

Mena Hardy brings southern rock to Fionn MacCool's

Musician Mena Hardy is bringing her take on southern rock to Oakville Saturday (April 11).

Hailing from her hometown of Alexandria, Ont., Hardy is the lead singer of her band and was the runner up in the rock category for the international John Lennon Songwriting Competition in 2012. She has also opened for the band Lighthouse.

The free show will be held at Fionn MacCool's, 350 Dundas St. E., and goes from 10 p.m. until closing.

Hardy also performed earlier in March at the Oakville's Sixth Line Pub and Sports Bar.

"Her musical gifts went misunderstood and unappreciated throughout her formative years. She found herself and her old-school southern rock sound long after being made to feel outcast," according to the biography on her website.

"A former waitress with a university degree in psychology, Hardy doesn't fit stereotypes well. She merely defies them and the odds in overachieving in multiple facets of her life."

Hardy has a self-titled debut CD and released a five-track EP titled It's Been Mean & Hard, which was engineered and produced by Brad Keay and features Pat Rush.

Her music can be heard on radio, TV and the movie Club Utopia.

It's not your 'typical' show

not your typical professional show.

"The scope of imagination is so large, I think Sheridan is trying to prepare its students for what theatre might look like in the future as opposed to looking backwards at what it's been."

The play opens Tuesday (April 14) and continues through to May 3.

Music and lyrics are by Anika Johnson, Britta Johnson and Bram Gielen; the original music is by Christopher Thornborrow.

The show is being developed as part of the Canadian Music Theatre Project — a program launched by Sheridan in 2011 that seeks to develop new works by Canadian and international composers, lyricists and authors.

Brantwood is recommended for mature audiences and those who attend are encouraged to wear comfortable shoes and advised the school is not handicap accessible.

Audience members will meet at Sheridan College's main entrance, 1430 Trafalgar Rd., and be transported to and from Brantwood School.

Shows start at 7 p.m., Tuesdays-Sundays, and tickets cost $35, with discounts available for groups and repeat audience members.

To purchase tickets, visit <http://tickets.sheridancollege.ca>, or visit the Theatre Sheridan Box Office at 1430 Trafalgar Rd., open Tuesdays and Thursdays from 11 a.m.-3 p.m., or by calling 905-815-4049.

Correction

A story, Get into mischievous misdirection at exhibits, in the Friday, April 3, 2015 edition of the Oakville Beaver, incorrectly printed the gallery locations of the art shows.

Roula Partheniou's work is on display at Oakville Galleries' Gairloch Gardens location, 1306 Lakeshore Rd. E., while the exhibit by Samuel Roy-Bois is installed at the Centennial Square location, 120 Navy St.
