

North Shore Daily Fee Golf

PICKWICK

The Chicago Daily Fee association held its regular bi-weekly meeting Monday of this week at the Pickwick Golf club.

Golf was enjoyed during the afternoon, then dinner in the evening at the clubhouse, after which the regular business meeting was held.

The members present were: C. E. Maddox and W. G. Reich of Twin Eagles; E. Levi of Hickory Hills; C. A. Nash of Vernon Ridge; president of the association, W. B. Langford of Mid-City; secretary, W. H. "Doc" Roth and C. B. Burkhat of Pipe o' Peace; J. E. Loye of Golfmoor; J. S. Chamberlain and W. H. Schink of Chicago Meadows; D. S. Coghill and J. J. Janisek of Coghill; J. M. Lambert of Northbrook; Jack Croak of Elmgate; Jock Anderson of Techny Fields; Harold Heaney of Sportsman; J. A. Roseman and J. A. Roseman, Jr. of Pickwick. The above are managers and assistants of the various courses.

The Pickwick course was found to be in excellent shape, and Mr. Roseman was the recipient of many flattering remarks from those who played.

Mr. Roseman states that Pickwick will be kept in the "pink" of condition throughout the summer.

SPORTSMAN

Sportsman Golf club, built two years ago as a private club, but opening in May of last year as a daily fee course, is again open to the public this year.

It is located on Dundee road about one mile west of Waukegan road and just across the street from Sky Harbor. Sportsman is best known for the long distance of the course, the many traps all around the course, and its beautiful water holes. There are twenty-seven holes in all, nine holes constituting a special Ladies course.

During the middle of last season, Sportsman was one of the first of daily fee courses to offer free golf to the women one day each week. This year each Tuesday will be Ladies' Day and there will be no charge for play. Tuesday of this week was the second Ladies' Day of the season.

Any week-end will find Sportsman enjoying a goodly share of the daily fee golfers, all trying to conquer the course. Harold Heaney, manager of the club, have everything in readiness for a big play over this week-end. The clubhouse and dining room are open to the public.

GLENCOE

Golfers came out to Glencoe with a big smile last week-end and will continue to do so. There's a reason... reduced playing rates. Glencoe, it is said, has the lowest playing rates of any of the fee courses along the north shore. With the present rates, and the truly fine course, Glencoe in a short time will have about all the course can play.

Then too, Tuesday of this week inaugurated Ladies' Day. Even though cloudy and rainy, a good number of the "fair sex" was out on the course trying to beat old man par on the first round.

Another of the many reasons for the popularity of this course is the fact that Glencoe has one of the

NORTHBROOK

As the season wears on the new Northbrook Golf club, formerly the University Golf club, is becoming increasingly popular. The new manager, Julian M. Lambert, tells us that the course has enjoyed an unusual amount of repeat play this spring. It seems that golfers are quick to realize and appreciate the advantages of playing on a course that was designed and built for a private club and used as such during its many years of development.

For six years a private club, its full facilities are now available to the public. The course has been espe-

TECHNY FIELDS

Perhaps we have read that "inconsistency it at once the charm and the annoyance of golf," but consistency is necessary in all golf form. Consistency of method cannot be acquired within a short season; it has to be built up gradually and persistently in order to make it a part of our golf personality. Bobby Jones was one of the few players who played against an invisible opponent, namely, Old Man Par. Other great players learned early the absolute necessity of taking little notice of their opponents' style of play. Learn to ignore the styles of the other players and you must do better with your own particular style. The professional's reputation as a teacher suffers on many occasions because his pupil, once out on the golf course, becomes influenced by the styles of the other players who may be playing better shots than himself and he unconsciously imitates one or more of styles they play and long before he reaches the 18th green he is in a hopeless tangle of styles. Learn to preserve your own style of play and consult your pro before you make changes.

A Scots' caddie remonstrated with his player, a tremendous hitter who was, however, topping his ball and making it take Kangaroo leaps along the grass. "Guide sakes gie the ba' a chance, ye dinna gie it time tae think: ye just dingle its brains oot."
—Jock Anderson.

ROB ROY

Rob Roy Country club is probably one of the few clubs that needs an introduction to the north shore.

It is located on McDonald road, east of Elmhurst road, about three miles south of the Dundee road. Entrance may also be gained from River road. It is just west of Dam No. 2 in the Forest Preserve.

Rob Roy, until last year a private club, located in this quiet spot, did not get much attention particularly from the daily fee golfer. Its total yardage is 6,703, with 3,534 yards on the first nine, and 3,169 coming home. Par is 73.

John Reuter, Jr., manager and professional of the club, says: "The yards are all there, too; every hole is distinctly individual; you will like the layout; the 3rd will surprise you, the 12th will tease you, and the 18th will please you."

The greens are all of beautiful Astoria seeded bent, the only club in the Chicago area having these greens. They all have a roll, will hold your "pitch" shot and putt true as a "die."

John says: "When you want golf that is golf, a little different from the average, come out and play Rob Roy." The rates are very reasonable.

cially well known as the proud owner of the area's largest and finest greens. There are no two greens alike in shape or roll but are of uniform putting speed and accuracy.

The dining room and club house are open to the public. No charge is made for lockers, showers, or reserved time service. The new pro, George Jenkins, who has been a member of the P. G. A. for 20 years, has fitted up his shop with a full line of accessories. He has already been doing a good repair business and maintains a bag-rack service.
