregational, because the apostles and elders with the whole church received the deputation and sent a letter of advice which recognized the church as co-ordinate in power with the apostles. In the middle of the second century the example of Jerusalem was followed, and a council was called to deal with questions which threatened the union of the Christian community. Before the middle of the third century, especially in Asia Minor, the Council became an established institution and met yearly. This gradually developed into the Episcopal systems which, through the growth of ages and the introduction of errors, developed into the hierarchical system of Romanism and was ultimately the cause of the great Reformation. In England the viz., Episcopal, Presbyterian and Congregational. The latter, finding in the scriptures their model for church government in the independency of each Church and the fraternal union of churches in fellowship and service. In the United States the first Council was held at Cambridge, Mass., in 1648—27 years after the landing of the Pilgrim Fathers—at which a platform known as the Cambridge platform was adopted for the guidance of the churches through mutual counsel and fellowship, but having no authority as a court or ecclesiastical jurisdiction. In 1646 another Council was held at Boston and for 200 years no General Council of the churches was convened. In 1853, a General Council was called in Albany to take into consideration the plan of union with the Presbyterian body in the prosecution of Home Mission work, and which resulted in the separation of the two denominations, each body forming its own organization for the carrying of Christian work. It was not until 1871 that a system of holding regular Councils every three years was established. These Councils assembled neither as a church nor a church court, but were established to promote the general interests of the denomination, it being clearly and distinctly understood that such connection is neither requisite to the completeness of a church, nor for co-operation in denominational work. The Council held at Concord was the fifth, and was largely represented by pastors and delegates from all parts of the United States, and also by delegates from Canada, who received a warm reception from the Governor of the State (Congregational) and the Mayor of the city (Episcopalian). In the addresses delivered and the papers read the fundamental truths of the gospel were strictly adhered to, in fact it was of the gospel of Jesus that found expression, without the introduction of new views or departures. Papers were also read, amongst which were "the relation of the children to the churches," on the duty of the churches taking up and carrying on the labours of pious parents and Sabbath School teachers, and as disciples, training and guiding them into churchfellowship. The subject of giving was introduced by Hon. J. W. M. Hall, of Cambridge, Mass., which he emphasized the making it a religious duty, the consecration of a portion of their wealth systematically to the service of God. It was also urged that children should be trained early to practice this system of giving. There are seven societies under the auspices of the Council which are carrying on christian work in its several departments, each of which presented a statement of progress made, and include (1) American College and Educational Society, which since the last meeting of the Council had raised more than half a million of dollars to aid in qualifying young men for the ministry; (2) the American Congregational Union, which during the past three years had built three hundred and twelve churches; (3) the Sabbath School Publishing Society was also doing good work in providing school literature of a superior class, which he (Dr. Jackson) could highly recommend to superintendents and teachers. Its object was also to establish schools where no churches existed, and great success had attended these efforts, especially among Germans; (4) the New West Education Commission, its object being to which had proved successful during the past five years; (5) the American Home Missionary Society, which is rapidly forming new churches in the West and on the Pacific slope; (6) the American Missionary Association, whose object is to establish schools, colleges and churches among the freed men of the south; (7) the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, which, together with the London Missionary Society, was doing a great work in spreading the gospel and planting churches in foreign lands. Reference was made to the four hundredth anniversary of Luther, the apostle of Reformation, and the great principles underlying that movement, such as the doctrine of justification by faith, &c., were urged to be brought before the churches on Sunday the eleventh of November. The Canadian deputation met with a cordial reception, and expressions of peace and prosperity were warmly given by the Assembly and a deputation appointed to attend the Congregational Union, to be held in Montreal next June. Congregationalism was making great headway in the United States, the churches now numbering 4,000, with a membership of nearly 400,000, while about $3,000,000 is being raised annually in the prosecution of Christian work. It was the general impression that it was the most interesting Council that had been held, and no doubt all would return to their respective charges with renewed energy and consecration for their work.

ESTABLISH SCHOOLS IN UTAH

Preventing An Oil Painting.

An oil painting of Donald Ross, Professor of Queen's University and late of Lachine, is at Notman's, Montreal, and and will be there for a few days. It is called an excellent likeness and is designed to represent to the reverend gentleman the esteem in which he is held by a large circle of friends in Montreal.

QUEEN'S VS. OTTAWA.

A Hotly Contested Match—The Visitors Successful by Many Points—Good Individual Play.

The match between Queen's and Ottawa had been creating great interest among the foot ball circles of this city for some time past, as it had to decide which team should hold the championship of No. 1 District. The day was not all that could be desired, as a strong north-east wind was blowing. At 3.15 o'clock the teams took their places in the field as follows:

Ottawa—Forwards, T. B. Taylor, L. Taylor, Waters, Evans, Bollard, Basken, O'Connor, Chesley; quarter backs, Sparkes and Fellowes; half backs, White, Ami and Low; backs, Fairweather and Lewis.

Kingston—Forwards, Burdette, Coy, Dennistoun, Duff, Foxton, Kennedy, Logie, Marquis; quarter backs, Renton, Macdonnell; half backs, Cartwright, Hamilton; three-quarter back, Goodwin (Captain); backs, F. and C. Booth.

A BRILLIANT BEGINNING.

The toss was won by Gordon, and he elected to play with the wind. The ball was kicked off by the Queen's Captain but was well returned by the Ottawa back, and a succession of scrimmages followed, in which Ottawa had a decided advantage. The ball was worked down near the Queen's goal when Booth, by a good drop, sent it well up the field. It was followed, and the result was a scrimmage, and again the Ottawa's forwards, bringing their weight to bear, forced the ball down the field. A number of scrimmages ensued, until a grand rush of the visitors forced the Queen's to rouge. The ball was kicked off at the 75 yards flag, but White returned it, and twice more had Queen's to rouge in self-defence. This ended the first half time's play. For Queen's, Kennedy, Dennistoun and Logie (forwards), did good play. Renton's play as quarter back was simply perfect, whilst Sparks and White played in fine form for Ottawa.

SECOND HALF OF THE GAME.

After a rest of five minutes play was resumed, Ottawa now having the wind in their favor. During the first few minutes Queen's rouged twice in rapid succession, and after a quarter of an hour's play one of the Ottawas kicked a goal from the field. Gordon then played all his men forward with the exception of two halfs and one back and a grand rush was made for the Ottawa's goal. But this proved ineffectual. By a splendid run Low brought the ball well up the field and, by a rush in, a touch down was secured, but the ball being brought out Fairweather failed to convert the try into a goal. The ball was kicked off and another rush made by the college men. At this juncture Gordon made a brilliant run, being collared by one of the backs after going through the Ottawa's forwards. Shortly after this time was called, Ottawa having won the match by eighteen points. In the second half Renton, Macdonnell, Foxton and Gordon distinguished themselves for Queen's, whilst Low and White played well for the visitors.

The absence of that ill-feeling which characterized the match with the cadets was a pleasing feature in last Saturday's game. Low and Gordon deserve great credit for the management of their teams.

The colors of the Ottawas were old gold and black jerseys with blue knickerbockers and stockings. The Queen's wore their well known colors, all blue.

The Ottawas overmatched Queen's College in weight, not in science. Their superior strength gave them confidence, and they played a cooler game. Were the two Queen's College Clubs, the Military College Club and the Battery Club, united in one central body for championship games, the city could always meet a visiting club with muscle as well as skill. One of the Ottawa players of Saturday, in a race after the ball, swung around suddenly, hitting a boy in the crowd with the back of his head so hard as to cause a nasty bruise and draw blood freely.

WHAT THE PEOPLE SAY;

—OR—

Jottings from Conversations with Our Customers.

"What a splendid Store you have now. The alterations are a great improvement."—Miss M.

"Well! you certainly can claim now to have the finest Store in the city. It looks exceedingly well when lighted up."—Mr. D.

"You must do an unusually large trade. I have repeatedly noticed that you are busy when others are doing nothing."—Miss Mac.

"Tell me how it is that you can retail these goods lower than I pay wholesale them in Montreal."—R.G., Country Merchant.

"I was attracted first to your Store by the One Price system. I often found, when buying at other places, that my neighbour had purchased the same goods at the same place for fifty cents a pair less than I did because he beat down the price and I didn't."—Farmer.

"We have bought from you ever since you opened, and have been well satisfied. You get all our trade now, and it amounts to considerable in a year, besides others that we have recommended to you."—C.C.

"We have come 20 miles to buy our Boots and Shoes from you, and have saved on these pairs to pay fare several times over."—C., from B.

"I have friends in the Shoe business that I have to deal with sometimes when I want Boots for the children; but if I require a pair for myself, I always come to you. I find you have a better assortment of nice fitting Boots."—Mrs. H.
