Laurier holds annual career fair for students

About 1,400 students are expected to attend the 11th annual career fair at Wilfrid Laurier University on Wednesday, Sept. 19. The event provides students from all years and disciplines with practical career and employment information.

About 80 organizations including government agencies, and advertising, financial, and manufacturing firms will have representatives on hand to answer questions about career paths and employment opportunities.

"The fair can provide career direction to first- and second-year students," said Jan Basso, director of career services. "For senior students, it provides an informal environment in which to meet recruiters and make personal contacts."

Participating organizations will include Andersen Consulting, Levi Strauss, CUSO, Procter & Gamble, Ogilvy & Mather, and Royal LePage Commercial Real Estate Services.

The fair will be held in the WLU Athletic Complex from 10 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.
