

All ages rock with Oakville's second Hardcore Festival

By Kathryn Harriman
SPECIAL TO THE BEAVER

Southern Ontario Hardcore is hosting the second Oakville Hardcore Festival tonight (Friday) beginning at 5 p.m. and tomorrow from 1 to 5 p.m. in the Pine Room of Oakville Arena. It will continue after 6 p.m. on Saturday at the YMCA, Oakville.

Rocktober Fest will feature bands from all over the United States and Canada including Maharaj and Confine, both from Oakville.

James Hamilton and Eric Hoibak, the two organizers of this event, were inspired by the lack of affordable concert events in town. So on May 6th, they organized and ran the very first hardcore festival in Oakville, and because of the response, decided to host this weekend's festival.

The message they're trying to put forth, according to Hamilton, is that, "You don't have to rely on big companies" to fund musical events such as this one. And with the low cost of $15 for a weekend pass, they've proven their point.

The weekend is filled with performances from bands such as Juliana Theory, Break of Dawn, Cru Jones, Capture the Flag, Ignorance Never Settles, In Truth, As we Once Were, and many other punk and metal bands from various places in southern Ontario and the United States.

The festival open to all ages, and passes are available at the door. Passes are $8 for Friday night, $10 for Saturday night, or $15 for both.

For directions or more information on the bands that are scheduled to perform visit their website at <http://www.sohc.org>.

Join folk club at its new location

The White Oak Folk Club has a new home.

Starting with its upcoming open stage session on Sunday (Oct. 10th), at 7 p.m., the club will meet at the Oakville Rod and Gun Club, 36 Upper Middle Rd. E. (just east of Sixth Line on the south side).

Performers, both developing and accomplished, are welcome to join the open session and present a two-song set, working through a high quality sound system.

People who just want to watch and listen are also welcome.

Admission is $3 for all.
