Daily British Whig.

Optifer per Orbem Dicor.

The would-be assassin of the President is weakening on his theory that an inspiration from heaven impelled him to take the President's life. On the contrary he is now of opinion that it was ordained by God that the President should not be killed, and so conscientious is the red handed rascal on this point that he declares he would never repeat the attempt even if afforded the opportunity. The gallows is none too good for such a wretch whether the President recovers or dies, and it is by some such means that he should be placed beyond the possibility of repeating his crime.

The people of Lambton are having a discouraging time of it in their attempts to give effect to local prohibition. Twice over their work has been cancelled on technical objections raised by their opponents. A third time, however, the prohibitionists are going to try it, and as they have repeatedly proven that they have a majority of the electors in favor of the Scott Act, there would seem to be no good reason why a trial should not be accorded it. Wherever local prohibition can be clearly and fairly adopted, as in this instance, it is entitled to a fair trial. It is quite time enough to talk about rescinding it when it has had such a trial and has palpably failed.

The continued improvement in Gen. Garfield's condition is a matter of deep and sincere gratification, not only to the American people but to the legions of hearty sympathizers of other nations who have shared American anxiety as to his peril and hope for his recovery. From the point of death the President's advancement towards convalescence has been singularly unvarying and without any set back sufficiently serious to be called a relapse. Although, as in the case of Hon. George Brown, the wound may yet develop serious symptoms, yet the general impression, based upon medical opinion, is that the worst is over and that the wounded President is out of danger. Very soon he will be so far recovered as to afford opportunity for the general projected thanksgiving.

The opponents of the Telegraph amalgamation and monopoly are breathing more freely since Judge Papineau granted an injunction temporarily restraining the Montreal Company's directors from effecting the transfer of the property and the management to American control. The case will be now tried upon its merits before the courts, i.e. as to the legality of the proposed amalgamation, while the shareholders also will have an opportunity of weighing maturely the intended transfer in all its bearings. We sincerely hope in the interest of cheap telegraphy it will not be consummated for if it does there will an immediate advance in rates with very little guarantee that the public will be protected against the greed which is always and everywhere a characteristic of all monopolies.

It must be quite manifest even to the reluctant apprehension of Sir Samuel Tilley himself, that he need not look to the city of St. John for re-election in 1883. He has been temporizing a good deal upon this question already, first fearing to face the people and announcing his intention to retire from public life at the close of the present Parliament, then recanting this decision and declaring his purpose to hang on to his present position. He scored election last time by a doubtful majority of nine votes over Mr. De Veber, who was refused a recount of the ballots, and, judging from the feeling which Mr. Blake's presence and speech have evoked in St. John, Sir Samuel may as well bid adieu to his present constituency.

The longshoremen's strike at Montreal resulted in sad failure for all who took part in it. The failure consisted in the loss of four or five weeks of solid work and then a return to employment at the pay against which they struck. This is to be regretted, for there is but little doubt that the wages given are inadequate and unfair, especially in view of the shortness of the season when men can be so employed, and also in view of the remunerative rates the vessel owners are getting for the very freights these labourers handle. It is to be regretted from the men's standpoint that they did not restrict themselves to lawful and peaceable measures to accomplish their purpose. When they began to riot and terrorize they lost their hold on public sympathy and their cause began to fail.

The fair dealing and humane Indian policy pursued by our Government has been in striking contrast to the treatment of the red man by the American Government. The natural complacency with which the Americans are accustomed to regard all their doings has not in all cases blinded them to the vast superiority of the Canadian Indian policy as compared with their own. Referring to this matter one of our American exchanges confesses:

"While we have been expending millions of dollars in money and thousands of valuable lives in attempting to crush the Indians, what has Canada being doing? The comparison is one that should make us hang our heads in shame. The colony of a monarchy has furnished us a lesson that we should take to heart and profit by. It has permitted its Indians to live in quiet possession of their property, and has encouraged them in peaceful pursuits until nearly all are agriculturalists in the true sense. There have been no costly wars on the other side of the border simply because Canada has adhered to the spirit and letter of the treaty and governed with the same laws both red and white men."

POLICE COMMISSIONERS.

As Investigating the Pearl Reed-Pidgeon Case—Policemen at Fault—Special Police Service.

This morning the Police Commissioners had their regular monthly meeting. The public reports in regard to the Pearl Reed-Pidgeon case were considered, and in connection with them the evidence of police officers Hinde and Snodden, who were on duty on Saturday morning at the time the young woman was arrested while masquerading in man's clothing. They repeated in substance the statement made by Snodden at the trial of the girl, viz. that about 1:30 on Saturday morning they saw a couple walking at the corner of Earl and Sydenham streets, the language of one of whom led them at first to believe that the speaker was a boy, but the subsequent conversation satisfied them that a young woman was appearing in disguise. She was swearing fearfully, and kept up a running fire of offensive epithets until the residence of the Rev. Mr. Brock was reached, when Pidgeon noticing the men across the way approached them so that as he identified them they identified him. The officers did not speak but followed them until the Court House was reached, where the girl was arrested. Pigeon said nothing which could justify his arrest but on the contrary he endeavoured to pacify her. He did not appear to be drunk, and only spoke to the police when he begged of them to let her go and he would take her off the street. The police had been blamed for not taking him into custody, but the Commissioners thought they did aright, especially as he was not acting disorderly in any way and as they did not know of the row which had occurred previously on Wellington and Johnson Streets. It was stated at the meeting that officer Jas. Nesbitt, en route homeward from a fishing excursion, met Kinchelar and Harris near the Custom House, and heard the former say, "I gave it to him good that time." Near the Post Office he saw Pidgeon who did not complain of being attacked or wounded. The police, therefore, could not be expected to make arrests. It may be added, however, that so far as Kinchelar is concerned it is probable he will be arrested as soon as possible, Pidgeon, we were informed, giving the information, upon which a warrant was issued this afternoon. It is known that he went to Cape Vincent yesterday, evidently in anticipation of these proceedings being taken against him. On Saturday the small knife stab which Pidgeon received in the side from Kinchelar was considered quite dangerous, but the wound is said to be healing nicely now, and his rapid recovery may be expected.

SPECIAL POLICE SERVICE.

The Commissioners then discussed the propriety of delegating policemen for service at picnics. It was stated that application was made for four men to accompany the Orangemen to Harrowsmith, but that only two could be spared. It has been usual to accommodate the citizens as far as possible in affording them protection at public gatherings, but some objection has been taken to what has been customary, and admitting the fact that the police should be kept as much as possible in the city it was resolved that in future the Chief of Police should only allow men off duty to leave the city, and that the parties wanting them should pay them such an amount as may be agreed upon. All gatherings within the city will have the protection of the force. Special constables must be provided for the fair and similar events outside the corporation limits.

A New Yacht.

Mr. A. McCorkill launched last evening a new yacht of four and a half tons burthen; length of keel, 29 ft.; over all, 24 ft.; width of beam, 8 ft. She is different in style to that usually adopted, being carvel built as high as the water mark (greatly strengthening her and adding to her durability) and clinker sides, which will stand the heat of the sun better than if all carvel. Last evening the little craft was tried and made excellent time according to her tonnage. She passed the yacht "Hard Tack" quite easily. Some ten years ago the last named yacht was one of the best of her size. She has had her name changed several times. Four years ago, as the "Thistle," she won numerous prizes both here and at Brockville, Ogdensburg, and Gananoque. Last year she was known as the "Wolverjun," but this season her old name has been resumed. Mr. McCorkill has named the new yacht the "Robt. A. McCorkill." If he can have her fitted up in time he will enter her in the race to-morrow.

CHEERFUL PATIENT.

President Declares A Smoke Still Subject Religious Tenets.

Washington, July 19.—It is reported that the President yesterday asked permission to smoke, but the physicians would not allow him. It is stated that as Guiteau's punishment will be utterly inadequate to the offence should the President survive the District Attorney is determined to take every advantage authorized by the law to secure for the assassin the greatest possible punishment and will therefore hold him in close confinement awaiting the results of the President's injury for a year and one day before having the culprit arraigned. The President's nurse is reported as saying that the pain in the feet and limbs still worries him considerably, but he is better able to stand the pain now. The soreness in the back has nearly disappeared. The President remarked a few days after the shooting that if it were not for the pain in the feet he would

NOT KNOW WHAT AILED HIM.

He is quite able to help himself and assists considerably when being moved. The President told the doctors several days after he was shot "I will stand pain, but you must stand all the worry. I can't stand both." A Southern politician of some prominence states that on the 17th day of May, while visiting the State Department, he overheard Guiteau say to a companion in an angry tone: "They have put me out of the White House. I will show them whether I can get even with them." Next day Guiteau purchased a pistol.

MISSING BULLET FOUND.

Washington, July 19.—The missing bullet, fired at the President, has been found in a box carried by a glazier who was in the depot at the time of the shooting.

A CHURCH INCIDENT.

A Policeman Upon Duty Makes a Funny Mistake—Canvasser's Arrest.

An amusing incident occurred at a church in New Castle, Del., not long ago, wherein a sewing machine canvasser came to grief.

A policeman was passing the church, as a gentleman came out. The man jokingly accosted the policeman, saying that he was wanted inside—meaning that the Dominie would be glad to have him turn from the errors of his ways and enjoy a peace that passeth all understanding. The over-zealous policeman, thinking there was some trouble in the church, went in. The sexton seeing a policeman enter, was anxious to give him a good seat, so waved him into a pew which had one occupant—our sewing machine friend. The policeman supposed that he was the man they wanted arrested, so tapped the canvasser on the shoulder and told him that he was wanted. The man edged away, as though to resist, whereupon the policeman collared the canvasser, and jerked him out of the pew. Some of the congregation, thinking the man had been doing something wrong, helped the policeman to fire him out. Arriving at the lock-up, the policeman saw the man who told him that "he was wanted inside," and asked what the charge was. The man "didn't know." The sexton was appealed to, and he "didn't know." The prisoner was asked what it was all about, and he "didn't know." Finally the policeman was asked why he arrested the man, and he "didn't know." The policeman then arrested the man who told him that he "was wanted inside," and at the Police Court he was fined five dollars and costs.

The man who was the innocent cause of all the trouble, says "he will never try to convert a policeman again." And the policeman says "he will never enter a church again, not if the congregation are pelting each other with hymn-books and Bibles." As for the sewing machine man, it has forever ruined his chances for being saved—and we fear, demoralized his religious tendencies for the rest of his days.—Sewing Machine Journal.

LATE ANDREW SHAW.

Drowned Apparently by Falling off the Wharf—Formerly a Wholesale Merchant.

The body of Andrew Shaw, an attendant at Rockwood Asylum, was found last evening in 20 feet of water at the wharf in the rear of the asylum. On Sunday he was off duty, and when such occurred it has been usual for him to spend his time around the asylum. On Sunday about 2 o'clock he said he would go out and enjoy a smoke. He was met on the wharf by a keeper to whom he remarked, on parting, "that he would be in in about 10 minutes." It is supposed that in sat down on the edge of the wharf with his back to a boat house and his feet upon a step used by persons for getting into small boats. While enjoying his smoke he must have dropped asleep and then into the water. In the evening, his hour for duty arrived, and as he was usually punctual a little surprise was expressed at his absence. Yesterday suspicions were aroused and a grappling hook being called into use the water around the wharf was dragged. The body was found near the place where he was supposed to have fallen in. This afternoon Coroner Sexton held an inquest, at which the above facts were elicited.

Mr. Shaw was unmarried, and 55 years of age. He had been employed at the asylum for 4 years, and was well liked by all. He performed his duty conscientiously. He was previously engaged with a brother in the wholesale trade in this city, their place of business being at one time in Ontario Hall. They were also large wharfingers, occupying the water front now adjoining the Grand Trunk freight depot. Misfortune afterwards come and the firm lost nearly all their possessions. Deceased for some years has lived in great retirement. He was of a cheerful disposition, and was always willing to assist in anyway by which he could promote the pleasure of others.

Endowment Fund.

Principal Grant has returned from his eastern tour. He has been very successful, and has met with great kindness from all the graduates of Queen's. The subscriptions to the endowment scheme were quite large, and the promise is that several thousand dollars will come from Eastern Ontario. The Principal will leave shortly for Goderich, from thence he goes to Manitoba.

Cochrane Ranche Company.

A few days ago was chronicled the shipment of fifty pure bred bulls of the Hereford and Polled Angus breed for this company's ranche, at the foot of the Rocky Mountains. They have just added over 6,000 head of cattle to their previous purchase, making in all about 12,000 head, besides horses, of which they have quite a number, including two thoroughbred stallions, sent up about three months ago with a lot of mares purchased in Ontario.

He will be buried beside his wife in Westminster Abbey. Dean Stanley remained in a semi-unconscious condition some time before he died. He was the son of the late Dr. Stanley, Bishop of Norwich, and was born in 1815. In 1863 he became Dean of Westminster.

In the House of Commons clauses 42 to 45 of the Land Bill were passed, and the discussion on the 46th clause was begun when Mr. Gladstone moved to report progress. The Opposition and Home Rulers opposed the motion till Mr. Gladstone explained that his object was to allow the House to go into Committee of Supply. Mr. Gladstone's motion was carried by 116 to 58. Mr. Gladstone announced that the Scotch Endowment bill will be persevered with, and the Bankruptcy bill abandoned.

Scene at A Meeting.

Toronto, July 19.—The World says: At a meeting of the St. George's Society a proposition came up to make Mr. Goldwin Smith an honorary member. A lively time ensued among the score of members present. It was pointed out that that gentleman had given over $750 to the charitable funds of the society, that he had offered to give more, and that he had always done what he could to promote its interests. Mr. J. Herbert Mason at once jumped up and denounced Mr. Smith as an annexationist and a dangerous man, and for a while the inoffensive professor and his views turned the society into a little bear garden. Several attempts were made to pour oil upon the troubled waters, and at last a compromise was made, namely, that the question should be held over for three or four months.

Ottawa Mayoralty.

Ottawa, July 19.—Mr. Mackintosh held a mass meeting in By-ward market square last evening, at which 2,000 persons were present. He charged Clancey with having sold corporation passes to a poor widow who was unfortunate enough to be in his clutches, with shaving corporation cheques, with buying corporation accounts for half their value and having them passed whilst chairman of the printing committee, and with having forged the name of Daniel Gleeson who appears as seconder on his nomination paper. Gleeson appeared on the platform and substantiated this. Clancy had a narrow escape from being mobbed on his way home. Were it not for the presence of the police at the meeting he would have been roughly dealt with.

TWO BAD FIRES.

Syracuse Opera House Block Burned—Lamentable Event at Rideau Falls.

Rideau Falls, July 19.—A serious fire occurred here last night about midnight; the Roman Catholic Presbytery was burned to the ground. Nothing but the stone walls remain. The priest, Father Larue, who was in the house at the time, was found to have been burned to death in the flames. His nephew, who was in the house with him, had retired to his room at 10 p.m. and was awakened by the smoke and flames and escaped with his life by jumping out of the window. The fire was first seen as coming from the rev. father's room, who had been ill for some days but not confined to his bed. The doctor had left him not very long before the accident, and it is supposed that after his departure Father Larue took a fit and overturned the lamp which set fire to surrounding materials. Every possible means were taken to rescue the lamented gentleman and to save the building, but without effect. The other residents of the Presbytery were absent at the time on a visit. The deceased has been priest here for about five years.

Syracuse, N.Y., July 19.—The Weeting Opera House building, in the centre of the city, one of the handsomest houses in the State, was burned this morning. It has been the most disastrous fire in Syracuse for thirty years. It is estimated that the loss will be upwards of $300,000. Fifty tenants are all losers. Among them are Rosenbloom Bros. shoe dealers, loss $30,000; Ingalls & Co., shoe dealers, $35,000; Everson, Frissel & Co., hardware, $50,000; Gilves, Everson & Books, $10,000; Pierce & Co., crockery, $10,000; Shattuck saloon, $40,000; Powers, drugs, $18,000; Cropot & Co., seeds, agricultural implements, $[illegible]00; Warner & Co., and many offices.
