HALE'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER.

This elegant article is compounded with the greatest care.
Its effects are beautiful and satisfactory.
It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color.
It restores all eruptions, itching and dandruff, and the scalp by its use becomes white and clean.
In its tonic properties it renders the capillary glands of their original vigor, preventing baldness, and making the hair grow thick and strong.
As a dressing nothing has been found so effectual or desirable.
Dr. A. A. Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, says of it: "I consider it the best preparation for its intended purposes."

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE,

For the Whiskers.

This elegant preparation may be relied on to change the color of the beard, from gray or any other undesirable shade, to brown or black, at discretion. It is easily applied, being in one preparation, and quickly and effectually produces a permanent dye, which will neither rub nor wash off.

TIME IS SHORT.

I sometimes feel the thread of life is slender
And soon with the labor will be wrought;
Then grows my heart to other hearts more tender
The time is short

A shepherd's tent of reeds and flowers decaying
That night winds soon will crumble and naught
So seems my life, for some rude blast delaying
The time is short

Up, up, my soul, the long spent time redeeming
Sow thou the seeds of better deed and thought
Light other lamps, while yet thy light is beaming
The time's short

Think of the good thou might have done when brightly
The sun to thee life's choicest seasons brought
Hours lost to God, in pleasure passing lightly
The time is short

The time is short. Then be thy heart a brother's
To every heart that needs thy help in aught
Soon thou may need the sympathy of others
The time is short

If thou hast friends give them thy best endeavor
Thy warmest impulses and thy purest thought
Keeping in thy mind in word and action ever
The time is short

Where summer winds, aroma laden, hover
Companions rest; their work forever wrought
Soon other graves the moss and fern will cover
The time is short

Up, up, My Soul! ere yet the shadow falleth
Some good return in latter seasons wrought
Forget thyself, when duty angels calleth
The time is short

By all the lapses thou hast been forgiven,
By all the lessons prayer to thee hath taught
To others teach the sympathies of Heaven
The time is short.

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH.

IS THE REV. W. B. CAREY A PERSECUTED PREACHER?

A Statement of his Case—Crookedness of Certain Church Members Exposed—An Earnest Appeal for Peace.

For some time there has been some trivial differences between Rev. W. B. Carey and certain members of his congregation. An attempt was made some time ago to reconcile the divided parties, but the efforts to that end proved fruitless. Latterly there have been several vacancies — the incumbent disputes their right to the name of adjourned vestry meetings — at which, finally, such proceedings were taken as gave the reverend gentleman cause for stating his case to the congregation, which he did yesterday, at morning service, the address taking the place of the Sermon.

He said he was sorry to be compelled to omit the usual sermon and to speak a few words with regard to some things in connection with the present state of the parish. This he did as a duty to himself and to them. He trusted that anything he would say would not offend any one. Such was not his purpose, but it was his intention to deal with matters of fact, stated plainly and clearly. He desired none to take umbrage at what he said, and he trusted the Almighty, in whose house they had assembled, would not be offended at his taking that occasion to speak on the subject he had chosen to discuss. They were, doubtless, all aware that since Easter there had been several meetings or so-called meetings in this parish. Some of these had been referred to in newspaper reports, but at the last meeting no report whatever had been given, but a summary of the proceedings had been sent to him. As he did not think he should be any wiser than the congregation in respect to what concerned them all he

READ THE DOCUMENT TO THEM.

"Kingston, July 27, 1881.

"Rev. W. Carey.

"DEAR SIR,—I have been directed to notify you that at an adjourned meeting of the vestry of St. Paul's Church, held in the school room last evening, Mr. John A. Charles, Churchwarden, in the chair, a report was read from a committee appointed to enquire (1) the reasons why Mr. ——— and Mr. ——— had left the church; (2) the names of the other persons who have left the church and gone to worship in other city churches during the past six years; and (3) to report the remedy which the committee would suggest in order to put an effectual stop to the exodus of the active and useful members of the church. The committee reported

"1. That Mrs. ——— had stated that you had refused her son a certificate of moral character to enable him to obtain a situation as lay reader, that you had insulted her, and that the family would never return to St. Paul's Church as long as you were incumbent.

"2. That Mr. ——— stated that he and his family had left the church solely on your account—that he had found you untruthful and insulting, and in his opinion far removed in conduct from what a Christian minister should be; that they had not only left St. Paul's, but had gone to the Methodist Episcopal Church.

"3. A list of persons who had left the church during the last six years, chiefly pew-holders, was given, with the explanation in many cases that it was owing to your rudeness and discourtesy, etc., while it was added that there was very general dissatisfaction with you on the part of those remaining.

"4. The Committee, in the best interest of the church, after carefully considering the matter, suggested that the only remedy they could suggest for the state of affairs existing in St. Paul's Church was your resignation of its incumbency, to facilitate the arrangement in connection with which they asked for the reconsideration of the report of the Salary Committee for the present year; that the salary of the incumbent be cancelled from the first of August, and that in case you voluntarily resigned the incumbency, during the month the Church Wardens be authorized to treat you as liberally financially as the funds of the church would permit. The report was discussed at some length and finally adopted by the Vestry, Mr. ———, Church Warden, being the only dissentient."

A SERIES OF REPUTATIONS.

In dealing with this report, of a so called vestry meeting he alluded to the charge of his having refused to grant a certificate of moral character to one who desired to become a lay reader. Supposing that he did so had not the clergyman of a parish a right to exercise the privilege of recommending or declaring to recommend, by certificate of character, the candidature of one who, three or four years hence, purposed to take holy orders? He left it for them to say. As to his untruthfulness he had taken the precaution accompanied by his Church Warden, to visit the house of the lady who was alleged to have made the charge, and he asked her if she had ever said at the parsonage that he behaved, solely for the purpose of influencing persons at the meeting against him. She distinctly stated that he had not insulted her, and that the meaning she desired to convey was that he had annoyed her. By the use of a dictionary the difference between the terms could be easily discerned. Thus he was charged, he said, with untruthfulness in the matter of repeating the conversation of a member of the congregation, and this he disposed of by reading the latter's affidavit.

SETTLING A MISSTATEMENT.

"Rev. W. B. Carey has never at any time said anything to me detrimental to the character of ———

"He did not come to my shop or meet me or have any conversation with me on the evening on which a meeting of the committee of vestry was held at the store of ——— shortly after last Easter, after said meeting was held, and he has never at any time said any thing in reference to ——— behaviour towards me at that meeting.

"The Rev. W. B. Carey has never at any time said anything to me, or in my hearing, or to my knowledge, hostile to, or disrespectful of, the said ———, or reflecting in any way on the said ———, or in condemnation of the attitude or conduct of the said ——— towards him, the said W. B. Carey."

These documents were subject to the inspection of any member of the congregation who desired to see them. Concerning the last grave charge conveyed in the report, he failed to realize that there was any foundation for it, but it was for those who thought differently to present him to the Bishop's Court for trial. He was ready for such an issue. If they did not proceed against him they were found as honest, straightforward men to retract the baseless charge they had made against him. The avowed and ostensible reason of all the disturbance was because it was represented that the church was going backward, but the real reason was because a few persons could not sway the body of the congregation as they pleased and carry out their altar designs. What were the facts of the case in regard to the

FINANCES OF THE CHURCH?

That during the six years of his incumbency the income had increased from $1,808 (the first year) to $2,250 last year. He could not say how many pew or seat holders had left the church; he had asked the church wardens for the information on Saturday and could not obtain it. On three occasions, too, he had asked to be allowed to examine the books of the church during lawful business hours, and his request had been declined. When he was permitted to inspect the minute book he found it mutilated, why he could not say; and in the record of one of the so-called vestry meetings the names of the persons present were not given, and there remained a doubt as to whether there were sufficient present to form a quorum. The legality of the meetings would be referred to at another time and be determined in another manner. It was stated that many left the church on account of the clergyman's unpopularity. Now the designers of the report might have given, without any great stretch of intellectual power their opinion of what brought some people to the church as well as of what took some away. If he was responsible for all the departures he should be credited with all the arrivals. He was also accused of introducing into the service customs which were contrary to the rubric of the Church. Now if such were the case the means of redress were simple. All the aggrieved persons had to do was to present him to the Bishop for trial. But he denied that he did wrong; he denied their allegations in toto. He had shortened the service especially during the warm weather, in order to meet the wishes of the worshippers, and in doing so he had followed the example of the Administrator of the Diocese, and acted as others did who had obtained the Bishop's sanction. The Bishop was ordinary; that being the case he could direct how the service of the church could be carried out. Perhaps, however, it would be well for the few who desired to shew them how to do things to appoint upon the Book of Common Prayer. At their vestry meetings he felt confident that they would prove quite as edifying as many of the speeches delivered on those occasions. He could not tell how many persons had left the church, but he had been told no later than last week by some whom he saw there before him that they were compelled to leave because they could not get peace in it. He could tell them that the first thing to cause disquiet, to drive people out of the church, was an increase in pew rent to the extent of about 250 per cent. The rent of pews which had been let for $10 was raised to $25. The experiment did not work well, and before long an increase of only 50 per cent. was added. But in some cases the change was made too late, members of the congregation having gone to other churches where the expenses laid upon them were much lighter. Again it must be patent to all that the church had had its average losses by death and removal, changes occurring sometimes by removals from one part of the city to the other. The church was being kept in a continual state of hot water by three or four people, and in consequence he had been informed by those of peaceable disposition that they would not stay in the congregation so long as a few discontents were constantly agitating as they had been during the last six years. They might as well expect peace in Ireland so long as the land was kept in a state of agitation, as to expect peace in a congregation where means and ends were employed to destroy the harmony of its relations. Before dropping the subject he wished to comment upon another feature of the case, i.e., the resolution passed at the vestry meeting on the 27th of April respecting his salary. The salary committee, after making the appropriations for those employed by the congregation, fixed his income at $1,100 with the following provisos:

A PROFESSOR TO DELIVER LECTURES

"That it be understood that he, (the Incumbent) is to turn himself to the people when performing the services of the church;

"That he will endeavour to promote harmony in the congregation, the members pledging themselves to support him by all the means in their power;

"That confirmation will be performed at the rails of the communion table in future."

DISCUSSING THE SALARY QUESTION.

He (Mr. C.) said it was known that such a resolution was passed at the meeting, but not without his protest, because there were things in it with which neither he nor the vestry had anything to do. This resolution had been referred to from time to time, but its twofold aspect had never been brought out. It would be observed that he was required to do certain things and the congregation certain other things. He consented to make a change in his custom of conducting the services solely at the solicitation of an old and esteemed friend, and it was said that a permanent reconciliation would be effected and a lasting peace restored. But what was the result? As one man pertinently remarked to him, "he had dust thrown in his eyes," and the sequence justified the statement. The echoes of the reconciliation meeting had scarcely passed away when the same old plotting and
