Southam News Editor Charles Lynch

First Speaker in Laurier Book Series

Charles-Lynch of Ottawa, Chief of Southam News Services, will discuss his new book, You Can't Print That, as the first speaker in the Wilfrid Laurier University free Meet-the-Author Series.

The series, free and open to all, is sponsored by the WLU Bookstore with assistance from the student government.

Lynch will speak on September 22nd at 3:30 p.m. in the Turret lounge in the Student Union Building. Conversation over refreshments will follow his talk.

Lynch's book has been described as hilarious, uproarious, and, at times, outrageous. The book is a collection of behind-the-scene anecdotes, commentary, and earthy humour.

Paul Fischer, WLU Bookstore Manager, said Lynch is not backward with his opinion and is expected to speak controversially on many subjects. "He's a Trudeau watcher, both him and her, and he welcomes questions on any political subject", Fischer said.
