

Algonquin Honour Roll Contains Names of 341 Officers and Men Dead

Three hundred and forty-one officers and men of the Algonquin Regiment have been killed in action, fatally injured by accidental causes, died of wounds and missing, presumed dead, according to an official Roll of Honour prepared overseas for a memorial service, and a copy of which has come to the New Liskeard Speaker from a friend in Europe who did not disclose his identity.

The service was held at Almo, Holland, on Sunday, June 10, 1945. It is stated, and taking part were Honorary Captain J. Naphin, Roman Catholic chaplain, and Honorary Captain W. Valentine, chaplain of the Regiment, each of whom said prayers. The Roll of Honour was read by Lieutenant-Colonel J. F. R. Akehurst, D.S.O., Commanding Officer of the Algonquins. The regimental band played Last Post, the Benediction was pronounced and the National Anthem ended the service.

Of the soldiers whose memories were thus honored, eighteen officers were killed in action and three died of wounds; there were two hundred and seventy warrant officers, non-commissioned officers and men killed in action, thirty-seven died of wounds, six were accidentally killed and seven are listed as missing and presumed dead. While many of the names are of men whose homes were in other parts of Canada, a considerable number of the dead formerly lived in Temiskaming and Cochrane District area and enlisted from its communities. Hon. J. L. Ilsley Appeals to Women to Help Save Meat

"I appeal most earnestly to all Canadian women to serve no meat on Tuesdays and Fridays in your households," Hon. J. L. Ilsley, minister of finance, said in a radio broadcast last week.

"Because it will be some time before the intricate meat rationing mechanism can be put into operation, I ask you to take these meat conservation measures today. When rationing is introduced I ask you to give it your personal support and also to keep your consumption at the minimum necessary for adequate nutrition."

Mr. Ilsley warned that "those who fought by our side in Europe are in trouble. If they are left hopeless and helpless, we shall have jeopardized the peace so hardily won. But if we make them feel that they have friends in their time of trouble, we shall have helped to promote the kind of co-operation upon which the future peace of the world depends."

"Proper nourishment is a prerequisite to political stability in Europe on which economic recovery depends."

He revealed that in recent weeks Canada hasn't been able to maintain overseas shipments of meat, and that particularly during the second quarter of this year Canada's meat supply situation "has undergone a marked alteration."

At the same time, he said "the liberation of European countries has increased the need for meat. We reached the situation in which steps to maintain overseas shipments would create disorders in our markets at home unless accompanied by further control measures and consumer rationing of meat."

Official food rationing in liberated European countries, he said, are "below a reasonable standard even for relief purposes." They are little more than half what Canadians get, he pointed out.

Britain, which recently lowered its meat ration, may have to cut it once again, he said. "The whole European meat problem is immediate, urgent."

"In recent weeks, while improved transport, shipping and other facilities have been made available, slaughtering in Canada have fallen off sharply. This decline comes also at the very moment when there is a heavy demand for meat in connection with troop movements and for ship's stores, all of which has affected the amount of meat available at home and for export."

"The government took two steps: first, slaughtering has been placed under strict control so that supplies can be divided equitably between export and domestic needs; and, secondly, rationing was announced."

"Meat rationing and slaughter control have been initiated primarily to reduce domestic consumption in order to feed hungry Europe and so to do our fair part of a common task assumed by ourselves in co-operation with our allies. At the same time these measures will combat the threat of black market operations and strengthen the price ceiling."

Flemish Editor Pays Tribute to 21 Canadians

The following is the tribute paid to "twenty-one Canadians" by a Flemish editor. It was translated by a soldier overseas and sent to his wife in Toronto:

TWENTY-ONE CANADIANS

Alas, we know already many soldiers' cemeteries. But few have made such a deep impression on us as the little spot under the trees on the grand, quiet and noble ground "De Marentak" at Kapellenbosch near Antwerp.

Twenty-one Canadian soldiers rest here, united in their last sleep. They are lying there, side by side, under those simple white painted crosses, a squadron of death, once a squadron of beautiful and young life. Loving hands have strewn flowers over the one and twenty graves. Here they lie forever, at the foot of this small chapel, with its high, and narrow little spire, dedicated to Mary—Soldiers of peace and therefore ever dear to us.

They came from faraway, from far across the ocean; and in this tranquil little place of our country, never heard of by them, and the name of which they could probably not even pronounce as we do, they sleep forever. Who is the man who passing here and stopping a while does not say:

"You have come all this long distance, Canadian soldiers, to free yourselves and us from tyranny and terror which were menacing humanity in its most beautiful expressions. And it was not your fault that you had to come with rifle and sword, nor is it your fault that you lie dead in our earth, you who have become our brothers, you towards whom our hearts cry out in warm pity."

Fine lads, good lads, come from the glittering snowy woods of Canada, or from the delightfully scented orchards, or from the big streams and rivers, or from the shining lakes.

We did not know you. Even now we know nothing about you except just this, and therefore you are great, and we love you, and we will tend your graves forever, cover them with flowers and later with sweet-scented heather.

Canadian soldier, we would like to go to your mother and tell her: "Mother, your son, the light of your heart, he is with us and will forever stay with us. His spirit is with you in Canada, his body is ours till the end of everything. We have buried him under the finest trees in our country, and other mothers will strew flowers on his grave, just as our womenfolk covered him with flowers when he entered our cities. Mother of Canada, your son is one of ours. We shall never forget what he did for us and humanity, how he gave the most precious of all gifts, his young, beautiful and courageous life, that we might be happy."

Mother of the country where Marie Chappelaine was born, in our soil your boy will sleep without further care.

If we ever forget him, we would forget ourselves.

"... There She Goes!"

YES, there goes the whistle that means jobs! But remember! Factory whistles will keep blowing... smoke will keep pouring from factory chimneys, only if you and all of us do our part to keep Canada's dollar sound. And unless we keep the Canadian dollar worth a dollar, we're headed for inflation, and its inevitable result—depression!

Canada's active fight against inflation is a vital part of all our post-war planning. We Canadians must now—more than ever now—fight to keep Canada's dollar worth a full dollar!

Why now especially? Because now civilian goods are scarce, and yet money is plentiful. This is a dangerous condition.

It means we must maintain controls and price ceilings; support rationing and urge the support of rationing. We must buy wisely and with the greatest care: be on guard at all times, checking, working, fighting to keep Canada's dollar sound. If we do this, we can keep prices from rising. If we don't, some day we'll be paying a dollar for 30c worth of goods, which means our dollar is only worth 30c.

We know what happened after the last war! We must fight against it happening again. For our own sakes—for the sake of the men who fought overseas and to whom we owe a future with a job, we must keep Canada's dollar worth a full dollar. We must keep up an active fight against inflation!

Make this Pledge Today!

I pledge myself to do my part in fighting inflation:

By observing rationing and avoiding black markets in any shape or form.

By respecting price controls and other anti-inflation measures, and refraining from careless and unnecessary buying. I will not buy two where one will do, nor will I buy a "new" where an "old" will do.

By buying Victory Bonds, supporting taxation and abiding by all such measures which will lower the cost of living and help keep prices at a normal level.
