REMINDERS

TO-DAY

Auction Sale of Statuary at 2:30 and 7:30 p.m. by Hutcheson.

Tenders opened for various works in connection with the K. & P. R.R. on

CITY AND VICINITY.

PROBS.—Fresh to strong southwest and west winds; fair warm weather.

BACK OUT.—Capt. Andrews, being ill, could not swim against Capt. Williams, on Saturday.

IN MEMORIAM.—The death is announced of Mrs. Carey, mother of Mrs. Healy, Ontario Street. The deceased was very highly respected by all who knew her. She was born in the County Wicklow, Ireland, but for 33 years has been a resident of the city. Her funeral occurs to-morrow.

LIGHT COURT.—The Napanee Assizes open to-day. We learn that up to Saturday night there was no civil cases on docket, and but three criminal cases on the calendar presented by the Sheriff, the Leemaurder, the Morton embezzlement, and the Adolphustown rape, the disposal of which can only occupy two or three days.

POST OFFICE CHANGES.—W. H. Griffin, Deputy Postmaster General, will shortly retire and be succeeded by W. White, Secretary of the Department. Mr. Dewe, Chief Post Office Inspector, will shortly be superannuated, and the name of Mr. Sweetnam, Inspector of Toronto District, is mentioned in connection with the position.

A THIRD CAPTURED.—At noon to-day Active Detective Jas. Nesbitt saw John [illegible] enter three houses on Gordon st. and walk around the rooms suspiciously. In the last place he picked up an umbrella and was about to walk off with it when arrested. He had over his shoulder what appeared to be a school boy's bag, containing a substantial lunch. Who owns the satchel?

A PROBABLE DISAPPOINTMENT.—W. T. Norris, after having the ground surveyed, and other expenses incurred in connection with his proposed walk of 500 miles, has been informed that he cannot have the Drill Shed. The public would just as soon suffer an earthquake as be disappointed in that walk. Later.—A high official is interesting himself in the matter, and will probably make the Shed secure for Norris after all.

RYCES FIELDS.—We are informed that there is every prospect of excellent races on Wednesday and Thursday. About a dozen entries have been made by residents of the city and surrounding country. At noon a horse arrived from Watertown, and four more come from the same place to-night. A Committee man states that by the morning boat six runners and three trotters will reach here from Toronto. The entries close to-night.

Exhibition Postscripts.

The first prize taker for spring wheat at the Kingston and Toronto Exhibitions was making a good thing out of the product on the Guelph market on Saturday, receiving $1 a pound for it. He asked $10 per bushel.

James McNaughton & Brother sold the other week a two year old filly to T. A. B. Snyder, German Mills, at a good figure. It was by the Norman Percheron stallion "Grey Hawk," which took first prize and gold medal at Kingston.

Kingston & Napanee Road.

On Saturday Mr. D. J. Walker sold the tolls of the Kingston & Napanee Road, the amount realized being the largest for some years. No. 1 gate was given to Mrs. J. McCammon for $2,822; No. 2 to Mr. Hugh Wallace for $943. No. 1 gate last year sold for $2,647, and No. 2 gate for $936. The contracts for gravel were as follows:

No. 1 Section, Angus Bennett, $4.50 per toise; No. 2 Section, J. Howe, $3.50; No. 3 Section, W. McEwen, $2.25; No. 4 Section, W. McEwen, $1.90. There was full attendance of the Committee commissioned with the sale of the road.

Medical College Opened

The Medical College opened this morning without special ceremony and the regular lectures at once commenced. There has been no change in the Faculty or mode of conducting the classes. The Registrar and Professors informs us that they do not yet know how many students will be in attendance that the new ones have not registered and may not do so for some days. It is certain, however, that there will be a material enlargement of all the classes, and that the session will be an important one in many respects. The opening has taken place a week earlier than last year.

An Unexpected Amendment

On Friday night, after the disposal of a few items of general business, the City Council went into Committee of the Whole for the consideration of the Consolidated By-laws, proofs of several pages of which lay before the Aldermen. No incident of note occurred until the clauses of the market by-law came up for discussion, and unexpectedly Ald. Redden moved, seconded by Ald. R. J. Carson, that the hour at which middle men can make purchases of farm and dairy produce be 9 instead of 10 o'clock. The alteration was strongly opposed by the Mayor and others, but the party favoring repeal carried the amendment, with the assistance of the Chairman, Ald. Craig. The Mayor, considerably agitated, insinuated that Ald. Craig would not be re-elected as a member of Victoria Ward, but the remark did not seem to alarm that gentleman; indeed he was inclined to join in the laughter which followed the declaration that the motion had been passed. The Mayor, it is stated, will have the resolution reconsidered at the next meeting of the Council, and defeated—if he can get a majority of the Aldermen to support him.

Who struck Charley Counter?

The Thousand Island House closed on Monday, Oct. 2nd.

The twenty-ninth term of the Medical School began this morning.

One of the local merchants has ceased to buy phosphate for the winter.

About 8,000 bushels of barley came to the city on Saturday. The market was flat to-day.

The competition in the purchase of grain is as great on Wolfe Island as it is in the city.

Dafoe's brick terrace and Haines & Walton's planing mill, Belleville, were burned on Friday night.

The odor of pig sties and many et ceteras, fills the air between the Woolen mill and small pox hospital.

Mr. Smith, fully operating the phosphate mines at Bedford Mills, is said to be about to remove his machinery to Buckenham.

The boom in the price of hops has sent the price of ales up in Kingston in chopping style. Bajus makes the announcement to-day.

Don't talk of blustering October after this for a while. Last evening ladies sat on the outside of their doors on the lake front until after 8 o'clock. It is really warm.

Half a hundred students paraded the principal streets on Saturday night, and attracted considerable attention by their performance upon whistles and other "musical instruments."

The stove dealers report that the fall trade is unusually active, and that it is very difficult to keep even with the orders. Many new patterns are now to be seen in the stores of the retail dealers.

The Government, it is mooted, will likely send a special examiner here at the end of each session of the Model School, in consequence of the protest made against InspectorUghes' inspection visits.

PERSONAL MENTION

Mr George Stephen, of the Syndicate, is in Toronto.

Dr. Carratrice is said to be practicing for profession on Wolfe Island.

His Lordship Bishop Cleary is visiting Bedford. He left on Saturday per K. & P. RR.

Mr. W. M. O'Beirn, editor and proprietor of the Napanee Express, spent Sunday in the city.

Rev. Dr. Bain, of Perth, is registered at the Burnett House; also Capt. D. Manson, of the steamer Admiral Porter.

Sergt. A. M. Cutting, of No. 2 Battery Guelph, left home to-day for a short course at the Kingston School of Gunnery.

The Irish clergyman now visiting Kingston is a brother of the Mr. Bell who came here upon a similar mission last year.

The temperance orator and political speaker, Joseph Gibson has been appointed Postmaster of Ingersoll, vice the late Mr. Thirkell.

Mrs. McMullen, widow of the late Rev. Daniel Y. McMullen, Picton, who has relatives in this city, is dangerously ill, with very faint hopes of her recovery.

Mr. B. M. Britton left this morning to attend the Napanee Assizes. Then he returns to Ottawa as leading counsel in the celebrated breach of promise case.

The exports from Belleville for the last quarter, reported at the Consular Agency, amounted in value to $34,067. 43, an increase of $1,690.11, on the corresponding quarter in 1881.

The bank clerk is allowed very little rest for the souls of his feet. He is being changed about pretty often. Mr. W. Hinds, Merchants Bank, is under orders for Montreal. Very few of the officials of five years ago are now left in any of the Kingston branches.

Attack on Mr Counter

Two men last night made an outrageous attack upon Charles A. Counter. He had been to see friends on Princess street, and, returning to the Wagoner House, at which he boards, was fallen upon by two stalwart fellows, who swore that they would murder him. He received two severe blows, one behind the ear and the other over the left eye. By the latter a wound an inch long and deep enough to reach the bone was inflicted. The assault was committed at Scott's corner, Queen and Ontario streets, and Counter does not know what would have happened had he not broken from his assailants and ran away. Subsequently he visited a King street surgeon and had his wounds dressed. He does not know by whom he was beaten. Were he able to identify them they would be punished as they deserve.

Counter has lately been most unfortunate. During the Fair he fell into a culvert and was so badly hurt that he had to go to the hospital. Later, a few days ago, not having good sight, he ran against a telegraph pole in Belleville, and somewhat altered the shape of his nose. Now his countenance is so disfigured that for some days he will be confined to the house.

MILITARY FUNERAL.

Burial of the Late Charles Hanson—Respect for the Dead—March to the Grave.

The tearful group the tolling bell
The friend that stricken lies.
The sigh from bleeding hearts that swell.
The coffin, bier and grave—all tell
A tale of broken ties.

W. M. THAYER.

It is some years since there was so large a funeral as that of the late Charles Hanson, which occurred yesterday afternoon. There was reason why this should be so. The deceased was known to very many in the city, and by every one he was liked. He was a good citizen, a genuine friend, a lover of peace and concord, a faithful employee, and the head of a happy home. Under any circumstances, in the event of death, there would have been a significant indication of the respect in which he was held, but he was taken off sadly and in a manner calculated to arouse the sympathies of the public to an unusual extent. Hanson was for many years a volunteer, serving in the ranks as a member of No. 5 Company, and also in the band. Thus he was entitled to a military funeral. A start was made at 4 o'clock in the following order:

1. Firing party of twelve men and a non commissioned officer (Sergt. McIlroy), who moved with measured step and reversed arms.

2. Band of the 14th P.W.O. Rifles, full strength, and "playing funeral marches to the grave."

3. Detachment of "B" Battery under command of Sergt. Strange, six men and seven horses, the gun carriage bearing the coffin which was covered a Union Jack, upon the top a beautiful cross of immortelles, a helmet, belt and sword bayonet.

4. Pall bearers—Messrs. J. McGuire, P. Daly, E. Hyland, R. O'Connell, D. Gorman and Thos. Miller.

5. Officers of 14th P. W. O. Rifles—Col. Kerr, Major and Adjutant Gordon, Capt. and Paymaster King, Captain and Quarter Master Spriggs, Capt. Galloway; Lieuts. Skinner, J. Shannon, Kerr, Mowat, McDougall and Murray, and Surgeon Henderson.

6. Citizens, afoot and in carriages, numbering over 2,500.

The head of the cortage had reached nearly to Princess street ere the last of it turned from Dufferin street into Rideau. A very large number collected at various corners to see the funeral pass, and a crowd almost blocked up the street in front of St. Mary's Cathedral, into which the remains were carried and a Libera sang by Father Hartington. After the service the procession reformed and proceeded some distance out on Division street, without suffering a diminution in size, and many went on to the cemetery, where the military performed the last rites over their dead comrade-in-arms.

Mrs. Hanson has been tendered much consolation in her bereavement. The shock she received was such as would unnerve any one. He had been most industrious, and in the cotton mill seemed to have entered upon a new era of prosperity. When the future looked brightest, calamity came with a suddenness which was the more oppressive. Every one felt for the poor wife, who with dimmed eye and outstretched hand bade adieu to all that was mortal of her husband.

Death hath made no breach
In love and sympathy, in hope and trust
No outward sigh or sound her ears can reach
But there's an inward spiritual speech
That greets her still though mortal tongue be dust.

HORRIBLE HOLES.

What the Police Magistrate thinks of the Police Cells—Unfit for Human Occupation.

On the adjournment this morning of the case of Orab Marshall and John Purtell, held for duck stealing, Mr. McGuire asked the Magistrate if he would accept bail for the appearance of the men when required.

Mr. Duff said he would.

Mr. McGuire—I would not ask for such a thing were there a fit thing to which to incarcerate prisoners while in custody for minor offences.

The Magistrate—I know it, and so I am not disposed to refuse bonds, especially in cases of assault. The cells are not fit to put a pig in.

Mr. McGuire—Can the Commissioners not take some action tending to bring about a new condition of affairs? Can they not condemn the cells? I have done what I can to bring about the improvement, but I do not think the Council will ever take action until it is forced upon them in some way. In the interests of humanity the Council should do something about this matter.

The Magistrate—I agree with you. I do not consider the cells fit for the incarceration of any human being. The air is most foul.

Mr. McGuire—I would rather be confined in the gaol for a month than in the cells for 24 hours.

The discussion then dropped, but the subject will not be forgotten. The Magistrate seems to have already long enough tolerated the present state of things.

A Hero No Less.

People need not wonder at the pride with which W. T. Norris wears the British uniform, since his army record is a creditable one. Kingslake's history of the Crimea speaks in his description of Balaclava as follows:

"Troop Sergeant Major Norris, of the Royals, having been separated by a mischance from his regiment, was a little in rear of it, and hastening to overtake his comrades, when he found himself beset on open ground by four Russian Hussars, who must have ridden past the flank of our people. Norris, having to act alone against four, found means to kill one of his assailants, to drive off the rest, and to capture the charger of the slain man."

No wonder he is proud; wouldn't you be?

"Nip and Tuck

On Wednesday evening the first of two performances by the Webber Company will take place. The Mail says: "The piece is not only full of startling situations which rivet the attention of the audience and keep the excitement at fever heat, but there is is also a fund of humour running throughout to tickle their risible faculties. Mr. Webber is without doubt a clever comedian, and the character of 'Nip,' the smart detective, could not be placed in better hands. The other characters were well represented, and altogether the Company is evenly balanced."

LADY EVANGELIST.

Mrs. Watson Occupies the Pulpit of the Primitive Methodist Church—Sketch of Her Life.

Yesterday morning and evening Mrs. Watson, late of Hull, England, preached in the Primitive Methodist Church, her sermons on both occasions being of an evangelistic character and models of simplicity. Her accent is eminently English, though her utterances are distinct. Her style is plain and her person without jewelled ornamentation. Over a greyish dress she wore on Sunday a black gauzy shawl and coliarette, and a small close fitting black bonnet, whose white strings were loosely tied beneath the chin. She is retiring in her demeanour, unostentatious, and does not attempt to produce the dramatic effects which characterize the services of Mrs. Van Cott, the only other woman revivalist that has appeared in Kingston for some years. She is highly cultivated, is quite a linguist, and has travelled very extensively in Europe. Some years ago she undertook evangelistic duty, and worked, like the Salvation Army, among the poor and degraded of York. She encountered many discouragements, but she persevered, and failing to succeed by one method adopted another. The recitals of her action are very interesting. A few months ago she came to Canada, and in different parts of the country has participated in special efforts. Her home is in Toronto, and when not engaged in evangelistic work attends the church of Rev. Mr. Jolliffe.

HER SERMON YESTERDAY MORNING

was based on the words: "Tarry ye in the city of Jerusalem until ye be endued with power from on high." (Luke XXIV 49.) She alluded to the manner in which Christ had borne with his disciples, knowing that they were earthly in their conceptions while His were heavenly; to the way in which He watched over them and taught them to fight against the weaknesses of their nature, and to his sending of the promise of His Father upon them. Yet they were to tarry in Jerusalem until endued with power from on high. The disciples did so many do to-day—doubted God and His utterances respecting them. They were unsympathetic, ambitious and restless, would not watch with the Master, and when the crisis came in a cowardly way ran off. They wanted the illumination of the Spirit. The Church of to-day wants the same thing, and without it men cannot be stimulated to go into the world fearing neither man nor woman; they cannot act wisely, and walk circumspectly. The nearer they get to God the deeper they lie in the dust, and the more they are disposed to cry out, "Our righteousness is as filthy rags." St. Paul was endued with power from on high when he braved the criticism of the learned men and, moved by the Spirit, spoke mightily at Corinth. He was a changed man. Peter, when endued with the same power, was also a different man. When men fall in the Church people are tardy about reinstating them. The King of Kings forgives. He forgave and reinstated Peter, so that he was ready to obey God before man, to go to prison and even endure death. Mrs. Watson spoke of a meeting she had with who scoffed at the bible, but who failed to destroy the people's admiration of the Holy Scripture. She entered the controversy in weakness, but she was endued with power from on high. She held the attention of the congregation yesterday while she depicted the progress of the Christian. The future looks bright, and when one obtains a glimpse of heaven over its battlements he is constrained to push onward himself and appeal to the laggards, "Come along." The thought that in the by and bye there will be a reunion of departed friends is very inspiring; there is consolation in the feeling that they are still near, that their spirits constantly hover over us. Tears came to the eyes of several as she told of the conversion of poor old Thompson, a cobbler and occupant of a garret in York. He could be reached in only one way, through the magic lantern. He became interested in the pictures illustrative of Christ's life and the Pilgrims Progress, at the age of 75 he studied the Testament, sang "All Hail the Power of Jesus name," and died with the express belief that he was going to Heaven, that at the perly gates he would meet and welcome her. She urged all to hold communion with God, to ignore the "hush" of the world and the devil, to keep in view the fact that in a few years this life will have passed away, that eternity is near, and that the spirit which stimulated Wesley and Knox will stimulate those who follow in their footsteps, leaving tracks behind of which none need be ashamed.

AN EMISSARY OF BRADLAUGH,

Mrs. Watson will attend the special services to be held in the Primitive Methodist Church every evening of this week, excepting Saturday.

For some years Mrs. Watson was a governess in the family of Jules de Seynes, Paris, her residence in France being so extended that she speaks and writes the language of the country fluently. She was a member of the church of the great Methodist preacher, Emile F. Cook, Paris, who was drowned while crossing to England some years ago. His brother is now President of the French Wesleyan Methodist Conference. Among others she travelled on the continent with a sister of John Bright, and while for ten years labouring in York, under the auspices of the Society of Friends, was associated with some of the most distinguished families.

Pleading for Pardon

Petitions are being circulated in Belleville and receiving a large number of signatures, praying for the release of young Josey, now in the Kingston Penitentiary. About 8 years ago he had a difficulty with a young woman of loose morals at a house nearly opposite the race course on the Kingston road, and while in liquor he shot and killed her. He was tried for murder, was ably defended by the late James O'Rielly, yet sentenced to be executed. Subsequently his punishment was commuted to imprisonment for life. The Belleville Ontario is our authority for this statement, that the officers of the Penitentiary have promised to do all in their power to impress upon the Minister of Justice the desirability of giving Josey his freedom.

Police Court.

John Purtell, charged with stealing eight ducks from Mrs. Gallagher, pleaded guilty. Orab Marshall was accused of the same offence and pleaded "not guilty." In the absence of Mrs. Gallagher the case was adjourned until tomorow. The Magistrate intimated that if offered it he would accept bail.

Thomas Hogan and Charles Schneider, drunk and incapable, were dismissed from custody.

A case of allowing a cow to run at large upon the street was disposed of by payment of $3 and costs.

FAREWELL SERMON.

The Rev. F. W. Dobbs Takes Leave of His Congregation at St. John's Church, Portsmouth, Yesterday.

St. John's Church, Portsmouth, is one of those venerable institutions in which a change has a more than ordinary startling effect. Like many of the old churches about Kingston its situation is snug and picturesque. Its interior is of that order of simplicity which the moderate churchmen who prevailed here forty years ago insisted upon; the seats are also in the "high" old style, creaking whenever the people rise or sit down; the bell like that of St. James' tells with each stroke of its age and the once modest desires of churchmen; its choir sings from a raised platform near the door, like the singers do in meeting houses throughout the country; and in strict keeping with all this, it has had a pastor whose long service made him a venerable guide in its spiritual course. To separate the two seems like a divorce, but Mr. Dobbs, with the parting of tender ties here and the increase in shadows of life, feels a yearning to see once more his old home and friends in Ireland. Last evening he took a public farewell of his congregation and leaves this week upon his transatlantic voyage. A number of warm hearted admirers of his pious life and promiscuous evangelical labours, (which have won him as many friends outside the Church as within it) were present as sympathetic hearers. The choir appropriately sang "We have no abiding city here."

In his sermon the pastor said he had for very nearly twenty years spoken to the people from that pulpit; throughout he had endeavoured to teach those essential truths of religion which had made his own soul comfortable. He had preached Christ crucified, as all that man needed for his redemption; had urged that the HolyGhost could alone reveal God to man; and in spite of all that controversy could say or do, still left them with the bible standing out as the inspired word, God's accepted truth in every part. He might now be speaking to them for the last time,—for though he merely bade adieu for the present none knew how a long journey might end in heavenly providence,—and therefore he decided to speak to them most earnestly upon matters affecting their soul's welfare, leaving with them Christ's message (St. Matthew 11-28) "Come unto me." He cited the many invitations of this order given by the anxious and loving Saviour, and impressed not only the loving desire but the unmeasurable ability of the divine master to save every earnest and repentant sinner. In conclusion he urged immediate acceptance of God; he would have them to know Him as he knew Him to his great satisfaction.

An evening communion was then administered, the choir singing an invitation in the hymn, "Shall we Gather at the River?" while a part of the congregation retired, as usual. No one hearing the remarks of the people could doubt the breadth or sincerity of the regrets felt by the people over the Reverend gentleman's departure. The respect in which he has been held in the city and throughout the Diocese has broadened into love with his congregation and fellow villagers.

PREVOST, having been awarded three first prizes for tweed suitings he had at the fair, has been obliged to re-order the goods. They are now in his store on exhibition.

DR. AUSTIN'S

Phosphatine!

Cures all Nervous Diseases.

NEWMARKET, March 21, 1882

MESSRS. LOWDEN & CO., Toronto.

GENTS.—I have taken one bottle of Dr. Austin's Phosphatine, recommended by Dr. Bently, of this place, and have received great benefit from it. I believe that after taking five or six bottles I shall be quite free from a nervous tremour which has troubled me since I was 16, and now I am (61) sixty-one years of age.

Yours truly,

J. S. WETHERILL.
