BY J. CLEMENT.

My guid auld frien', my Pocket Book,. ne o' need, " by hook and crook, Thou'st pointed to some cozie neck Frae Trouble's glower, Ner auce, till now, has me forsook,

Or missed the stoure. Wham I was but a ram-scam chiel,

An' constant trad on Pleasure's heel, The verdant brass o' youth to speel, Thy help was near, An' put my sonses i' a cree Wi' shining gear.

Through mony a season thou hast been in bitterest hours my sweetest frien'. An' aft dispelled fear life's deep glen. The gathering gloom, Making the flowers o' joy again

Mair gaily bloom. When weary wi' a load o' care, Or when misfortune pressed me sair, An' Poverty began to stare Wi' eldrich look, Thes I' my haun thy siller fair

Was freely shook. Ilk turn of Fortune's whizzing wheel Has brought me roun' sic glerious weal!

Plump, sleek and braw; ne! Luck kicks up her heel, An' rin's awa' !

New thou art thin as ony sprite; That gallops on the back o' night: Thy ghaistly form my een doth frigh Thou art sae lean ; Thou lookest like a starving wight

Suspension, cruel as the rack, Has set his greedy, thievish pack, Without remorse upo' thy back,

Nor gien thee rest, Till thou art robb'd of ilka pluck By thee possess'd.

Bull I'se na let my tentless Music Wf crambo-lingle barsh abuse ve: The ablias I nae mair may use ye,
Yet, for the past, some shelter I free harm will choose ve.

While life shall last, An' aud auld Time continue " hard," An' press yet mair the hapless Bard, Wassucks! his fate mann be ill-starr'd:

Starvation's pet,

He soon within the auld kirk-yard A hame will get.

Miscellaneous,

A reliable swell declares that he lately danced one evening with three young ladies, the united circumfrance of whose dresses amounted to an hundred yards.

On a tomb-stone in a churc-hyard i Ulster, England, is the following epitaph, "Erected to the memory of John Philips, accidentally shot as a mark of affection by his brother.'

A person asked a Grecian philosophe e thought the proper time to dine. said the ancient, "the proper time for dinner with the opulent is when they choose, with the poor man, when he can.

A young lady has discovered the reaso why married men, from the age of thirty years and upwards, are more or less hald. They scratch the hair off in dismay at their wive's long milliner's bills! Yes, it is sertain. You have all observed that when a gentleman is examining a "little account," he always scretches his head, and the longer the bill the harder he scratches.

He's a young man after my own heart," said a lady to a caller of one who had just passed her window.

"Then he told Mary an awful story last night, mother, after he thought Pd gone to sleeep on the sofa,' said little Pete, "for he suid he wasn't after anybody's, heart but her's."

An Irish gentleman meeting an Englishman, thus addressed him:

"Ab, my dear, is it you! when I saw ou at the other end of the street I you at the other end of the succes-thought you were your cousin; as you I shought you were yourself; came nearer, I thought you were yourself; and now I see you are your brother.

"Don't do dat,' said a colored orator "Don't do dat, said a coloreu orsaou the other day, when imploring his Republican friends not to apply the torch to the Union: "don't do dat, massa Greely and massa Steward, and massa Philips, and massa Conway. Don't you be gwine dis country on fire. Dars a nigga in de brush.

Swell.—"Ya-as, I know; but what's a man to do? The women are all getting their things made by tailors, and there's no getting anything done.

A culorit asked Jack Ketob if he had any commands to the other world?
'Why, said Jack, 'not many; I'll only,'
added he, as he had adjusted the knot under his left car, 'just trouble you with An Irishman having lost an eye, friend of his recommended him to one our famous oculists, with whom he agreed to give ten guineas for a very beautiful one shown him amongst the rest. He actually called the next day to abuse him for having sold him an eye with which he could not see.

The Irish shop-keeper who was cheated by an old woman stealing a jar of whiskey in mets at Brother Robert Wiserman, Masonic Hall, the first Friday ovening after and leaving a jar of writer, in its place, described her as speaking a strange dialect neither English nor Irish. A punster said he had reason to complain of the jar gon.

Notice. There is an evil habit sometimes induleed There is an evil labit sometimes induiged in by boys, in solitude, often growing up with them to manhood, and which, if not reformed by them in due time, not only begets serious obstacles to matrimonial happiness, but gives rice to a series of protracted, insidious, and deveated in gradients. Few of those who give vastating affections. Few of these who g way to this pernicious practice are aware the consequences, until they find the nerv-system shattered, feel strange and unacoun-ble feelings, and vague fears in the mind.
