than I can do. Any number wish to take lessons and it is pathetic to turn down really excellent talent, but human endurance is limited.

"I hope you get to come on your tour. Japan is wonderfully beautiful and Korea more so, I think. Of course, Japan rules here and gets more advertising than Korea, but if you come you will find Korea truly 'The Land of the Morning Calm.'"

Move Public Service Equipment to Skokie

Trucks, transformers and other equipment of the Public Service company of Northern Illinois located at 911 Church street, Evanston, were moved last week to the headquarters established on Skokie boulevard west of Glencoe. ## Skilled Actors at Children's Theater

While the versatile George Phelps was playing the title role in the morality play, "Everyman," presented by the school of speech at several Lenten services, he was rehearsing a quite different role for the Children's theater play which opens at Haven school, Evanston, April 11. In "The Emperor's New Clothes," he will play the part of one of the two clever rogues who outwit the minister of the royal robes and pretend to weave a gorgeous robe for the Emperor.

Mrs. Charlotte Chorpensing, who has recently written the play for the Children's theater, has conceived the rogues as two gay young adventurers who roam the world in search of new experiences. With the naivete of children they exclaim when they arrive at the colorful Oriental city, "This ought to be a good place for things to happen!" And with the child's sense of justice, they champion the cause of the down-trodden weavers, and leave only when they have righted the wrong done to them.

Playing with Mr. Phelps as the second of the two rogues is Richard Hadley who has successfully played all manner of parts in the Children's theater, beginning with the cowardly lion in "The Wizard of Oz." These two men, leading actors in the university, will provide most of the fun in this the last play of the season. John Wollenwebber of the school of speech will play the part of the vain Emperor, and Rollin Laughner that of the wicked Han.

James Krafthefer returned on Wednesday to St. John's Military academy after passing the spring recess at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James M. Krafthefer, 901 Oakwood avenue.
