CRITICISM and COMPLIMENT

Your editors have received many comments with regard to this bulletin. We are appreciative of those who have taken time to write and speak to us personally. Here are two opposing points of view and we present them to invite further comment and suggestion.

Dear Sir:

Today I received Number 4, Volume 2 of This Is Waterloo, with its warning, "This may be the last!!!"

These words gave me some satisfaction, for it is now apparent that this publication is likely to meet the fate it so richly deserves. All semi-literate, ineptly written publications deserve prompt interment.

I am not an alumnus of Waterloo College, in the proper sense of that word, but if I were my face would burn with shame at the number of common rules of grammar that are flouted in every issue. The style and format are puerile, even judging by high-school yearbook standards, and one wonders whether your editorial staff - if not your contributors - have ever glanced at the publications of other university alumni associations.

I am not tempted to contribute to the Alumni Association lest such funds be div-

President,
Waterloo College Alumni Assoc.,
Waterloo College,
Waterloo, Ontario.
Dear Mr. Mutton,

To-day I received the second Waterloo College Alumni Association bulletin entitled "This Is Waterloo". Even though I read it in Japan, far from the halls of Waterloo College, the paper awakens a new sense of pride within me. I wholly endorse the ambitious program of expansion undertaken there and have every confidence that it can be successful.

Let me offer you my warmest congratulations on your work and wish you every success in the future. I am by no means indifferent to the work of the Alumni Association.

erted to support of further publication of this incredible bulletin. The fact that alumni support has been so poor is proof to me that there are many others who feel as I do.
