

32 Shore Residents Cradle Show Models

By MARY BETH MURPHY

The North Shore complimented the 17th annual Elizabeth Arden-Cradle Fashion Show Oct. 11 when 32 of its fashionable residents modeled in the Conrad Hilton Hotel.

Elizabeth Arden was unable to attend the benefit because of an injured knee.

But her favorite color, pink, was sprinkled throughout the International Ballroom from tablecloths and centerpieces of pink carnations and baby's breath to pink roses and carnations topping Grecian columns at corners of the runway.

Even backstage the color was carried out in the rosy pink cheeks of nervous models waiting to have their makeup applied by Pablo of Elizabeth Arden studios.

Features Autumn Hues

Autumn hues of toasty browns, plum lavenders, and hazy olive greens dominated the special collection of Count Antonio del Castillo. Flared A-lines in simple designs marked the show. No mini skirts were shown in the Castillo collection—the ensembles came to the knee.

Coat costumes emphasized the season's trend of straying from the traditional suit. A watermelon orange reversible coat with its A-line wool dress received enthusiastic applause.

Daylight faded into sparkles and starlight lames in gala evening gowns. Again the coat costume will make a premiere with matching lame cover-ups and sleeveless A-line skimmers.

So it appears that coats are going to get the most attention. At least a black lame moire cocktail coat with mink collar and cuffs stirred quite a few "ooh's" and "aah's."

Features Lounging Wear

Not all the fashions were for evenings out. Lounging has never been so colorful, fashionable, and comfortable. And the jeweled and beaded look is now creeping into dreams in the form of a nude beige pegnour trimmed in heavy beading at the neckline.

Modeling the chic collection were Mrs. James W. Alsdorf, Mrs. James Babson, Mrs. E. Eugene Beisel, Mrs. Roger G. Bensinger, Mrs. C. Foster Brown Jr., Miss Jane Conrad, Mrs. Robert B. Crane, Mrs. John J. Crown, and Mrs. Arthur Dole III, all of Winnetka.

The group promotes understanding of the architecture profession.
