The use of information technology and how it can help integrate health care that is focused on the needs of the consumer, will be the topic of a conference scheduled for Wednesday, September 11, 1996 at Wilfrid Laurier University's Paul Martin Centre.

Community Health Information Networks, (CHIN), bring together various elements of health care to provide seamless service to users. This conference will provide insight about established networks and provide a progress report on the development of a network for the Waterloo region.

Guest speakers for the conference include Brent Gibbs, Assistant Deputy Minister, Corporation Services Group, Ministry of Health, and Bev Voos, President of the Rochester, New York CHIN.

The conference is held in conjunction with the Waterloo District Health Council, Waterloo Regional Home Care, St. Mary's, Grand River and Cambridge Memorial Hospitals. A schedule of speakers and times is attached.
