English Lutheran

Fifth Sunday after Trinity.
9:45 A. M. Sunday school.
Joseph Johnson, superintendent.
11 A. M. Morning worship.
Sermon: "The Soul and Its Lord."

Our attendance has been very gratifying during the vacation days. The summer days are days in which many people are too busy to take an hour for the worship of God. However, we have had a very fine average of attendance when compared with the averages of other churches with which we are acquainted. It does seem that when God blesses us with these beautiful days and the opportunity of enjoying them in His great outdoors, that we should pause for one hour to worship the Giver of all good. At times it may seem a real sacrifice to do so, but I am sure that it is not without its reward. God rewards faithfulness. If the Sunday trip is of such length that we must start early in the morning, what could be more fitting than to stop at some House of God along the road and spend an hour in His worship. It would not keep us from making the proposed trip and at the same time would rest both body and soul.

Our annual picnic will be held in Harms Forest Preserve Thursday afternoon and evening. Events of all kinds are on the program. The committees are working to make this our biggest and best picnic. Expense has not been spared to make it an event of importance. Children may be safely sent without special precautions as we will take care of them for you. Ice cream, pop, crackerjack, and other goodies will be furnished free. Bring well filled lunch baskets and have a good time.

Have you seen the way the new church is progressing? Drive around this way and see for yourself. The bricklayers will begin sometime next week. It will not be long until we will lay our cornerstone. We will be in the new building sometime in November. It will be a lovely church. All who have seen the plans are much impressed with their beauty. The finished building will be another addition of beauty to our already beautiful village. If you have no church home in Wilmette, you can find a hearty welcome here and will be justly proud of your choice.

"WORSHIP IN WILMETTE"

Methodist Church

A fare-well service will be held by the Church school at 9:30 next Sunday morning. A brief service of memory and hope has been planned. Mr. Stafford will read one of his poems. There will be an abundance of music. Short addresses will be made by several. Mr. West, the superintendent, is in charge of the service.

The year book of the women is in the process of preparation by Mrs. G. M. Culver. This book will contain the names and addresses of all women connected with the church, the officers of the Ladies' Aid and the three missionary societies, and the monthly programs of the three women's organizations.

A goodly number of the members of the High School league are going to attend the Institute at Conference Point, on Lake Geneva from July 8 to July 15. Anyone else wishing to attend should make reservations by June 29 with Mr. Mayer, Mr. Johnson, or Dr. Smith.

The Des Plaines Camp meeting opens its program Friday, July 5. An exceedingly fine program has been outlined for this year. Bishop Hughes and Bishop Blake are the speakers for Sunday, July 7. Dr. M. S. Rice will speak on the Thursday of that week. For the final assemblage of July 17, the distinguished Bishop Francis J. McConnell will be there.

First Graders Engage in Poultry Business

First graders attending summer school at the Tenth street building have started a poultry business on a small scale. With the proceeds of a pet show held a few weeks before the regular school term closed, the pupils have purchased a hen and a dozen eggs, which they have quartered in the basement of the building. Their plan is to have the hen pay for herself by hatching chicks. Mrs. Hollas Gilbert and Miss Laura Flentye are the teachers supervising the project.

VISITING IN WILMETTE

Mrs. Thornton Adams and her small daughter, Joan, of Pensacola, Fla., is the house guest this week of Mrs. G. Ross Stewart, 1033 Greenwood avenue. Mrs. Adams' other daughter, Jaqueline, is staying with Mrs. Stewart's mother, Mrs. M. B. Skinner of South Bend, Ind. Mrs. Stewart had also as her guests for several days last week, her cousin, Miss Margaret Halsted of Pasadena, Cal.

Librarian Gives Sample Sentences From Newer Books

Miss Anne L. Whitmack, librarian at the Wilmette Public library, has selected another group of pithy sample sentences from books to be found at the library. Here they are:

We can imagine that Ben sits down reflectively in front of the fireplace. It is of the good old, bad old type. It bakes the face and permits the back to freeze. It must be constantly fed with wood, which it burns wastefully. It sometimes has nervous fits, drawing badly and filling the room with smoke. The result is the invention of the Franklin stove, one of the first contrivances to banish barbarism from the American home and give it a civilized comfort marveled at by the world.—Phillips Russell in "Benjamin Franklin, the First Civilized American."

We speak of rising to a higher mental plane; this is little else than learning to wrestle with more and more significant problems. A little girl in her third summer says, "I'm a nice girl; I don't bite sister now." To bite or not to bite, to keep one's self clean, to refrain from crying, are normally the dilemmas of childhood. If they are not dead issues to a person twenty years old, they may be regarded as psychopathic symptoms.—Everett Dean Martin in "The Meaning of a Liberal Education."

"We speak of the denizens of Russia. So that"—my Uncle Valentine counted them on his fingers—"the population of the globe is divided into five classes—men and women, inhabitants, natives, aborigines and denizens."—Donn Byrne in "Destiny Bay."

Charles could never bring himself to forget that he was a man, and often found it difficult to remember that he was a king. He could not, try as he would, be pompous about himself, and pomp has its functions in kingship. He enjoyed his authority, but he was never persuaded that he came to it by anything but a lucky chance. You could never tell that in full robes he would not wink at some acquaintance who stood staring in the crowd.—John Drinkwater in "Mr. Charles, King of England."

"Snapping," as Mrs. Roosevelt defines it, "is the art of finding quaint and valuable things in junk heaps, and the ability to get them cheap. Snappers are born not made."—quoted by C. B. Clifford in "The Junk Snapper."

Antique furniture is also a cult of today; our own, European, anybody's will do, provided it be wormy enough. Owning a room full of old stuff gathered from purchase here and there is not as distinguished, however, as having one's own inherited supply, but we can't all do that. Most of our ancestral homes were inflammable, and many never existed.—Edwin Avery Park in "New Backgrounds for a New Age."

I'll pack a grip for a trip on a ship where the scene at least is variable.

Oh, East is East and West is West, but the Middle West is Terrible!—Louis Untermeyer in "Collected Parodies."

Vance Soule, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul R. Soule, 915 Lake avenue, will be among the north shore boys to attend "Duke" Child's camp, Awakonz, in Canada, during the summer months.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel M. Davis and daughter, Dorothy, were in Michigan for a short fishing trip last week-end.
