

Purple Gridders Busy at Summer 'Vacation Tasks

A wide variety of occupations including construction work, life guard, summer camp councillor, and salesman are serving to fit Northwestern's football candidates for the fall grid campaign which gets underway with the opening of practice September 15.

Despite the scarcity of jobs, most of the Wildcat athletes sought the old home town during the vacation period, and reports coming back to Coach Dick Hanley are that they managed to locate work of some kind or other.

Harold Weldin, regular center, is a life guard at Peoria, Ill., his home town, while Ed Manske end, is engaged in the same occupation at Ne-koosa, Wis. George Potter, quarter-back, departed for Omaha, Neb., his home, immediately after school closed, and sends back word that he is working in a warehouse there.

Lyle Fisher, sophomore end candidate, and a brother of Waldo Fisher, Northwestern grid star of several seasons ago, is working in a garage in Fargo, N. D. Mil Froberg, tackle, and Louis Struebing, end, are coun-cellors in a summer camp. Andrew Valentine, guard, is a playground in-structor in Evanston.

The Chicago and Evanston beaches provided jobs for a number of grid-ders. Among those so occupied are: Vincent Thoma, end; Julian Bennett, end; James Buechel, end; Jack Fun-dis, tackle; L. F. Hamilton, center; Bob Notley, half; Al Manasin and Harold Seghi, guards. Pug Rentner, the Wildcats' captain-elect, is also engaged in beach patrol work.

Among those working as laborers on construction jobs are Dick Fencil and Howard Kostbade, ends; George

Dilley, Jerome Gottschalk, Cliff Kin-der, and Ed Whelan, guards; Ollie Olson and Chet Sutton, fullbacks; Bill Riley and Bob Gonya, tackles; Paul MacDonald, center, and Al Ka-wal, quarterback.
