

New Trier Students Compete for Trip to Europe This Summer

Grace Stanley and Elizabeth Van Steuberg represented New Trier High school in the third national competitive examination of the League of Nations association last Friday, March 15, to pick the winner of a trip to Europe this summer. Answering a set of questions about the League of Nations was the principal feature of the examination. The students' examination papers have been sent to the headquarters of the League of Nations association in New York City, and the winners probably will not be announced until May.

New Trier was one of forty-one Illinois high schools registered for the competitive examination. Besides the first prize of a trip to Europe, second and third prizes of $100 and $50 respectively also will be awarded.

In addition to the prizes which will be awarded by the National Educational committee of the League of Nations association, the Illinois committee of the association will give a prize of $25 to the student winning first prize in this state. Only those entered in the national contest will be eligible for the state prize, but the Illinois prize will not be awarded to a student who may win the national award.

The Alpha Phi Mothers' club of Northwestern university met yesterday at the home of Mrs. Albert Wells, in Evanston.
