Conference on Women Studies Varied

Topics in Series at WLU

Both men and women are invited to attend a four-part Conference on Canadian women to be held at Waterloo Lutheran University beginning January 23.

All sessions will be held at 8 p.m. in the conference room of the women's Residence. A baby-sitting service will be supplied. Coffee will be served and a discussion period will follow each presentation.

Arranging the series, which may become an annual event, are Professors Juane Clarke of the university's sociology department, Mari Jorgenson of the anthropology department, and Beth Symes of the Mathematics department.

Speakers and their subjects:

January 23: Joanne Turner, Kitchener social worker, Women and the Family.

January 30. June Callwood, the well-known Toronto writer and broadcaster, Women and the Law,

February 1: Dixie Guldner, Kitchener marriage counsellor, women and Sexuality.

February 6: Kay Eastham, Ontario department of Labor, Toronto, Women and the Labor Market.
