

could make them up by charging more than he was legally entitled to in other cases, if he had been allowed to do so. Perhaps the men who are now making for doing what he considered to be their duty, did not consider that a man was fit to be a constable, no matter how intelligent and capable he might be, who would be willing to make an arrest, sometimes since, thought the best course for him to adopt was to run away, when a pistol was presented at him, which was minus of everything save an old barrel. But it is well known that a man in Aurora who holds the commission of the peace, for low mean cunning could hardly be equaled in the universe. It all the recent appointments had been of the same stamp as him, the last might well indeed be called black, I and double black, as being his brother Magistrate how to slander them, seems to take up the most of his time to the detriment of his own business; for it is already whispered round how can he sit as a magistrate for if every man had his own, instead of being able to qualify for it, he would not be able to command the same number of constables. I have thus, I hope, shown that there are others who are as much to be ashamed as the four Magistrates of Aurora, who unfortunately differ in political opinions from an intelligent constable. I have neither the opportunity nor inclination to enquire into the truth or falsehood of the statements brought forth in Mr. Ashton's letter, as the sole object of this communication is to show, that even if what he states is true—which I much doubt—there are others whose doings would not bear to be scrutinized by an impartial public. I have only glanced at a few things, but if desired, I can enlarge in another communication. E. J. I close I must say that the decision made in Mr. Ashton's letter, to what might happen to a certain individual, ought for obvious reasons be left out. The discussions of an all-wise Providence ought not to be commented on in such a manner, as is alluded to in that letter; for we well know he does nothing but what we may learn a lesson from. I will now conclude this letter by relating an instance of this, which has come under my own knowledge. In Aurora there lived, some time since, a man who was engaged in business; he, like many others, became bankrupt and turned over his property to two preferential creditors, for the benefit of the other creditors. It was supposed, and with good reason too, that it was done for the purpose of cheating the poor man, who naturally could not help himself. Amongst the creditors was a blind man, who was actually robbed out of about $100. But mark the result. One of those preferential creditors has been for some time in a state of blindness, and is now somewhat better, which ought to be a warning to him in future to act honestly to all men, and to deal in truth, which if he does, honesty must follow.

The foregoing, I think, ought to be a lesson to all who know of it, not to mock at the disabilities of a man, who, like many others, is being, if Mr. Ashton writes again for the purpose of enlightening the public, he will bear this in mind.

I remain, Mr. Editor,
Yours, &c.,
PHILIP TELL TRUTH.
Aurora, April 14, 1860.

SERIOUS COLLISION ON THE GRAND TRUNK, AT STRATFORD.

ONE MAN KILLED AND FIFTEEN OTHERS SEVERELY INJURED.

About nine o'clock on the night of Tuesday, there was a serious accident on the Grand Trunk Railway, about a mile from Stratford station, resulting in the death of a man named Feehan, and the serious injury of fifteen other persons. It appears that a freight train, coming east, left Stratford about nine o'clock, and when about a mile from the station, it came into collision with a construction train, on which was a large number of workmen. Both trains were on the main track at the time the collision took place, and both were running at a rapid rate. The engines and tenders of both trains were literally smashed to pieces, and the debris strewn along the track. The platform cars, which composed the construction train, were loaded with ties, on which were seated a numerous body of workmen, who had been out on the line during the day, making some necessary repairs. When the collision took place the greater portion of the men were precipitated to the ground, and many of them were severely injured. A large number had their legs crushed when the trains came into contact, and it is feared that in many instances amputation will be necessary. A man named Feehan, belonging to Guelph, and who had only been two days engaged on the road was killed instantly. One of the firemen was also severely injured that his life has been despaired of. The body of Feehan was taken to Stratford, where an inquest was opened yesterday forenoon. Four persons a good deal injured, were brought on to Toronto by an Express train last evening, and were immediately conveyed to the General Hospital. No cause has been assigned for the accident. Mr. Shanley reached Stratford shortly after it took place, and is investigating the matter. A telegram was also transmitted to the superintendent of the western division of the road, Mr. Christie, who is at present at Chicago.

TORONTO SPRING ASSIZES.

SATURDAY, April 14, 1860.

The Court opened this morning at half past five o'clock, Hon. Justice Hagarty presiding.

THE SEDUCTION CASE.

The jury in the case of Henry Es. Macdonnell, which was tried yesterday, returned a sealed verdict this morning in favour of the plaintiff and $100 damages.

THE QUEEN VS. MARTYN SMITH.

The prisoner, Martyn Smith, was arraigned and pleaded "not guilty" to a charge of shooting at one Jesse Smith, his step father. The indictment contained three counts—the first charging the prisoner, with shooting with the intent to kill; the second, with intent to maim, and the third, to do some grievous bodily harm.

Hon. J. C. Morrison, Solicitor General West, prosecuted, and M. C. Cameron defended the prisoner.

Jesse Smith was called and said—I live in the township of Vaughan and know the prisoner; we both live in the same house; on the 20th of Oct, last, after dinner, I was standing at the window, when the prisoner commenced to speak of the children, and asked whether I intended to purchase books for them. I replied that, of course, they must have books. The conversation then assumed an angry tone, the prisoner put his fist to my nose and ordered me out of the house. On refusing to go he went into the bed-room to get a gun, saying he would shoot me. I followed him and endeavored to wrest the gun from him. In the struggle the stock broke, and in a short time the weapon was discharged. The contents lodged in my thigh. The prisoner then left the room. The wound was a severe one, and I lay on the floor almost insensible and unable to move. I had a perfect right to be in the house. The prisoner is my step-father.

Cross-examined by Mr. Cameron—I do not recollect what words passed between us. I did not order him out of the house; for he had an equal right to be there with myself. He went into the room to get the gun, I believe, and got to put his coat and boots on. When I entered the room after him he had the gun in his hand. I could not say in what manner the gun went off during the scuffle. Its muzzle might have been as often pointed towards him as myself. The prisoner always treated me severely or harshly. He, however, ordered me away about three years ago, and I went. My mother and the rest of the family remained in the house, and were there when the shooting affair took place, about an hour after dinner. I did not think that I acted improperly towards the prisoner, so as to give him cause for anger.

To Mr. Morrison—The prisoner said when he left the room in which we were standing, that he would shoot me. My object in following him was to prevent him obtaining the gun.

J. D. Stevenson, M. D., was next called. He said—I am a medical practitioner residing in Kilmoberg, and was called in to attend the last illness when he was wounded. I found him lying in the bed room, having received a gun shot wound in the thigh which fractured the bone. About fifteen minutes afterwards I was summoned to attend the prisoner, who had attempted to cut his throat. The wound received by the prosecutor was made by a bullet fired from a gun.

This closed the evidence for the prosecution.

Mr. M. C. Cameron addressed the jury on behalf of the prisoner. He did not call any witness.

The jury found the prisoner guilty of common assault. He was the sentenced to an imprisonment of six months at hard labor.

THE QUEEN VS. JOHN CLARKE.

The prisoner in this case was charged with stealing a pistol and other articles, the property of Mr. Peter Snyder, of the township of Vaughan.

Hon. J. C. Morrison conducted the case for the crown; the prisoner was undefended.

The jury acquitted the prisoner.

The distinguished Mr. Morrissey, the prize-fighter, has received honorable attention. He was taken into Bell's Life's editorial room, was presented to the editor, said he had bet $3,000 on Sayers, and at last accounts was about to visit his favorite, with the idea of 'posting' him on Heenan's weak points.

MARRIAGES.

By the Rev. James Dick, on the 17th inst., Joseph Readman, to Sarah Ann Peterborough both of Vaughan.
