

Newest Cooley's Cupboard Opens Doors This Week

Replacing the Original Cupboard, which began business six years ago immediately across the street, the new Cooley's Cupboard at 1629 Orrington avenue, Evanston, opened its doors this week.

The new establishment was planned under the personal direction of Roy W. Cooley, founder of Cooley's Cupboards, president of the organization which operates them and vice president of the Kline Building corporation, owner of the new structure which houses the tea room and two stores.

Fulfills Demand

Like the present Main street Cupboard, the new Cupboard has been required because of the heavy patronage accorded its predecessor. There are now three Cupboards: the new one, the Picardy room at 1511 Chicago avenue, and the rendezvous Moderne at 505 Main street.

The original Cupboard, at 1632 Orrington avenue, was opened in the early summer of 1925, occupying only the north room of the two afterward utilized. The success of the Cupboard was immediate, however, and with a very short period its facilities were expanded to include the additional space.

The Main street Cupboard was originally opened in the Evanshire Hotel building in 1926. Like the Orrington avenue tea room, it achieved marked success and within two years it was found necessary to replace it with the present Cupboard. Then came the Picardy room, opened in 1927. This likewise has proved exceedingly popular.

Incorporated This Year

The Cupboards were incorporated in May of this year, with Mr. Cooley as president, while the Kline Building corporation was formed several months previous. Christian J. Golee is president of the latter firm.

In every respect, the new tea room eclipses any and all of its predecessors. Its facilities include a main dining room, seating 200, a lounge having booths with a capacity of 32 guests and a series of small private dining rooms equipped with folding doors that may be opened to create larger rooms.

Roy W. Cooley, president of Cooley's Cupboards, Inc., and vice president of the Kline Building corporation which has just completed the new building at 1629-1631 Orrington avenue, Evanston, is the founder of the group of tearooms that bears his name. It is to his efficient management and to that of the organization he has built around him that their success may largely be attributed.

Depicts Beauty of Scout Camp at Spring Lake

go up for at least a few days and see how it is all done.

Taking care of the constantly increasing number of visitors finally became quite a problem. This was happily solved during the present season by the construction of a family camp on the opposite side of the lake from the main camp. It consists of five cabins for the use of the regular camp officials and their families, and as many tents as may be required to take care of special visitors. A very moderate charge is made for the use of the facilities of the camp, which include a community stove for cooking, fuel, and ice. A barge service is maintained between the two camps, and row boats or canoes are always available.

The family camp, like Ma-Ka-Ja-Wan itself, is beautifully located on high ground with inspiring views of Spring Lake and the main camp. It is something to see from here during the day the far-reaching areas of green forest; the rambling shore lines; white clouds rolling across a blue sky; occasional white sails which seem to be reflections of the clouds; canoes and rowboats dotting the waters; the play of sunshine and shadow over all. And at night comes the glow of the distant camp fire in the big council ring on the edge of the lake and the subdued singing of many young voices.

Splendid Leadership

To the Scout officials who have so ably guided the destinies of Camp Ma-Ka-Ja-Wan during this and previous seasons the people of the north shore who are interested in and have made the camp possible are greatly indebted. Myron C. Rybolt, scout executive for the North Shore Area council, and who has had ten years of camp leadership in Scouting and other boys' camps, is again business manager of the camp; Carl McManus, assistant Scout executive, camp director, Harold G. Boltz, field executive, assistant camp director; and George Bersch, director of camp handicraft. Nor should the unselfish and indefatigable efforts of Keith Roberts and Charles A. Steele, present and former chairmen respectively of the official camp committee for the north shore towns comprising the council, be overlooked. Both men have done much to make Camp Ma-Ka-Ja-Wan the premier Boy Scout camp of the country.
