THE STRIKING TRACKMEN.

AFFAIRS ASSUMING SERIOUS PROPORTIONS.

The Outlook at the Depot on Saturday—Superintendent Herbert's Offer Falls Flat—The Men Will Not Be Regulled—Napanee Again to the Front—The Men Should Win and They Are Going To

The Grand Trunk trackmen's strike assumed more serious proportions on Saturday than had hitherto developed. At eleven o'clock in the forenoon the official car, containing superintendent Herbert, superintendent of bridge construction Finley, roadmaster McGovern, of Brockville; roadmaster Streets, of Belleville, and others, arrived at the depot. The train on its way up from Montreal stopped at all the section houses west of Mallorytown and brought to the depot the trackmen who formerly worked on that section. These, with the Kingston and Cataraqui men, about sixty altogether, were addressed by superintendent Herbert. He said that if the men wished to return to work they could do so, and that they would get a raise in time. The reply of the men was most proper and business like: "You must satisfy our committee at Montreal. You must confer with them; that is what we sent them there for." After remaining at the depot about an hour and a half the officials went on to Belleville, and in the afternoon returned to Montreal.

But this was only one feature of the day's events. A still more interesting one occurred, and one which seems to have been deeply planned. The G.T.R. evidently was under the impression that if they succeeded in putting up a good "bluff" they might intimidate the men to such an extent that they would return to work at the old scale of wages. A train load of 125 men was sent out from Montreal and distributed in gangs all along the line. It was thought that these men were intended to take the place of the strikers and their reception along the line was consequently not a pleasant or welcome one. Three cars and twenty men were switched off upon the siding at the depot.

In conversation with a Whig representative the men stated that when they left Montreal it was on the strict understanding that they were not to take the strikers' places. They are bridge builders and were sent out with instructions to measure culverts, bridges, etc., and see that they were in proper repair.

"There isn't a single man of us," said one of them, "who would do a single moment's work on the section. We are in sympathy with the strikers. Do you think we would give up $1.50 a day for ninety-seven cents? Oh, no! We are not put together that way."

At Napanee the officials attempted to leave three men, but the townspeople rose up en masse to protest against any such course. When the people of this now notorious little town get excited they generally mean something. They meant just what they said on Saturday, and that was to the effect that if the men remained there they would receive tough usage. Consequently station agent Hanley told Mr. Herbert that he had better take the men on, for fear they would be mobbed. They were taken on to Belleville. The men stationed here were, with the exception of seven, removed to Lansdowne on Saturday afternoon.

The rectionmen who were here stated that from all along the line came the most friendly advice to stay out until their demands had been acceded to. Farmers assured them that no trackman or his family would be allowed to want. One Gananoque gentleman offered to donate $50 to assist them in holding out. This they will do until their committee in Montreal has been satisfied.

A tie up may be expected at any hour, as the track has not been gone over for a week. The government must soon recognize the great need of public safety, and take the matter in hand.

If the Grand Trunk management think that the sending of these new men over the road will frighten and bring the oppressed trackmen back to work, they are much mistaken. The strikers are firmer in their resolves than ever, and will contest every inch of ground. From all indications it certainly looks as if the authorities were using a "blind", and expected the men to fall into it. Mr. Hays is not be at his wit's end to understand the whole affair. Before he was given charge of the Grand Trunk, he managed an American road which is making money since he left it. In the States when a strike occurred, it simply became a matter of quelling a riot by calling out the militia. But Mr. Hays is here confronted with an entirely different state of affairs. He is given an example of a Canadian strike in which the strikers are men of reason and peace, simply fighting for justice which is denied them. No property has been destroyed yet, or no threats made. Their grievances were mocked by the haughty, high paid officials who declared that the trackmen had not the backbone to carry out their threats. Now they are confounded, and are in danger of having the road tied up. To Mr. Hays, Canadian strikers must be a mystery.

The special detectives who arrived with the new set walked about the place trying to get information from the strikers, but were disappointed. They were armed with firearms, as also were the newly-arrived men.

One of the striking trackmen made things very clear to the new men. The latter remarked that they would stay on their car for the present. "That's the safest place for you," retorted the trackman, "and I would strongly advise you to remain right there. Now listen to me, if you fellows lay a finger on the track around here we'll make it warm for you, and don't you forget it."

To give way to the demands of the trackmen does not settle the whole question, and the G.T.R. authorities clearly see this. If the trackmen receive an increase, the engineers and the trainmen are also quite likely to make demands in proportion. This would assuredly break Mr. Hays' heart. Any dividend the road is paying is partially made by squeezing the poor employees to the very limit, and to have the dividend would injure the manager's reputation, which is so uncurdly handled.

A Treatment For Dyspepsia.

Much will depend upon the care exercised in the selection of food, so important to the dyspeptic. Hamilton's Pills may be used with the greatest benefit in cases where liver and bowel complaints are produced by or result in dyspepsia. Commence with one pill every second day immediately after dinner and reduce the dose gradually until one quarter of a pill only is taken, which will be found sufficient to stimulate the liver and assist the assimilation of food in the stomach. Dyspepsia, my Hamilton's Pills of Rhubarb and Burdock. One a dose.

Merchant tailors use cream of one color in the morning and another color in the afternoon. They do not know why; but they know it must be the right thing to do, because their forefathers did it. They are like many Canadian voters.

AN INTERESTING INTERVIEW.

A Member Of The Frame Scottish Concert Company On America.

When the Frame Scottish concert company, which appeared in Kingston last February, went home, they all expressed themselves as highly pleased with their tour through America. A Scotch newspaper, The Bateman of Rothesay, contains an interview with Miss Florence Hayward, one of the company, and some of her descriptions of American characteristics are very interesting and amusing. After giving an outline of the tour, Miss Hayward is credited with saying: "Canada resembles Scotland more for its people and its customs—there was not the same feverish rush that characterizes life in the States. There the people had no time to speak to you or shake hands, everybody being engaged in the same mad rush for the almighty dollar. In the restaurants or hotels they would bolt their three courses and be off like a shot, before the company had finished their soup. Many people said they had no time to keep house, and lived in hotels or boarding houses with their families. The men rushed about, while the women rocked themselves in rocking chairs and and chewed gum till they came home. The people seldom walked more than a few yards—they would take a car, a train or other conveyance for the shortest distance. They had no time for walking up or down stairs, and used elevators. As a result of such habits, dyspepsia and nervous prostration were the prevailing complaints; men were gray at thirty often, and the women grew old and faded long before their time." As an instance of this feverishness Miss Hayward told an amusing anecdote of a member of the company, who stopped a man on the street, and with an apology, asked for a light for his cigar. The man kept on his way with a sidelong motion, and before the astonished artiste knew where he was, had taken out his box, pushed some lights into his hand before the sentence was completed, and was a block or two away before the apology and thanks were finished. "Five or six hours sleep was considered quite sufficient. The children were very precocious and were introduced to strangers the same as adults. Little tots of five or six would sit at table and order their food as if they were grown up."

"In Canada the company had the honor of singing before the governor general, the earl of Minto, a Scotchman, who gave them a splendid testimonial. They visited the Falls of Niagara, but it cost them about thirty dollars each in tips to be shown round. The audiences seemed to be more cultured and well behaved, although the standard of musical knowledge was not higher than in Scotland. We never saw but three drunken men during the whole tour, and no beggars. As to entertainments, the talent engaged is not as good as in Scotland, but everything goes like clockwork, dialogue and action being quicker than here, one character on the stage before the other is off, and the whole thing finished before you know what it is all about. The tickets were sold beforehand, instead of at the door, and at the beginning of the show a glide appeared with the words, "Ladies will please remove their hats." In the western towns even a little wooden shed would be called 'the opera house', and small towns of two or three thousand inhabitants would keep two places of amusement going all the year round."

In New York, Miss Hayward had an offer to take the part of leading lady at the Madison Square theatre at a tempting salary, and since leaving she has received an offer of $150 a week to appear in vaudeville, but has not made up her mind to accept.

PLEASING CIRCUMSTANCES.

The Event Was Of Quite An International Character.

Oswego Palladium.

The local papers have said some very complimentary things about the reception and entertainment of the American troops by the Canadians on Wednesday at Kingston, but our neighbors across the water deserve all the praise and more.

It was doubtful if there was ever an exchange of courtesies between the two countries under more pleasing circumstances. In the first place the event was given an international character by the sending of a note by the British ambassador to the Ottawa officials notifying them of the intended visit. The governor general sent a note of welcome.

The Kingston people had their committee organized like a machine and from the time the boat landed in the morning until she departed in the evening the work went as systematically and smoothly as it was possible to have it go. Nothing was left undone to make the stay of the visitors a pleasant one. Mayor Kirkpatrick was omnipresent. It is certain that all in all, no body of men were ever more hospitably taken care of.

Many incidents of the trip will never be forgotten. Among these was the welcome and attentions by the United States consul Tetschelli. The latter has been consul at Kingston for twenty years or more. He is an old soldier and had both arms shot away in battle. He uses artificial arms and can even sign his name. Mr. Tetschelli's wife and son were were waiting in their attentions to the ladies of the party.

Oswego could have a visit from Canadians if she were disposed to get up a celebration for July 4th. The officers of the 14th battalion expressed a desire to visit Oswego and if the battalion came an immense crowd would accompany the soldiers. Rochester is anxious to have the Canadians come to that city in August, it being the intention to get up a big jubilee there in connection with a street fair.

A VERY PATRIOTIC SERMON

TO THE SONS OF ENGLAND AT ST. PAUL'S CHURCH.

Delivered by the Rev. F. W. Taylor, Aylmer, Que.—What He Considered England's Brightest Glory—Services in the City Churches Noted.

In St. Paul's church yesterday morning the Sons of England assembled for their annual sermon. Rev. F. W. Taylor, of Aylmer, Que., preached from I Samuel xvii, 45: "Then said David to the Philistine, thou comest to me with a sword and with a spear, and with a shield; but I come to thee in the name of the Lord of hosts." So speaks David with a heart trusting in the might of God to give him the victory. Sons of England, I speak in fraternal love when I say that the Christian life anticipates this victory. Not only is it true of the individual, but of societies and nations. It is righteousness which exalteth a nation—the name of the Lord God of hosts—not battleships, nor the tramp of legions; not the knowledge of education inspired by halls of learning, nor material wealth. These do not exalt. They may be means to an end, but leave our souls shriven. No, it is adherence to principle; it is a willingness to respond to the path of duty; it is a declaration that we are for God and God for us. That is what makes a nation strong, and her pages of history full of luminous deeds. That is what has made the mother country what she is today, and in which we, Sons of England, rejoice greatly. Where in all the world is justice so fearlessly administered? Or shall we speak of achievements by soldier and seaman? These men of England have pressed on under the red flag of St. George to victory. Even in death the Englishman is loyal and faithful to the flag he loves. What wonder that under the red cross of her flag her sons have gone on to victory. And to-day among the noblest names on the roll of martyred dead are those of the sons of England.

But it is not to great battles won, or commercial supremacy, or great statesmen or scholars, that I point as illustrative of England's brightest glory, but it is that which the Lord Jesus Christ taught. "He that would be great among you let him be the servant of all." He who is Lord of life and death affirmed that true greatness is in what we are, that character is something more than conquest. England's victories are nothing, and worse than nothing, save when won in a righteous cause, a cause of principle. Here then is the ring of true patriotism. Do we Sons of England live up to these principles? In vain will our efforts be unless we have principle and honor, and these should be characteristics of every Son of England. But above patriotism is the spirit of benevolence, doing good and being good. Patriotism is good, but charity and love for one another is better. In our society these two go hand in hand. Is it not our object to show mercy, to visit the fatherless, to succor the weak? Our platform is one of common brotherhood. Let us endeavor to raise our standard, and we can do so by learning to be loyal sons of God, which will enable us to carry out our obligations and so teach us to be loyal to one another. Remember we are an army standing together, with one heart, with one object and aim. Our duty is kneeling by the bedside of some suffering brother, and giving, if no more is possible, a cup of cold water to his feverish brow; to restrain unkindly words; to give of what we possess; to show sympathy; to rejoice with those who do rejoice, and weep with those who weep. So should the Sons of England be sons of God, not in boastfulness, but in humility. And so shall we be loyal subjects to one another, and prove ourselves worthy sons of a worthy mother. England has been styled in derision a nation of shopkeepers, but that is no disgrace so long as the heart of the nation is honest. Freedom has ever made Britain her home. Character was something more than universal empire.

On the return to the lodge room addresses were made by president Scruthon and past president Smythe, of Sons of England, and president Pense, of St. George's society. Very cordial thanks were voted to Rev. Mr. Taylor, for a really eloquent sermon, and as a young Kingstonian he was warmly congratulated upon his success in the ministry. Thirty years ago he began church work as a choir boy in St. Paul's. Thanks were with equal good feeling passed to the rector, churchwardens and choir of St. Paul's, under leader Nelson. The service was hearty and inspiring throughout, the choir doing their part admirably, including an anthem, appropriate to Trinity Sunday. "God Save The Queen" was sung in conclusion. Rev. W. B. Carey read several special prayers appropriate to her majesty's anniversary.

Church Paragraphs.

Rev. F. Hassold, formerly secretary of the Gananoque Y.M.C.A., is now Congregational minister at Philadelphia, N.Y.

Rev. D. G. S. Connery, late of Winchester, has been appointed tutor of elocution in one of the departments of Toronto university.

Grace Methodist church, Gananoque, extends an invitation to the Montreal conference of the Methodist church to hold its next session in June, 1900, in Gananoque.

Rev. Allan McRossie was presented with an address and a very valuable case of silver on the expiration of his five years' pastorate in Grace Methodist church, Brooklyn, N.Y. Mr. McRossie is now pastor of Sands street memorial church, Brooklyn, N.Y., and very far removed from his former church.

The services in connection with the quarterly meeting were conducted at the Free Methodist mission, Queen Street, yesterday afternoon. The proceedings were conducted by the Revs. Messrs. Norman and Burnham. There was a very large attendance and among them many earnest seekers. The meetings were and unusually demonstrative.

Rev. E. B. Lucey has urged next a sermon dealing with the lack of originality in ministers. A small proportion of sermons were entirely original. The ideas and conclusions were obtained from reading and appropriating to their own use the thoughts of others.

In the First Congregational church last night the preacher said that people nowadays were forgetting entirely what the church was for. They went to the church where they were most particular in their business, and where much was made of them. If they did not care to do this, then the church had no charms for them. It was time that this selfish spirit had its hold of the people.

Rev. C. E. Bland—a name honored in Eastern Methodism—preached able sermons in Queen street Methodist church yesterday. In the morning he considered the theme, that all things work together for good to them that love God, and quite clearly demonstrated the truth of the statement. In the evening he considered the indifference of men and women to the claims of Christ and showed that they were but seeking their own destruction. Mr. Bland is a forceful speaker.

Rev. M. Macgillivray preached a forcible sermon in Chalmers' church yesterday morning from Isaiah xxxv, 1. He pointed out that notwithstanding the enlightenment of the age, there are dangers of secularism. People are led away by novelty of idea and doctrine. Chief among the latter are theosophy, spiritualism, and christian science, the very latest fad. The preacher gave an outline of this so-called science religion, and termed it simply a money making scheme. Mention was made of Mrs. Eddy's silver and gold spoon, and photograph fakes.

Rev. J. L. Bates occupied the pulpit of the Princess street Methodist church last night, taking his text from Genesis i, 26. He said that the good book spoke often of the importance of man; God had given him dominion over all the animals of the earth, endowed him with reason and planted within his breath the spark of divinity. However deep he might sink in degradation that spark could never be extinguished. Again, God made man in His own image; but how much unlike Him some of us have come to be! Man was the great climax of creation, and was needed to complete God's great work. We call God "Our Father, which art in heaven," and if that means anything it means that we, as His children, must bear his image. We must, therefore, have something of divinity in us, and that divinity should be developed. The sermon was a good effort and appealed strongly to the people.

CITY AND VICINITY.

A Great Display In His Window.

Vincent M. Porter Dead.

Vincent Matthews Porter, a member of one of the oldest families of Niagara Falls, N.Y., died Friday from a complication of diseases, after a short illness. Mr. Porter, in his fifty first year, had been identified closely with the industrial development of Niagara Falls. Mr. Porter was married to Miss Kirkpatrick, a relative of Sir George Kirkpatrick, who survives.

The Closing Session.

On Saturday afternoon the teachers in attendance at the institute meetings in Central school met for the closing session. Inspector Kidd was requested to have the teachers exchange classes during the written examinations. The election of officers resulted as follows: President, W. H. Godwin; vice president, Miss Hagarty; secretary treasurer, H. Barney; executive committee, Miss Brannigan, Miss Lovick, Miss Crawford and J. G. Ettinger.

Fine English Clothing.

Messrs Wacks Bros., Leicester, Eng., are prepared to mail free to any address in Canada, patterns and self-measurement forms of their $7.50 tweed and worsted suits, and guarantee a high class fit. Goods to the value of $7.50 and upwards we pay carriage on. The British preferential tariff reduces the custom charges to a mere trifle. For full particulars write Messrs. Wacks Bros. as above.

More Care Should Be Taken.

A physician said this morning it was a shame that children in the north east end of the city having scarlet fever were allowed by their parents to run at large. This was the cause of the spread of the disease, and he knew of several cases in which the fever had been caught by children playing with others who should have been kept at home. Sometimes parents ignore the orders of the doctors in this respect and others again have no doctors at all, and thus the cases are not reported.

A Successful Kingstonian.

The announcement is made from New York that Frederick J. Pope, M.A., son of John L. Pope, University avenue, has secured the degree of Ph. D., from Columbia college. He led a class of seventy and his marks were twenty per cent. higher than the second leader. Mr. Pope is a graduate of Queen's. He has written an admirable essay entitled "Investigation Of Magnetic Iron Ores Of Eastern Ontario," in which the subject is treated in a highly scientific manner.

Mystery Cleared Up.

On Friday the body of an unknown man was found in the St. Lawrence river near Grenadier island. No one was able to identify the body. Dr. Shaw, of Lansdowne, held an inquest. The theory is that the remains are those of A. Shaw, who several weeks ago started from Gananoque for Grandstone island in a punt, with the the wife of one Mosier. Next morning the punt was found and subsequently the woman's body. Nothing had ever been learned concerning the fate of Shaw.

The Latest Text Book.

The latest of Queen's college text books is a "A Laboratory Guide to Practical Bacteriology" by Dr. W. T. Connell, professor in Queen's university and pathologist of the general hospital, Kingston. It has been prepared for the guidance of students taking a practical course in bacteriology, saving much labor hitherto expended both by lecturer and student. The profession speaks highly of the practical nature of the book and of the talent shown in the compilation. It is well condensed and makes an admirable course of lectures. The typo press is that of the Whig, which has found favor among the makers of text books for college use.

Hammond-Folger Amalgamation.

As exclusively announced in the Toronto World, the amalgamation of the Hammond Gold Reef company, limited, and the Folger Hammond gold mines, limited, is about to be consummated. The shareholders of the two companies will meet on June 7th to pass upon the consolidation, the preliminary steps of which have already been arranged. The Hammond Gold Reef shareholders will meet in the morning and the Folger Hammond shareholders in the afternoon of that day.

This amalgamation is an important one. The Hammond Gold Reef company owns about 112 acres and the Folger Hammond between 600 and 700 acres, which means that the joint corporation will control nearly 800 acres of mining lands, comprising particularly the entire extent of the famous dyke. Besides owning these partially developed properties outright, the new concern will start out with a forty stamp mill, a large electrical power plant at Clearwater Falls, a large amount of money in the treasury, and a large treasury reserve of stock.

As already known among those identified with the Reef companies are Hon. George A. Cox, Sir Richard Cartwright, Col. Sweny, and Messrs. Folger, Kingsmill, James Hammond and Charlton Jones, and it is understood that some new and virile blood is to be introduced into the consolidated organization.

The Hammond Reef shareholders will be given the opportunity of coming into the amalgamated company proposition, but upon what basis is not yet divulged.

THE NIGHT CLERK'S STORY.

A FACE LIKE CHALK.

A very bad attack of the Grippe one year ago last winter left my system in a very weak state and my nervous system completely unstrung. After getting over the dangerous stage of the disease I naturally expected to gain strength, but, unfortunately, did not do so. On the contrary, my blood became weaker. I daily lost strength and vitality, and my nervous system became so weak that it was a constant source of suffering both day and night. I lost appetite, the sight of food nauseated me, the weak state of my system caused shortness of breath and unnatural action of the heart, such as fluttering and violent palpitation, and my face was like chalk. I was in this condition and constantly getting weaker when I began taking Dr. Ward's Blood and Nerve Pills. I had read the books they distributed and their advertisements in the papers, and thought, "Well, I have taken so much medicine without benefit it is useless to spend any more money. However, I finally made up my mind. It is a forlorn hope; I can but try. If I am not benefited I will not be hurt. So I bought one box and received great benefit therefrom, so continued their use, and to-day am a well man in consequence; my blood is strong, my face has the ruddy hue of health, my appetite has returned, I sleep well, I have not the slightest indications of nervousness or heart trouble, and from a sick, weak, nervous man Dr. Ward's Blood and Nerve Pills have transformed me in six weeks to full health and strength." I am yours very truly,
