

New Standard Oil Company Complete Service Station, Sheridan Road at 10th Street, Wilmette

“It Was a Pleasure to See How Well My Car Was Serviced!”

That's how a North Shore man recently expressed his surprise and pleasure at the service he received at one of the new Standard Oil greasing stations. To many motorists such service is the regular thing, for that's the way Standard Oil does things.

At the new service station shown in the picture, cars are lubricated thoroughly and efficiently by trained men, with modern greasing machinery. Every lubrication point is first wiped clean, and then given the grade and kind of lubricant recommended for that particular part by automobile manufacturers and Standard Oil engineers. When your car is greased here, you know the work is done “right,” and we know it's right, for it is the kind of a lubrication job Standard Oil Company gives its own cars and trucks.

Inspect This Service—See How We Do It!

Drive in today—inspect this station—see how thoroughly and carefully every job is handled and supervised. Then have your own car given this thorough lubrication. If you later want to send a member of your family or your chauffeur in with the car, you know just what kind of work you will get. And you get an itemized statement with the job showing just what has been done to your car, the charge for each service, and the exact total. This information becomes a part of our records, and we remind you when your car needs attention again.
