Not So Dumb

Dora: Could you suggest something suitable for a girl friend's birthday?
Clerk: How about these book ends?
Dora: Just the thing! She always reads the ends before she does the beginnings.

Lougumia: "I saw Kopweh the other day. He was treating his wife in a way that I wouldn't treat a dog."
Pudinga: "Too bad! What was he doing?"
Lougumia: "Why he was kissing her."

A tourist from England, stopping at a New York hotel labored under the delusion that alcoholic beverages were obtainable only by prescription.

"Must I see the house physician before I get a bottle of wine?" he asked the bell-hop.

"No, better see him after you've had it," replied that bright young fellow.

"What are those square places marked off in white paint in the square?"

"They're safety zones."

"How's that?"

"Well, if you can stand there and are run over by a motor car, your heirs can recover from the driver."

"Yes, you're right," said the lover of dogs. "Dogs do have understanding. There's a legend about a Scotchman who told his wife that he'd decided to give his Collie away. The dog heard him, ran away and never returned."

"It came to me differently," said his companion. "The dog heard the conversation, curled up in the corner and died of shame."

"Died of shame?"

"That's it. He realized that anything a Scotchman would give away must be utterly worthless."

CONSERVATIVE MEETING

ment was $7,000,000. In 1928 it had increased to $25,000,000. Dr. Tolmie in taking over had found a treasury containing nothing but I.O.U.'s, and had had to borrow $8,000,000 to meet the deficit left by the Liberals.

Mr. Maitland stated he proposed to show just what they had done since coming into power in 1928.

They found the Sumas scheme had cost their predecessors $3,500,000 instead of the estimate of $1,800,000, and it would grow nothing. They had put the land on the market, and had since 1928 sold 6,088 acres to 68 bona fide settlers, who were growing crops and paying taxes.

The Liberals had spent $600,000 at Creston, but the soldier settlers had left because there was no water. Since 1928 they had put on a water system at a cost of $60,000 and settlers were coming back and bringing prosperity to Creston.

The Oliver dam had cost the Liberal Government $2,500,000 but the settlers could not pay the rates, and had started to move away. They had cut down the value of the land since 1928 so that men could make a living with the result that they had kept the settlers they had found, and new ones were coming in.

The Tolmie government had largely increased agricultural production, and they stood on their record, asking the voters to give them a little encouragement by supporting Mr. Loutet.

EXTENSION OF SERVICE IN WEST VANCOUVER

Extension of lighting service in the municipality of West Vancouver is now being undertaken by the B. C. Electric Railway Company with the construction of a distribution circuit to serve the districts of Whytecliff, Horseshoe Bay, Gleneagles, and Eagle Harbor, containing over 200 homes.

The Britannia Mines high tension line has been tapped close to Horseshoe Bay and a transformer station erected there. The distribution circuit follows Marine Drive after sending out a branch to serve Whytecliff, and extends to Shelter Bay serving Gleneagles and Eagle Harbor en route.

The work, which commenced October 13, involves an expenditure of approximately $20,000 and will take six weeks to complete.

A waterproof cover for fruit or jelly jars can be made by brushing a piece of paper with boiled linseed oil. When dry it will be waterproof.

Maple syrup substitute can be made by melting granulated sugar in a saucepan and stirring until slightly scorched, then add boiling water. This is good with griddle cakes.
