TROOPS MOWED DOWN.

A Fearful Fight with the Boers at Laing's Nek. Troops Repulsed.

The Durban correspondent of the London Times supplies fuller details of the Laing's Nek affair. He says that Sir George Colley was quite aware of the Boers position. Major Poole having reconnoitered it at night. The artillery on the right advanced shelled the camp for three-quarters of an hour, the Boers not firing. It was then thought possible to take a position 500 yards on this side at the point of the bayonet. A mounted squadron of seventy was ordered to carry the height on the extreme right. Under Major Brownlow and Captain Hornby they rode close up to the kopje, and in about five seconds half of their saddles were empty. Troop Sergeant-Major Lunny actually got into the Boers trenches, but there was shot dead by half a dozen rifles. The squadron then retired, reformed, and charged again up the hill, but nothing could live under the fire they met with, and they fell back with a loss of seventeen killed, wounded and missing. By the time the cavalry were in retreat the Fifty eighth Regiment was attacking the hill. The first rush up the incline made the men blow hard, the grass being long and the ground wet. After two minutes rest they went to a slight ridge between them and their goal. No sooner were their heads seen above this ridge, before they had time to deploy, and while they were rather crowded together, than the front companies received a terrific volley and and were also enfiladed on their right flank. After about five minutes of this fire, our men returning it as best they could, Colonel Deane called for a charge. Immediately his horse was shot under him and he fell. Springing to his feet he reassured his men by shouting "I am all right." The words were hardly uttered when he fell mortally wounded. Major Hingston, who with the other officers, had kept in the front, cheering the men on in their desperate task, then took command, and ordered the men to fix bayonets. He was instantly shot down, and has since died. The Boers at this time kept well in their trenches. Our men were lying on the ground, taking a shot whenever an opponent was seen but when they uprose to charge the fire poured in upon them is described by all as terrible. Before the final charge our men were lying down within twenty yards of the trenches, but their fire was necessarily less destructive. Here Major Poole and Lieut. Dolphin were killed, their bodies being found lying well in front of the men. Captain Lovegrove was seriously wounded, while nearly all the non-commissioned officers were killed or wounded. Out of five staff officers only Major Essex, who escaped at Isandula, reappeared. Lieut. Baillie, who carried the colors, being mortally wounded Lieutanant Peel offered to help him. "Never mind me; save the colors," was his reply. Lieutenant Peel then took both colors, but, falling into a hole, Seargent Brendstock, thinking him to be shoot, seized the colors and bore them out of danger. When retreat began, the Boers showed themselves, keeping up a constant fusilade. Our shells now did good service, preventing the Boers from following up. The practice was splendid, the shells dropping only ten or fifteen yards in the rear of our troops. On reaching the foot of the hill the remains of the regiment refilled their pouches and reformed, prepared, if ordered, to storm again. This Sir George Colley deemed it to be imprudent to attempt. The Boers bravely excited the surprise of even their own countrymen. As they are sportsmen from childhood their fire is deadly. The survivors say that they positively saw colored men armed and fighting in the Boer lines. These were probably waggon drivers.

A BLOW IN OREGAN.

Houses and Fences Levelled and Stock Killed—Afternoon's Horror.

The late great storm struck the east side of Gervais at about three o'clock in the afternoon, sweeping everything before it. It came in a southeasterly direction, and was about 200 yards in width. It was first seen about a mile from town, where it struck one farm, demolishing outhouses in a fearful manner.

PICKING UP THE DWELLING HOUSE,

setting it twenty feet from its foundation, and pitching the inmates out into the storm. Some of them were badly bruised but none seriously injured. The storm swept through the fields at a terrific rate, picking up sheep and fences like birds, and hurling them into the air twenty or thirty feet. A number of sheep were killed. As it neared town it narrowed down to about fifty yards in width, and came taking everything before it, striking the school-house on one corner. The children all ran out to save their lives, and the scene that followed was terrible. They were lifted into the air from 20 to 80 feet, among flying timbers, sidewalk planks, and debris from barns and fences, and then fell to the ground senseless. Some had their arms broken, some their heads fractured, and all were more or less bruised, but fortunately none were killed. Another house was from its foundation and shattered almost to pieces. It so happened that the family were out visiting or they would have been killed, as a number of neighbouring outhouses and barns were thrown against it. The windows and doors of a third house were also broken in, and the house more or less damaged. From here the cyclone raised into the air in the shape of a black cloud, and was seen to fall again about three miles distant. It was reported that it struck near the narrow guage railway.

IN ZIGZAG CURRENT,

TEARING IT ALL TO PIECES.

It was very fortunate that it changed its course as it entered town, as it would have swept the whole city clean, the eastern part of the town not being so thickly settled. The damages are not very heavy, probably $5,000 to property and stock. It was a terrible scene to behold, and made the blood run cold to see fathers and mothers picking up their prostrate children from the ditches and mud holes and from among the debris.

Remember This.

Now is the time of the year for Pneumonia, Lung Fever, Coughs, Colds, and fatal results of predisposition to Consumption and other Throat and Lung Diseases. BOSCHEE'S GERMAN SYRUP has been used in this neighborhood for the past two or three years without a single failure to cure. If you have not used this medicine yourself, go to J. G. King, druggist, and ask him of its wonderful success among his customers. Two doses will relieve the worst case. If you have no faith in any medicine, just buy a sample bottle of Boschee's German Syrup for 10 cents and try it. Regular size bottle 75 cents. Don't neglect a cough to save 75 cents.

It's Just A Booming

Such is the expression from all druggists and dealers everywhere who are selling DR. KING'S NEW DISCOVERY for consumption. No like preparation can begin to have such an extensive and rapid sale. And why? Simply because of its wonderful merits No cough or cold, no matter of how long standing or how stubborn, can resist it healing qualities. Asthma, bronchitis, hoarseness, hay fever, pain in the side or chest and difficulty of breathing or any lingering disease of the throat and lungs rapidly yield to its marvelous powers. It will "positively cure" and that where everything else has failed. Satisfy yourself as thousands have already done by getting of your druggists a trial bottle for ten cents, or a regular size bottle for $1. For sale by all druggists.

PROSPECTS FOR OARSMEN.

Present Symptoms of a Serious Outbreak of the Rowing Brigadin Fever.

The indications are very favourable for one of the most interesting boating seasons ever known in this country. There will be numerous regattas and liberal premiums for good rowing, and an array of good oarsmen will be afloat early in the season. Courtney writes a friend in this city that, if he should be able to row as fast this spring as he was last fall he will try to win back the good opinion of his friends. He realizes that while he has been inert and out of practice other sculllers have wonderfully improved and gone to the front, and says that he does not wonder that people now rate him as a second or third rate man. He feels, however, that the second and third rate men who affect to look down upon and fling mud at him would act in a more business like manner if they would indicate by challenge or otherwise their desire to row a race against him. Trickett will locate at Saratoga this spring, and there may be a little rivalry between him and Riley, the latter of whom has heretofore been "cock of the walk" at the famous village of the springs. It is not improbable that, with a view of bringing the oarsmen together at Saratoga, Mr. Reed (partner of the late John Morrisser) and other gentlemen will offer prizes for a regatta at Saratoga, in which Ross, Kennedy, Riley, Hosmer, Trickett, Ten Eyck, Lee, Plaisted, and perhaps Courtney will be competitors in singles, while Davis and Kennedy and other double teams will contest, and, perhaps, a professional race in fours will be had. Never was there a better opportunity for a grand regatta of professionals in which rowing races of all kinds may be had. A week of most exciting aquatic contests could be had at Saratoga for prizes amounting to $5,000 or $6,000.—Boston Herald.

THE ATTENTION of owners of Farm Property and Residences is invited to the above Pyramid, showing the uniform and sure growth, during the last seventeen of its 27 years of existence, of a fire insurance company whose charter limits its business to their class of property—the Agricultural Insurance Company, of Watertown, N. Y. The figures represent the amount set apart at the dates given for the PROTECTION OF POLICY HOLDERS.

Twenty-seven years of patient toil has made this the strongest and largest Company doing an exclusive Dwelling Business in the United States, if not in the world. It now issues 45,000 policies a year. No other like Company can show such growth and increase.

The history of this Company proves that a LARGE business, well scattered, managed with prudence, can be done with a very small profit from each risk, and afford perfect security, which will grow stronger every year.

While nine-tenths of the "Mutual" fire insurance companies, and many of the Stock companies, have failed on account of reckless or extravagant management, or doing too small a business, the OLD AGRICULTURAL, by economy, energy and prudence, has every year added a substantial amount to its Assets, for the indemnity of its patrons, and now occupies a position in the confidence of the public second to no other Company.

From year to year it spreads the base of its Pyramid and gains strength.

EXTRACT FROM CHARTER.—"Article 8. This Company is formed for the purpose of insuring Farmers' Dwellings, Private Residences, Barns and Outbuildings, with their contents, and other property not more hazardous, and is strictly confined to this class of property.
