Stults Buys Assets of Ravenswood Company

The comptroller of the currency of the United States has just approved the sale of the assets of the Ravenswood National company, the investment subsidiary of the Ravenswood National bank, to E. E. Stults Realty company, north shore realtors, whose main office is located at 1901 Montrose avenue, Chicago.

Walter D. Rathje, formerly president of the Ravenswood National bank, and the Ravenswood National company, will be associated with E. E. Stults Realty company, in the operation of this business, having been identified with its affairs for over twenty years.

In making this connection Mr. Rathje feels that the incorporating of the assets of the Ravenswood National company with E. E. Stults Realty company, an organization of twenty years standing in the north side community and on the north shore, specializing in the sale and exchange of income producing property, building management, insurance and loans, will give him a opportunity to more efficiently serve its patrons and the stockholders and depositors of the Ravenswood National bank in a more successful liquidation.

E. E. Stults Realty company also has offices at 1108 Davis street, Evanston and 460 Winnetka avenue, Winnetka.

Wilmette to Feature Wits, Speed, Action

Wits and speed figure in the plots of two thrilling dramas, "Attorney for the Defense" and "Texas Gunfighter," that comprise the double feature program at the Wilmette theater on Friday and Saturday, August 26 and 27.

Edmund Lowe provides the wits in the thrilling courtroom scenes of "Attorney for the Defense." He also employs speed to probe a murder mystery in which his own life is at stake. The trial, in which Lowe conducts his own defense, is said to be one of the most dramatic and unusual ever screened.

Ken Maynard makes use of his wits and speed in a dashing western, "Texas Gunfighter." There's a reason for all this—the beautiful Sheila Mannors.

The taking of a 1,300-pound black marlin is probably the high spot of the Zane Grey film, "South Sea Adventures," which shares the double feature program with "The Man from Yesterday" at the Wilmette theater on Sunday and Monday, August 28 and 29.

The purpose of his expedition, says Zane Grey, famous author, was to set a world's record for deep-sea, big fish catching with rod and reel. Grey returned with the coveted record and thousands of feet of priceless film.

Andy Devine, one of the nation's leading football stars who won praise for his work in "The Spirit of Notre Dame," really comes into his own as a character actor in "The Man from Yesterday," co-starring Clive Brook and Claudette Colbert for the first time on the screen.

On Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of next week, the Wilmette presents powerful drama and hilarious comedy. "Street of Women," featuring Kay Francis, fascinating brunette star, Allan Dinehart and Roland Young, provides the drama in memorable fashion. "My Wife's Family," starring Gene Gerrard, is a riotous farce comedy of the in-laws and the in-bads.

"The Dark Horse" and "Vanity Fair of Today" are the Wilmette attractions tonight (Thursday).
