

Flower Show to Be Outstanding, Plans Indicate

Word comes from the management of the Flower show scheduled for April 2 to April 9 on the Navy pier, of plans which will make this show the largest and most beautiful ever given by the Illinois Garden club. The space and arrangement at the Navy pier seems to adapt itself to the arrangement of gardens in a way to present the most beautiful of effects.

The exhibition space is long and relatively narrow. As show visitors stroll down the spacious aisles between the garden exhibits they may well imagine they are in a suburban avenue lined with gardens each of which is an ideal example of the horticultural art. The Chicago show for several years has been recognized as excelling in its garden exhibits, but this year Manager John A. Servas asserts all previous accomplishments will be surpassed.

Chicago is the largest commercial flower production center in the country and this year the professionals promise to exhibit their finest blossoms in cooperation with the garden clubs. Flowering and foliage plants will also be displayed. Some of the larger classes are:

Group of rose plants covering 150 square feet, arranged for effect; group of tulips covering 100 square feet; display of cut roses covering 200 square feet; display of carnations covering 150 square feet.

An exhibit of hybrid orchids of rare beauty, many of which have never been seen in Chicago, will be staged.

The cut flower exhibits will be arranged for artistic effect by the outstanding floral artists of Chicago, and they will greet show visitors with a mass of vivid color as they enter the show.

Passing through an archway from this section, visitors will find the large garden displays. These will be made by the following exhibitors: Lake Forest Garden club, Evanston Garden club, Mrs. J. Ogden Armour, James Norris, St. Charles Garden club, Joliet Floral and Garden club, Morton Arboretum, West Park Commissioners, Lincoln Park Commissioners, Forest Preserve, North Shore Horticultural society, National Association of Gardeners (North Shore, Ill. branch), Vaughn's Seed store, Franz Lipp, Charles Fiore, Peter Pearson, Elmhurst Park Commissioners, and Commonwealth Edison company.

In addition, more than forty smaller garden exhibits exemplifying the solution of specific garden problems will be made by garden clubs, providing a vista of gardens more than 1,000 feet long.

Junior Garden club exhibits will this year be more numerous and require more space. A group of play houses with gardens surrounding them will be one feature.

A lecture program which will provide talks on garden subjects by authoritative speakers daily during the show is being arranged by a committee headed by Mrs. William H. Colvin, of Evanston, assisted by Mrs. Benjamin F. Oakes of Maywood and Mrs. Charles D. Ewer of Wilmette.

The advance ticket campaign in charge of Mrs. Joseph E. Callender is well under way. Many thousands of money saving-tickets have been placed. It is anticipated that more than 100,000 of these tickets will be disposed of before the opening of the show. A record attendance is assured.

Plan Ping Pong Event in Ravinia March 26

The North Shore Ping Pong tournament will be held in the Ravinia school auditorium all day Saturday, March 26. This event is sponsored by the Ravinia

Table Tennis club and has the sanction of the Western Ping Pong association. Players from all over north shore towns have been invited.

Guy Osborne of Cumnor road, Kenilworth, is in Hot Springs, Ark., this week recovering from the flu.
