KENILWORTH CONTINUES STRONG BUILDING PACE

June Shows Total of $119,500, Which Is $25,000 More Than
for Same Month Year Ago

Building operations in Kenilworth in June held up strong, the permits issued calling for a total expenditure of $119,500, which was $25,890 more than for the same month of last year. The figures for June of this year, however, are considerably lower than for the preceding month, but this easily is accounted for by the fact that one permit in May was for $150,000 for a new school. The total was $190,775.

Five permits were issued in June for new residences, these accounting for $115,000. One of these new structures is costing $60,000. It is a two-story brick and tile with garage being built for Thomas P. Dowdle at 144 Woodstock avenue. Alteration permits were for a total of $4,500.

In addition to the new Dowdle residence, the permits called for the erection of the following:

Warren Hathaway, two-story brick veneer residence and two car garage at 324 Sterling road, $20,000.

R. A. Bullinger, two-story brick and concrete residence and two car garage at 707 Kenilworth avenue, $15,000.

Charles Gudbransen, two-story brick and tile residence and two car garage at 550 Earlston road, $17,000.

Robert J. Kroschel, two-story brick veneer residence and attached garage, $13,000.
