Joe Connell to teach
communications at WLU

Joseph Connell (just Joe Connell to thousands of people who've taken his famous speaking courses at the Kitchener Family YMCA) will teach a communications course this fall at Wilfrid Laurier University.

Connell, now retired but still one of this continent's best known public speakers, will teach a course in communications Wednesday nights as part of WLU's continuing education program.

His course, which carries credit toward the bachelor of arts degree, is oral communications, the fundamentals of speech for those wishing to attain clear and persuasive expression.

Connell will also continue to teach his popular public speaking course again this fall at the Kitchener Y.
