

Losing hair for a good cause

LIESA KORTMANN/ OAKVILLE BEAVER

HAIR FOR CHARITY: Kacie Rainey and Kim Buchanan hold hands while getting their hair washed by stylists Teresa Pupi and John Costarom before they had their hair cut off as friends and family watched at Salon Venere at Dorval Drive and North Service Road. The two teens donated their locks to Angel Hair for Kids, which provides human hair wigs for children of financially disadvantaged families who have lost their hair as a result of chemotherapy and radiation treatments, burns, Alopecia Areata and other medical conditions. At any given time Angel Hair for Kids has between five and 10 applications waiting to be processed. These requests come primarily from the Hospital For Sick Children, Canadian Cancer Society, pediatric oncologists, dermatologists and social workers. Angel Hair for Kids' office is at Dundas and Tomken roads in Mississauga. Kacie and Kim have raised approximately $1,000 for cancer research for children and they will send this to Sick Kids in Toronto. When a family friend heard what they were doing, she donated her hair that she had cut off many years ago.
