Korshak to Meet Northfield Twp. Voters at Coffee

Marshall Korshak, Democratic candidate for Cook County treasurer, will meet Northfield Township voters at 10 a.m. Tuesday at a coffee in the home of Mrs. Homer J. Livingston Jr., 360 Riverside Ln., Northbrook.

Mr. Korshak recently was honored by the Illinois Taxpayers Federation and the Illinois Township Officials Association for his "outstanding and magnificent job" in his present post, state director of revenue.

He also has been rated "very well qualified" for the treasurer's post by the Better Government Association.

A former state senator, he received the Independent Voters of Illinois "Best Legislator" award during all four of his terms. He was appointed to the post of revenue director on Apr. 7, 1965. A graduate of the University of Wisconsin and Lewis Institute, the Chicagoan received a law degree from Kent College of Law.

New Program to Treat Drug Addicts Is Recommended by State Rep. Moran

A pioneering program for the treatment and rehabilitation of Illinois narcotics addicts was recommended this week by State Rep. James B. Moran (D) of Evanston.

Rep. Moran, vice chairman of the State Narcotic Advisory Council, said the program is the first Illinois attempt to deal constructively with the state's addiction problem—the second or third most serious in the nation.

Because of the total lack of a statewide program, Illinois can take advantage of the knowledge gained from recent experimental projects elsewhere, Rep. Moran said.

Cites Experience

"Some states, such as New York, have committed themselves to massive and costly construction programs for addict hospitals whose ultimate effectiveness has not been proved," he explained.

The emphasis in the Narcotic Advisory Council proposal is on "aftercare" through comprehensive neighborhood treatment programs using the latest and most successful methods of combating addiction. The council, Rep. Moran said, has rejected long-term compulsory commitment to hospital facilities.

The proposed program would:

- Establish a pilot neighborhood treatment center—a halfway house—in a selected neighborhood with a high addiction rate.

- Provide living quarters in this treatment center for counselors and selected addicts as soon as they enter the program and provide facilities for experimental administration of drugs used as substitutes for narcotics.

- Provide facilities for group therapy, social referral services, and a probation and parole office.

- Establish a continuing research and evaluation program, using existing research centers, to evaluate experimental neighborhood programs and to assist in determining what programs should be initiated in other neighborhoods.

- Consider establishing an ex-addict group, such as New York's "Daytop Village" program. This program helps addicts help themselves stay off drugs and become socially useful human beings.

- Establish a short-term detoxification facility as entry to a rehabilitation program.

- Co-ordinate and mobilize public and private resources to meet Illinois addiction problems.

Rep. Moran said legislation will be introduced in the next session of the General Assembly to permit enforcement authorities and the courts to co-operate in the treatment and rehabilitation program.

"Although narcotics addicts are very seldom involved in crimes of violence, addiction is responsible for a substantial proportion of property crimes," Rep. Moran said.

Gives Statistics

"Illinois is known to have in excess of 7,000 addicts and the number may be more than double. Approximately a quarter of the total prison population are addicts. While strict controls on distribution of narcotics are essential, we cannot continue to ignore the human and social consequences of addiction."

The Narcotics Advisory Council, which includes legislative, public, and law-enforcement members, was created by legislation introduced by Rep. Moran in the last

General Assembly session.

Its membership includes the Rev. Bruce Wheeler of Evanston, chaplain of the Chicago House of Correction, and Dr. Joseph Skom of Winnetka, chairman of the Illinois State Medical Committee on Narcotics.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Noonan of Wilmette (right) discuss plans for a meet-the-candidate party with State Rep. James B. Moran (D) of Evanston. The Noonans will host an Oct. 23 brunch for Mr. Moran, who is seeking re-election in the 1st House District.
