

BOND ISSUE PUT UP TO VOTERS

Saturday, November 15, Is Time When They Ballot on New Trier Needs

Voters of New Trier township will decide this Saturday, November 15, whether or not New Trier High school is to go ahead with its expansion program by issuing bonds to the amount of $875,000 for that purpose. The polls will be open from 12 o'clock noon to 7 o'clock at night.

C. OF C. TO HOLD ANNUAL BANQUET

Col. Robert Isham Randolph to Address Merchants Wednesday at Masonic Temple

One of the most important events of the year on the Wilmette Chamber of Commerce calendar will take place next Wednesday night when the organization's annual banquet will be held at the Masonic temple, 1010 Central avenue.

Elaborate plans have been made for the affair. A turkey dinner will be served at 6:30 o'clock, and following the dinner there will be a program including a talk by Col. Robert Isham Randolph, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce.

The Four Aces, singing instrumentalists who have appeared in leading hotels and cabarets and who have also been heard in radio broadcasts, will sing and play during the dinner. Another feature of the evening's entertainment is to be a comedian, who is recognized as one of the best in the middle west.

Tickets on Sale

Tickets for the banquet may be obtained by calling the Chamber of Commerce office, Wilmette 63. The tickets also are on sale at the following stores and offices:

Dominic Pagliarulo's jewelry store, William Taylor Dry Goods store, First National bank (E. B. Knudtson), Wilmette Stationery and Gift shop, Snider-Cazel Drug store, Pearson's market on Ridge road, Ridge Avenue pharmacy, East End market near the "L" terminal, R. M. Johnston real estate office, Wolff-Griffis Hardware store and Wilmette Playground and Recreation board office (Daniel M. Davis).

Those who plan to attend the banquet are looking forward with particular interest to the coming of Col. Robert Isham Randolph, one of the most active leaders in Chicago's campaign against crime and gangsters.

Has Brilliant Career

Colonel Randolph is one of the new school of engineers who have come to the fore in national business circles. A noted proponent of the inland waterways, a soldier who started as a private on the Mexican border in 1916 to arise step by step until in 1918 he was commanding a regiment of engineers in France, and, for a generation, prominent in the civic and industrial affairs of Chicago, Col. Randolph is the first engineer ever elected president of the Chicago Association of Commerce.

In recent months Col. Randolph has won international recognition for the impetus he has given to Chicago's active campaign against crime and the obstruction of justice and for his fearless defense of Chicago's reputation. In a recent address before the Inland Press association, Col. Randolph gave his listeners something to think about when he declared that while among the larger cities of this country Chicago ranked only thirty-ninth in the number of homicides per thousand population, the real reason the city had a reputation in crime was its avowed policy of telling the facts as they exist. "You can't clean house by sweeping the dirt under the bed," he said, a rather subtle indictment of other communities whose crime records are every bit as bad as that of Chicago but are protected by a "hush-hush" policy that is proving highly beneficial to those who profit by felonies.

A graduate of Virginia Military institute and Cornell university, a descendant of the famous Randolph family of Virginia, a native born Chicagoan and son of Isham Randolph, the engineer who cut the continental divide just west of Chicago a generation ago to turn the Lakes into the Mississippi, Col. Randolph has been long known for his advocacy of inland waterways.
