GRANGERS.
The Grangers' picnic in this locality have been such a success as to inspire hope in their supporters—envy in their opponents. At these gatherings many of our farmers have met in a social manner, and besides passing a pleasant day together had had opportunities of forming happy and useful acquaintances. We have been delighted to be present at these meetings and listen to the addresses of the leading men of the order. From what we can gather from these addresses, the principles of Grangers are unpoisoned, and their corrupt practices—if of such they are guilty—is not the result of the principles they profess. We cannot see, like some of our contemporaries, how the world is going to be turned upside down and trade hampered. A number of middlemen that could very easily be spared, may be laid aside and the farmer and manufacturer brought closer together, but unless the Society becomes very general this cannot be accomplished. The farmer receives cash for his produce, and it is only a matter of fairness, after all, that he should pay cash. We firmly believe that if farmers were more persistent in adopting the cash principle, debtor and creditor would both be benefited, if not in the same degree, at least in some degree. Whilst we have every sympathy with the farmers as tillers of the soil, we cannot admit that they have only hardships, they have likewise privileges. Our means of education are accessible to all and is it not true that farmers in striving to add field to field, have failed to take that position to which they are duly entitled. Farmers form a large majority in the country, and if their power is not acknowledged, they have themselves to blame. They lament the want of proper representation in our legislative halls, and well they may, for instead of union of sentiment on questions of common interest, party has been the sole cry. If therefore Grangers adhere to the principles they profess, the tendency of their efforts will be toward the elevation of the social, intellectual, and political position of the farmer. If by discussions on subjects relating to the farm it is possible to raise the standard of agriculture in our country and to produce two bushels where only one was produced before, we heartily wish success to the farmers in the use of these means, and wish that they may speedily reach that position which they fondly hope to attain. While we must for a time be greatly dependent on our agriculture, yet to be truly prosperous we cannot reject our manufacturing interests, the two must go hand in hand.

DEATH OF LORD LISGAR.
A cable despatch from London announces the death of Lord Lisgar. The deceased peer, it is almost unnecessary to say, was Governor-General of Canada from 1868 to 1872. He came to us as Sir John Young, just after Confederation, and did much by the wise and judicious exercise of his authority to enable our rulers to complete the great work of 1867. He left this country, to be succeeded by Lord Dufferin, in June 1872, having been raised to the peerage two years before. His Lordship was born in the County Cavan in 1807, and was therefore in his seventieth year. He sat for Cavan in the House of Commons from 1831 to 1855; was a Lord of the Treasury from 1844 to 1846; Chief Secretary for Ireland, 1852; Lord Commissioner of the Ionian Islands, 1855 to 1858; Governor of New South Wales, 1860 to 1868; and Governor-General of Canada, as above stated, from that year until 1872. He leaves no heir to his title.—Mail.
BALLOONING BY A LADY.
A balloon was sent up from the Oswego Falls fair grounds the other day, and the Palladium tells how it came down. About 3 p.m. the balloon Victoria, which had been very successfully inflated, was ready for its trip. Miss Thurston stepped into the basket for her ascension, and she speedily shot almost directly upward, being a little north of an altitude of more than a mile when she disappeared in a cloud, presenting a spectacle which astonished and delighted a vast majority of the crowd, though it made some of the women nervous. In a few minutes the balloon was seen descending from the clouds, and too rapidly, it was known by those accustomed to see ascensions and acquainted with the habit, so to say, of the balloon, for safety. As the balloon rapidly dropped it appeared to be in a semi collapsed condition, and Miss Thurston could be seen throwing out the ballast and in effectually trying to rise. Prof. Squire viewed the affair with great apprehension and astonishment, as he knew the balloon to be well inflated and in good order at the start. Before it settled he set out for it, and after a foot race across lots came up to it after a run of about four miles. Miss Thurston had made a landing in a direction north-west of the Fair ground and about four miles distance, near Granby, Centre. As the balloon dropped near the ground, it was caught by the wind and driven with great force across the fields, bumping against fences and threatening the safety of the passenger. A farmer finally caught it and determined to save the "gal" anyhow. The Victoria unceremoniously snaked him over the lots and fences like the tail to a kite, but he hung on and finally weathered it out. Miss Thurston got out of the basket and together they made the balloon fast. The difficulty appeared to have been in the working of the valve. When Miss Thurston opened the valve, 30 feet above her and operated by a cord running down to the basket, she found she could not close it. Appreciating the danger she used all her strength and finally wound the cord about her body and hung her whole weight upon it, but the valve would not yield. It must have been tempered with by some person on the ground before the start.
A necessitous man who gives costly dinners pays large sums to be laughed at.

The jury in the Great Western accident case have returned a verdict to the effect that the victims came to their death in consequence of the accidental breakage of one of the wheels of the tender of the front engine. The train employees of the Company are exonerated of all blame in the matter.
