CITY AND VICINITY.

Probs.—Moderate to fresh breezes, fair weather, with local showers and thunder storms.

S. Burgess & Son have received today a beautiful lot of honiton point lace in new patterns.

J. E. Hutcheson will receive his fourth annual consignment of flowers on Thursday morning. Parties wanting plants will do well to call early.

"At Home" on Wednesday.—The Commandant and Gentleman Cadets of the Military College have issued cards for an "At Home" on Wednesday evening.

Bon Voyage.—In the litany prayers offered up in the Anglican churches, yesterday, for the safe passage of the Bishop of Ontario during his voyage on the Atlantic.

Engine's Name.—As a tribute to the memory of the late Col. G. W. Flower, the new engine for the K. & P. RR., to leave the Canadian Engine and Locomotive works in a few days, will bear his name.

Wrecking Fences.—Ald. Allen is determined to prosecute and punish (if he can secure conviction) those who have been wrecking and stealing the fence enclosing his property on the corner of Division and Main streets.

Police Court.—Charles Smith, recently from St. Clair, Mich., was allowed twenty-four hours to remove from the city. Michael McGragan, of Portsmouth, a sailor, deposited $1 for his intemperate conduct.

True Blues.—The annual meeting of the Grand Lodge of this Order will open in this city to-morrow morning, the delegates east and west reaching here during the night. To-morrow evening Rev. Mr. Carey preaches a sermon to the lodge in St. Paul's.

Cotton Company's Stock.—It is a mistake to think that the cotton company's stock is held at a premium and that it can not be secured. Stock can be obtained at par for the next few days on application to Messrs. Carruthers Bros., F. Shaw, or any of the directors.

Dangerous Sidewalk.—If the Pittsburg Council does not become defendant in an action for damages, over an accident on the wretched plankwalk between Barriefield and the bridge, it may give plenteous thanks for a wonderfully mysterious dispensation of Providence.

Fine Furniture.—Messrs. Gibbard & Son, of Napanee, who have shown such fine furniture at the Central Fairs here, and who have sold freely to citizens of Kingston, now ask for a full share of public patronage. They offer a great variety of styles at very low prices.

Coming Star.—Miss Genevieve Ward, acting in "Forget Me Not," has been seen during the past week at Terre Haute, Lafayette, Fort Wayne and Detroit. She will visit, in succession, Hamilton, Toronto, Kingston, Ottawa, Montreal and Quebec. She appears in Kingston on next Monday evening.

Col. Strange's Address.—Col. Strange did not use the boastful language indicated by a report of the speech delivered by him at the meeting of the Teachers' Association. In speaking of the defence of Canada he did not refer to what he could do, but what the strong right arm of the yeomanry could do in defence of their soil.

Recruiting Tradesmen.—The officers of B. Battery, Royal School of Gunnery, advertise vacancies for military artificers and others caused by men volunteering for North West mounted police. Wheelers, carpenters, blacksmiths and collar makers required; 20 cents per diem extra pay is paid when actually employed.

The Health Inspection.—The police officers have nearly completed their rounds of the city, and will, therefore, be in a position next week to again visit those places found in an improper state. A-one notice has been given to every person responsible for nuisance summonses to the police court will be the next procedure.

A New Wrinkle.—Capt. I. H. Radford is engaged now in pressing, with his hay press, shingle shavings and sawdust for H. B. Rathbun & Co., of Mill Point. The article will be shipped to Boston and put aboard the steamships as bedding for cattle crossing the ocean. Captain Radford receives $6 per day for the use of the machine.

Farewell Sermon.—Last evening Rev. Joseph Young preached his last sermon prior to his departure for Morrisburg, where the annual meeting of the M. E. Conference will take place. His text was: "All these things have I spoke unto you that in me ye might have peace." He has been pastor of the church in this city for two years, and is likely to be re-appointed.

WIND WAFTS.

From Various Sources and on a Variety of Subjects.

—A number of Napanee gentlemen spent yesterday with friends in the city.

—Wild flowers are now plentiful in the woods, despite the stunted rain falls.

—The applicants for the carpenter's position at Rockwood Asylum are very numerous.

—The city census returns will not be made known until published by the Government.

—Lt. Col. Bog says the 16th Battalion prefer to put in their drill at home to going into camp.

—The Battery band is not dead, but sleepeth. Cornet and clarionet players are advertised for.

—The barns of George Williams, two miles from Picton, were burned on Friday last. Loss about $1,200.

—Plenty of time yet for gardens. Putting seed in the ground before the latter becomes warm is waste of time.

—Yesterday brought genuine spring. There were a number of boats out with amateur fishermen, and several boating parties went up the Rideau.

—The Montreal Star thinks the military corps of Montreal should invite Staff Sergeant Morgans to participate in their exhibitions.

—There has been no site yet selected for the charcoal works. As soon as the machinery is ready the ground will be chosen and the buildings erected.

—Potatoes sell for one dollar per bushel at Cape Vincent. At Kingston on Saturday they brought 60c. The N. P. is not all powerful on the potato, anyway.

—The illustrated papers print pictures of college base ball nines and boat crews, but it has passed out of memory when they published a group of the honor men of a graduating class.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Dr. Coglan, a late graduate of the Royal Military College, left this morning for Watertown, where he purposes to practice his profession.

Owing to the absence of Rev. J. M. Hagar, pastor of the Queen Street Methodist Church, his pulpit appointments were filled by Rev. Mr. Brock in the morning and Rev. C. R. Flanders in the evening.

Mr. D. A. Waddell, who removed here from Brussels, and is continuing the business of T. B. Ray on Princess street, is a former Kingstonian, and one of the best saddlery workmen in Canada. He shows some very fine work.

Vice Chancellor Blake, who is presiding over the Court of Chancery, which opened this afternoon, will address a public meeting in connection with the Sabbath School centennary in the Congregational Church to-morrow evening.

Mr. J. McLaren, M.A., barrister, late practicing at Smith's Falls, after spending a couple of days with friends in the city, left this afternoon for Nelson, Manitoba. We hope he will be as successful as the other Kingstonians who have preceded him to the new country.

Plundering a Furniture Shop.

On Saturday, midnight, a side door in the furniture workshop of Mr. S. T. Drennan, Sydenham street, was forced open by two men and an entrance effected into the building. While moving around in the dark they knocked over several articles, making a noise which alarmed a neighbor who had the police notified. But too late. The robbers had left, taking with them two large bundles of goods. They afterwards returned for the purpose of still further plundering the premises, but finding that they were being watched, quietly retired. On examination it was found that about a barrel of sofa springs, and a quantity of fibre and hessian were stolen. The design of the thieves was to secure the covering of a parlor set valued at $95. They, however, were unsuccessful. The material had been safely laid away. The robbers are said to be known. What measures Mr. Drennan will take to recover his property we cannot say.

The City Park.—The park gates were thrown open on Saturday evening, and yesterday it was the resort of hundreds. The walks are cut up considerably by travel over them in hot weather, but will soon be put in good order. The pathway, from the entrance on the corner of Barrie and King streets to the north side, has been widened and improved. Two hundred and forty six trees have been placed in and around the park this spring, besides 182 set out in Victoria park. This is good work.

LAST CEREMONY.

Interment of the Remains of Col. Flower in Watertown on Saturday.

The funeral of the late Col. George W. Flower, well known in this city through his connection with the construction of the K. & P. RR., took place from his late residence in Watertown on Saturday last. The deceased was personally held in very high esteem, by all who knew him, for his excellent and social qualities. He was a man of great activity and large business capacity, was connected with the construction of many leading railways, and at the time of his death was engaged in several heavy contracts of that class. His obsequies were attended by a very extended circle of friends. Special trains were run from Theresa, the home of the Flower family, and from Cape Vincent, and through the kindness of the St. Lawrence Steamboat Co., a party of prominent citizens of this city including the directors and officials of the K. & P. RR., were enabled to be present at the solemn occasion. The officials of several railroads were also present. The Watertown City Council, the Knights Templars, and his old regiment the 35th N. Y. Volunteers, also attended, but at the expressed wish of Mrs. Flower not as distinctive bodies. An eloquent sermon was delivered by Dr. Porter, of the Presbyterian Church, after which the solemn cortege proceeded to Brookside cemetery, some three miles distant from the city. The pall bearers were Messrs. Upham, Moak, Phillips, Dellenbeck, Ferris, and McGrath, while in addition to the public bodies already mentioned the most prominent citizens of Watertown testified by their attendance the high esteem in which the deceased was regarded. The Kingston contingent reached home about 9 p.m., after a trip which had been made less painful through the courtesy and civilities of the Ferry Company. The Times adds:

APPEARANCE OF THE DECEASED.

The body lay in a casket covered with black velvet, and lined with white satin. The corpse looked as natural as life, and one could easily imagine that he had only sank into a short sleep, from which he might at any moment awake. As poor old ladies, whose families Mr. Flower had in life befriended, walked into the parlors to look for the last time upon their generous, kind hearted benefactor, and with tears rolling down their care-worn cheeks, placed their hands gently on his forehead, while, they reverently stooped to kiss his cold cheek, tears flowed unchecked from all eyes, and the scene but faintly indicated how much he would be missed by the poor of our city. Kind and generous almost to a fault, he saw suffering but to relieve it. Here was deep grief reverently and touchingly expressed. Poverty as well as riches was here to express sorrow at the death of one whom they had known but to love and respect, and to extend sympathy to the bereaved family and relatives. The

and magnificent beyond description. At the foot of the coffin stood a cross, three feet in height, a mass of beautiful and rare flowers, the gift of Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Flower. At the head of the casket was placed a large and elegant pillow, in the centre of which were the words "At Rest." This was the gift of Anson R. Flower and wife. Immediately behind this pillow stood a broken column over two feet in height, made of fragrant and handsome cut flowers. Upon the coffin were placed a cross and wreath, beautiful in their design, the gifts of Charles Hart and Mr. and Mrs. Silas George. Upon the mantel-piece, directly above the coffin, sat a large pillow surmounted by a beautiful anchor, presented by the Misses Anna and Nettie Cadwell. To the anchor was attached the words, "He giveth his beloved sleep." Upon one side of this stood a lyre, a present from Mr. and Mrs. John Flower, while upon the other was a large floral chair. A cross and wreath, having in it the word "Father," was presented by F. and F. E. Bennett. It was a beautiful piece of work. An innumerable number of baskets of flowers, bouquets and floral designs were contributed by the many friends of the family.

LAST RITES PERFORMED.

The remains were taken at once to Brookside cemetery, being followed there by a large number, who, his friends while living, deeply mourned and felt his death. At the cemetery the last word was spoken, the last prayer said, and he, who had just reached the meridian of life, and who was so much needed not only by his family, but by the entire community, was lowered into the grave. The ways of Providence are indeed a mystery.

About a month ago Mrs. Coleman, of Union street, accompanied a lady friend to Queen street to look at a house which she desired to rent. The latter had to go into the dress fitting establishment of Mrs. Hattie Graham to obtain the key of the premises. While there a woman named Mary Clarke entered into conversation with Mrs. Coleman, who arranged to take her baby—a boy four months old—and nurse it for $1.50 per week. A first instalment, $2, was paid. Since that time Mrs. Coleman has not seen the mother, and this morning interviewed the police authorities and Mayor as to what course she would pursue. On account of having to care for the child she said she could do no outside work, thus losing daily 75 cents. She said that she did not wish to part with the little darling as she loved it. The mother will be hunted up and compelled to provide for it or receive it back again.

Fire at Prince Arthur's Landing.

We regret to learn that the church and parsonage at Prince Arthur's Landing were entirely destroyed by fire on the 5th of April. The clergyman whose buildings were thus destroyed is the Rev. J. K. McMorine, so well known and so highly respected in the diocese of Ontario. Unfortunately no insurance had been effected, and the parish is left worse off than when it began, the work of paying $6,000 having been just completed. Their's is a case in which an appeal to public sympathy may fairly be made. We hope that it will not be made in vain.

TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION.

Should Children be Punished? Should the Incorrigible Scoundrel and Vagrant Be Given Revived.

The afternoon session was opened by a discussion on reading, led off by Mr. Wood, who also debated the results of corporal punishment. He entered into the subject at considerable length, quoting various incidents and authorities in support of his remarks.

The discussion was continued by Messrs McGuirl, Wightman and McArdle. The latter held that corporal punishment was necessary in the school, and that the teacher was frequently obliged to enforce the discipline that should be inculcated at home. Parents are inclined to pamper and pet their children, hence their objection to the whipping which the latter merit in school; indeed, they are apt to magnify the most trivial events, and, on the strength of statements made by the scholars, to ask for enquiries for which there is no need. Falsehood, fraud, deception, negligence, disobedience, are faults not contracted in school, and at home they should be corrected by the exercise of stern measures. Solomon has said, "Spare the rod and spoil the child." "Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it." These words were not addressed to teachers, but to parents, who were too willing to shirk what is clearly their duty and too ready to find fault with the teacher for doing his.

Miss Chamberlain performed a pleasing piece of music upon the piano.

RELIGIOUS INSTRUCTION IN SCHOOL.

Rev. Mr. Carey, an honorary member of the Association, introduced the subject of religious instruction in the schools. He certainly advocated the combination, to a certain extent, of religious with secular subjects, the more so because the clergyman could not visit the young, until after school, at hours inconvenient to all, and certainly unsuitable to the young. He thought certain religious subjects—the Creed, the Lord's prayer, and Ten Commandments—could be taught and studied in school without much change being made in the usual routine, and with vast benefit to the scholars. It should not be forgotten that the law and civil code of the land, were largely based upon the decalogue; indeed the late Chief Justice Moss had decided that anything derogatory to Christianity was derogatory to the British constitution. The system of denominational education is rapidly developed, but the great masses are not educated in these denomational schools.

Mr. McArdle did not place the same importance upon the teaching of religion in the schools which Mr. Carey did. What this country wanted was national not dogmatic schools. The Sunday school, in his opinion, was the place for religious instruction, not the public school. Speaking about judicial decisions he regarded as peculiar that of the late Chief Justice Moss, in the case of Underwood v. Napanee. The hall was refused the lecturer because he was an infidel. Religion should not interfere with justice. A contract should be fulfilled in law, no matter what the religion may be of the one making it. To his mind there was a difficulty in teaching religion in the schools in a manner that would satisfy Presbyterian, Methodist, Anglican, Unitarian and Universalist, but he believed the virtues, such as truth, honesty, etc., should be urged upon the pupils.

Mr. McGuirl—Are our schools retrograding in this respect. Are the schools less moral than formerly?

Rev. Mr. Carey—They are.

Mr. McGuirl contended that the morale and discipline of the pupils had been improved during the 15 years he had been connected with them.

Mr. Wightman said the question was engaging the attention of the school authorities and friends all over the country. At one place a committee was appointed to consider and report upon it, but it was unable to make satisfactory recommendations. He scarcely agreed to Mr. McArdle that religious instruction should be confined to Sunday schools but he confessed to a difficulty in teaching religion in the public schools under the present circumstances.

Mr. Henstridge and Miss De St. Remy made a few observations.

Rev. Mr. Carey—Are the Ten Commandments regularly repeated in the public schools?

Mr. Inspector Kidd—They are.

Rev. Mr. Carey.—I would propose to visit each school in the city once a week and spend about a half hour in it.

Mr. Henstridge—Dr. Ryerson issued a book on Christian morals, which was cried down by every denomination but that to which the reverend gentleman belonged.

Mr. Kadd said the conduct and discipline of the Toronto and Kingston schools was vastly superior to what it was about seven or eight years ago.

The discussion was then dropped.

SUPERANNUATION FUND.

A lively debate followed upon the Superannuation Fund. Mr. Henstridge explained the nature of the change which it was proposed to make.

Moved by Mr. McArdle, seconded by Mr. Wightman, that in the opinion of this Association it is not advisable to endorse the superannuation scheme proposed by the legislative committee of the Provincial Teachers' Association.—Carried.

Votes of thanks were passed to the musical committee for the entertainment they provided, to the press for reporting proceedings, and the meeting adjourned.

Knitting Factory.

Mr. W. J. Blakely, the manager for the knitting factory, has arrived and begun the work of fitting up the intricate machinery. Mr. Blakely is from the Star Works, the largest manufacturing institution in Cohoes, N.Y. He prepared the knitted goods that took the gold medal at the Centennial Exhibition, held in Philadelphia, in 1876. He will receive a large salary, but good management is essential to success. It is necessary to have an expert at the head of the factory. Mr. Blakely states that he will make the mill a model one. It is expected that work will begin in about a week. During the past two weeks the carding and spinning machines have been put up. The factory will employ about fifty hands, the majority of whom will be girls. The company owning it have established agencies in Montreal and Toronto. The machinery formerly used in cloth weaving has been removed to Washburne, where it will be worked in charge of Mr. Joel Ebby.

A Good Move.

Accident at Gananoque.

On Sunday night a through down freight, standing on the main line at the Gananoque station, was run into by a freight train from the east. Both engines were badly wrecked.
