

Wilmette Firemen Make Only One Run in Week

Wilmette firemen made only one run in the week ending Tuesday, August 30. That was to extinguish an oil burner blaze in the basement of the Frank J. Wenter home at 1204 Ashland avenue Monday morning about 9:30 o'clock. There was no damage, Fire Chief Walter Zibble reports.

Mrs. Harry L. Reno of 231 Greenleaf avenue entertained her Tuesday bridge club this week.

CAZEL'S COLUMN

A college president said recently that we haven't developed brains fast enough to keep pace with world affairs.

Was this a selling talk for higher education?

Does the college president know when the big, thick books come out on intricate world problems that what is said in those books is already ancient history to the men who are at work solving those problems?

Many of us learn by putting two and two together in handling everyday problems. In that way we learn how to get things done. Some of us, by putting two and two together day after day, learn to put four and four together, and get bigger things done.

What does the world need more today: a knowledge of how things have been done or how things can be done?

To our way of thinking, we learn as we go along getting things done. The more we get done, the more we learn, and the more we learn the more we can and do get done—the more problems of the world are solved right along even if there is a shortage of brains as the college president said.

This is no argument against higher education. And it is no argument for education obtained only from the hard knocks of life. But it is an argument for more education of the kind that enables us to get things done and done right.

Whether he's in school or not, a man's education goes on just the same if he will let it go on. With more and more of this two-and-two-put-together education coming along, it is more a question of the world keeping up with us who are getting things done and done right. And it is because we do things right that our two stores are known to be "Dependable."

Broadcasts on West Coast

CHARLES BARON FLEISCHMANN, Kenilworth baritone, leaves his week for the west coast to begin a contract to broadcast in Los Angeles.

Mr. Fleischmann has been heard many times on the air hereabouts during the past few seasons on a variety of programs originating from the Chicago NBC studios, as well as local stations. During that time he has also filled many recital engagements before club audiences in Chicago and suburbs. For two years he has been the baritone soloist at the North Shore Methodist church in Glencoe.

Mr. Fleischmann has done all of his vocal work at the Regeneas studios in New York City where many of the country's leading singers have studied, among them Elsa Alsen, Nevada Van der Veer, Theodore Webb, and Charles Marshall.

PASSES BAR EXAM

Miss Marjorie Van Horne, a teacher in the Wilmette Public schools, succeeded in passing the July bar examinations for Illinois, according to a list received from the office of the Chicago Bar association last week. While teaching school Miss Van Horne has been studying law at the Chicago Kent College of Law. Her home is at 522 Church street, Evanston, and she was the only Portia among the young Evanstonians who passed the examinations.

Miss Genevieve Smithers of 711 Lake avenue left Wednesday to go to Estes Park, Colo., where she will visit friends for a week or ten days.

George D. Jones Dies; Headed Paper Company

George Davenport Jones, 318 Oxford road, Kenilworth, died Wednesday, August 24, at the Presbyterian hospital in Chicago following an illness of three months. Mr. Jones, who was 60 years old, was president of the Seaman Paper company. He was born at Zanesville, Ohio, and had made his home in Kenilworth for the past thirteen years. Surviving him are his widow, Mrs. Grace Jones, two children, George, Jr., 14 years old, and Jean, 12, two sisters and three brothers. Mr. Jones was a member of the Skokie Country club and the Chicago Athletic club.

N. S. Art League Aids in Planning Outdoor Exhibit

Jasper King, president of the North Shore Art league, is taking an active part in arranging the outdoor art exhibition, to be held—beginning Friday, September 9—for five days and evenings, at Grey park, Ridge and Main streets Evanston under the auspices of the Evanston Little Art gallery. The event has created such widespread interest among residents of this territory that the entry lists have been opened to all artists of Chicagoland.

In addition to the North Shore Art league the Evanston Art center and the Ravinia Sketch club have joined the little Art gallery in sponsoring the exhibit, preparations for which are going ahead rapidly and giving promise of a colorful and interesting occasion. This exhibit, it is stated, will be the first of its kind ever held in Evanston.

Grey Park Is Scene

Grey park will be transformed to a gay art mart for the show by the erection of little six-foot square booths for every artist participating. In the avenues between the rows of booths, tables and chairs will be grouped under large beach umbrellas, and refreshments will be served in the style of Parisian sidewalk cafes. The entire arrangement scheme is being carefully outlined to result in an artistic unit, and lighting will be installed so that the exhibit may be viewed at night as well as during the day. An extra bit of color will come from a group of strolling troubadours, who will make their way between the booths.

Among those taking active part in arranging the exhibit are Paul von Klieben, director of the Little Art gallery; Mrs. Frank C. Engelhart, secretary of the gallery, who will open her home adjoining Grey park as official headquarters for the exhibit, and Konstantin Mitsoff, who is supervising the preparing of the displays.

Several Groups Aid

Several Evanston organizations, including the Woman's club, the University guild and the Drama club, are interested in the exhibit and are serving as patrons.

Though the list of entries is far from complete, Mr. von Klieben stated this week that about 75 artists are expected to participate. An exhibition fee is being charged to cover the cost of material and lighting. No commissions will be asked and it will be a no jury show. All exhibitors are asked to make their reservations not later than Saturday, by communicating with Mr. von Klieben, Evanston Little Art gallery, 614 Church street, Greenleaf 7080.

Dr. and Mrs. Clarence L. Clarke of 220 Wood court recently returned from two months in Ann Arbor, Mich., where Dr. Clarke was teaching at the University of Michigan during the summer.

Charles and Norman Dake have returned to their home in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, after spending the summer with their father, C. P. Dake of 1225 Maple avenue.
